MUSSOLINI DECIDES TO ABOLISH ALL LAW COURTS

Administration of Justice to Be Turned Over to Government Boards and Guild and Labor Committees.

LAWYERS WILL BE PAID BY THE STATE

Rights of Individual Will Be Subordinated to General Interest—No Special Pleading for Clients to Be Allowed.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Nov. 13.—Premier Mussolini has decided to abolish all courts of law and substitute for them state committees. A committee of lawyers and officials of the Ministry of Justice is working out the details of the plan to replace the courts with the state boards.

The committee's report is expected to be finished soon, when it will be handed to the Ministry of Justice for action.

It is also planned to abolish the special tribunals for defense of the state. This court was established 20 years ago after the attempted assassination of Mussolini at Bologna in 1926. It was first instituted for five years and then renewed for another five.

The court, created to protect the life of Government officials, condemned half a dozen men to death on charges of conspiring against the Premier.

Conditions are said to have become so settled in Italy and the people so united around the Premier, lawyers have would there be a necessity for continuing the tribunal.

As involving monetary matters connected with certain products—such as wheat, automobiles, transportation and the like—will be settled by committees of public embracing those products.

Labor matters will be settled by labor committees.

The Ministry of the Interior will appoint committees to deal with criminal charges.

Attorneys said that under the new system lawyers would become Government functionaries the same as judges. The State will pay them regular salaries. Attorneys' functions will center around attempts to ascertain the truth in a case and present facts to the jury clearly without passionate appeals for client's interests.

The interests of the State will outweigh the interests of the individual.

The number of lawyers will probably be limited after a period of experimentation.

SEC CITES BROKER FIRM FOR STOCK MANIPULATIONS

Accuses W. E. Hutton & Co., Its Partners and H. H. Michels of Boosting Price of Atlas Tack.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Securities Commission charged the New York Stock Exchange firm of W. E. Hutton & Co., its 11 members, and H. H. Michels, with manipulating stock and ordered them today to appear Dec. 7 to show cause why they should not be expelled from 14 stock exchanges.

The firm, as well as Michels, was accused of manipulating stock of the Atlas Tack Corporation which resulted in boosting the stock from $9.50 to $30.25 a share.

Partners named in the order were James M. Hutton, James M.
Hutton, Jr., John Christie Duncan,
Charles N. Foster, Joseph A. Hall,
Carroll V. Geran, George C. Riley,
W. E. Hutton, II, C. Kenneth Smith and Joseph A. W. Iglehart.

Michels is a partner of the firm of William Cavaller & Co., which is now a member of the New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb Exchange and other exchanges. The Cavaller firm was not mentioned in the order.

Hutton & Co. has membership
on the New York Stock Exchange, New York Curb Exchange, Philadelphia Stock Exchange, Detroit Stock Exchange, Baltimore Stock Exchange, Chicago Stock Exchange, Cincinnati Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Michels holds membership in the New York Stock Exchange, New York Curb Exchange, San Francisco Stock Exchange, San Francisco Curb Exchange, Los Angeles
Stock Exchange, and the Chicago Board of Trade.

The commission's order said that as a result of increased activity in trading in Atlas Tack, there was a marked increase in the volume of shares traded in, accompanied by a sharp rise. From November 14, 1935, to November 30, 1935, it said, about 38,000 shares were traded in, the price increasing from $9.50 to $15.25 a share; during December, 1935, about 37,000 shares, the price
rising to $19.75 during January, 1936, about 32,000 shares, the price rising to $26.87; during February, 1936,
about 21,700 shares, the price
reaching $30.25.

The order said it had reason to believe those cited to appear had entered matched orders, engaged in wash sales, and had used "divers means and instrumentalities of interstate commerce... creating actual and apparent active trading in such security and raising the price thereof, for the purpose of inducing the purchase thereof by others."

The commission also charged that Herbert J. Adair of Detroit, chairman of the board of Atlas Tack, purchased 37,000 shares of the stock from the Guardian Securities Corporation, and subsequently, acting with some of the respondents, sold about 34,000 shares to a small group of individuals.

HECKSCHER MUST KEEP ON PAYING FRIEDA HEMPEL

New York Court Holds Millionaire to $15,000-a-Year Agreement With Former Opera Singer.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—August Heckscher, millionaire real estate operator and philanthropist, was ordered by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court today to continue paying $15,000 a year to Frieda Hempel, former opera singer, under an agreement he signed in 1928.

Despite Heckscher's contention he was a "victim of extortion," the court upheld an order of Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag last June, under which Heckscher was ordered to pay Miss Hempel, $3879.48, which she said was due her last December.

Counsel for Heckscher asserted Justice Shientag's ruling was a summary proceeding which denied him a trial on his plea that even if the agreement were good, it was broken by Miss Hempel's continued "annoyance" of him in violation of the agreement.

"It is the contention of the appellant (Heckscher) that he has been the victim of extortion and it appears conclusively that the instrument upon which this suit is based was given to obtain relief from further attempts at extortion," said counsel. "These attempts have been renewed constantly up to the summer of 1935 and in strict violation of the agreement upon which this action is predicated."

The agreement, upheld today, was made in 1928 after Miss Hempel had filed suit against Heckscher, charging he had promised to pay her an income for life for her willingness to sing at charitable benefits arranged by him. The suit was withdrawn and letters Heckscher and Miss Hempel had written to each other were returned to them and destroyed.

Heckscher is now 88 years old.
Miss Hempel is 49.

RED CROSS GETS FASCISTS
TO FREE WOMEN ON BOAT

Men on Captured Vessel, Including Basque Abbe, Reported Put to Death.

By the Associated Press.
BAYONNE, France, Nov. 13.—
Women and children aboard the Spanish steamer Galeona, captured by Fascists Oct. 16, were freed after intervention by the International Red Cross, they disclosed on arrival here yesterday.

The refugees said they were ignorant of the fate of men aboard the steamer, but had heard reports a number, including the Abbe Ariste Mugno, who was a leader of Basque Nationalists, had been executed.

Fascist newspapers of Navarre published an agreement with the Red Cross by which Gen. Francisco Franco would permit non-combatants under 18 to travel without restriction through Fascist territory.

The Spanish Government steamer Galeona was captured 18 miles off Pasajes by the crews of four Fascist launches. More than 80 persons, passengers and crew, were taken to San Sebastian and imprisoned.

tion During Weekend.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The United Charities campaign for relief of the unemployed, which began four days ago, has raised $681,590 in the first four days, but is still 74 per cent short of its goal of $2,600,000.

English announced appointment of A. J. Pickett, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines, as vice-chairman of the employees' division of the campaign.

Pickett will have charge of all solicitation of organized labor.

"Organized labor in the past has been willing to do its part in all community enterprises," Pickett said in a statement. "United Charities is a community institution and employees all segments of our citizenry. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, recently urged the organized labor groups of the nation to assist in local welfare organizations in reaching their goal. I feel sure that organized labor in St. Louis will want to continue to do its share in the present campaign for funds."

Among the teams reporting yesterday, three announced they had obtained 50 per cent of their quotas. These teams, in the West End, Northwest and Downtown regions, were headed, respectively, by Mrs. O. P. J. Falk, chairman of the West End region, reported a total of 661 subscriptions, aggregating $9314, or 17 per cent of its quota. J. Garneau Weld and former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, co-chairmen of the Downtown region, reported $33,241 in subscriptions, or 22 per cent of its quota.

The Rev. Little R. Green, pastor of Kirkwood Presbyterian Church and chairman of the Committee on Relief of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare, was the principal speaker at yesterday's meeting. He expressed a hope that none of the workers about the city would be in an apologetic spirit and declared that instead they were extending a favor to citizens in giving them an opportunity to subscribe.

Need for New Givers.

"You deserve the blessing of the giver, for you are not only giving of your substance and money, but you are giving of your time and services to put other people in line for this blessing," he continued. "One of the things needed in this campaign, one of the features that ought to characterize this cooperative effort, is the great number of new accounts and new givers.
It is worth while to them and it is infinitely worth while to United Charities."

Commenting on the record of previous United Charities campaigns, the Rev. Mr. Little recalled that only 16 out of every 100 citizens subscribed to the last drive. This he described a poor record, compared with the results experienced in other cities of equal size. As an example he cited Detroit, which recorded 23 givers out of every 100 citizens to its last United Charities campaign.

The speaker reminded his audience that Government welfare efforts do not cover situations not services within the field of the agencies participating in the United Charities campaign. At the same time, he warned his audience that if the time should ever come when the Government took over all relief activities the result would be a marked increase in new and higher taxes.

"The Government is not doing nor does it propose to do, the work of caring for the sick as it is done every day in the year by our United Charities agencies," he continued.

"The Government has not the machinery for the careful, sympathetic care of delinquent and neglected children which has characterized the work of our United Charities agencies for many years."

The campaign, which began last Monday, will continue until Nov.

NEUTRAL BOARD ACQUITS RUSSIA OF AIDING MADRID

International Committee at London Throws Out Three Charges Which Were Made by Rome.

GRANDI ASSAILS SOVIET UNION

Says Future of Europe Is at Stake—Moscow Delegate Replies Italy Is Treaty Violator.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The International Neutrality Committee acquitted Russia last night of three Italian charges that it had aided the Madrid Government in the Spanish civil war.

The committee on Oct. 28 acquitted both Italy and Portugal of charges of violation of the neutrality agreement.

During the hearing yesterday, Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador, declared his acceptance of what he called the Russian challenge to Sovietize Europe.

"Italy, in fact, is convinced that it is not only the future of Spain but the future of all civilized Europe that is at stake today," he declared.

"Russia even here assumes its recent disguise as a democratic lamb and endeavors to whitewash the red flag of the Communist revolution."

Referring to the Spanish Government's flight from Madrid, he said: "Thus ends, amidst fire and blood, the greatest attempt ever made by Bolshevism to export their creed, through force and famine, beyond their frontiers."

"The Soviet representative has defined it as a creed of peace but the facts deny him. It is a creed based on class hatred and civil strife. It is the creed of war."

Reply by Russian.

The denunciation drew a quick retort from the Russian representative, Moiseyevitch Kagan.

"He (Grandi) throws himself into the fray with a whoop reminiscent of the redskins' battler in those tales which no doubt all of us read when we were young," Kagan said.

"If today we have to listen to the Italian representative piping a tune which Berlin has composed, then, though we may congratulate Berlin on 'victory,' we must console with Rome on yielding her independence of approach in international matters, on surrendering her former sane attitude to the U. S. S. R. at the clamor of Berlin."

Sarcastically, Kagan continued: "It is a tune with which we are all familiar. It is the tune of the enemy of the world and that a great crusade of all 'civilized' countries should be organized to destroy this terrible specter."

"So far, the success of these frantic appeals has been very marked. Undoubtedly Italy's hysteria has demonstrated her good sense by abstaining from any such stupid tactics."

"No Quarrel With Italy."

He said Grandi's speech was in utter disharmony with the spirit of the committee and that his "flowery periods" were merely serving to emphasize divisions and to induce antagonisms within the non-intervention committee.

"We had no quarrel with Italy ourselves," Kagan said, "but from the moment she betrayed herself as an aggressor, from the moment Italy embarked on war against a weak and defenseless people, that relationship obviously had to suffer."

"No amount of propaganda speeches for Gen. Franco (Francisco Franco, leader of the Spanish Fascist insurgents) can hide the crying fact that Italy stands unmasked before the whole world as an aggressor and arch-violator of international treaties."

Atrocities Photographs.

In the midst of his tirade, Grandi slammed a pile of atrocity photographs on the committee table, declaring Spanish Fascists, inspired by Russian Communists, were responsible for the war cruelties.

Kagan said the neutrality problem did not include discussion of the division between Communism and Fascism but was confined to differentiation between war and peace.

He asserted nations which glorified war and aggression were lined up on one side while on the other were countries which detested war and desired peace.

The inclusion of the name of Jose Stalin, whom Grandi called "chief of the Bolshevik revolution," caused some officials to comment on the direct allegation against the Soviet official.

"Stalin," Grandi charged, "said it was the duty of the Soviet Union to render every assistance within its power to the Spanish Communist revolution in as much as the liberation of Spain from Fascist oppression was not a private affair of the Spaniards but the common cause of Communism."

Earlier, the Neutrality Committee had approved a plan to send neutral observers to the principal Spanish ports to guard against an inflow of arms. After the committee gave its approval, however, the plan was sent back to a subcommittee.

vidence only after the preliminary plans were made.

In his preface to Badoglio's book Mussolini wrote:

"The war which was fought from Oct. 3 to May 5 can rightly be called Fascist because it was conducted and won with the temperance, spirit of sacrifice, courage and resistance surpassing human limitations."

Although Badoglio, chief of the General Staff, commanded the army in its final victory, he himself declared he was proceeding on the strategy laid down by Mussolini and De Bono.

Mussolini praised Marshal Badoglio for having dared, he wrote, "even to the point of recklessness, but in a war it is necessary to dare because whoever dares has a probability almost always of being helped by good fortune."

The Premier pointed out that the time factor was vital in the campaign.

Italy had to win before economic sanctions, imposed by the League of Nations on Italy as an aggressor, had time to reach their full effect.

UNITED AUTOMOBILE WORKERS ANNOUNCE 8-POINT PROGRAM

Includes Gradual Reduction of Hours Until All Displaced by Machinery Are Rehired.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Nov. 13.—The International Union, United Automobile Workers of America, announced an eight-point program today for an organizational campaign with the assistance of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Among the demands are progressive reduction of hours "until all workers who have been displaced by machinery are re-employed."

The announcement said the program was drafted at a conference of executive officers of the union with Philip Murray of Pittsburgh, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee, and John Brophy of Washington, director of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

It referred to the re-election of President Roosevelt and to the election of "the several governors of the principal auto-producing states who are favorable toward labor" as a "positive mandate."

Upon the right of the workers to affiliate with independent labor unions and enjoy the privileges and benefits of true collective bargaining.

$670 SAFE ROBBERY AT DAIRY

Burglars Break Combination Off Golden Eagle Strongbox.

Burglars, who knocked the combination off a safe, stole $672 from the Golden Eagle Dairy, 2239 Gravois avenue, last night.

A policeman found a rear door of the building insecure at 2 a. m. today and discovered the robbery.

Man Who Stole Chimes Freed.

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 13.—Ray W. Smith, organ builder and tuner, who was held several days in connection with the theft of a set of chimes from a church here, was released from jail this morning when the church here and a Springfield church which bought the chimes, said they did not wish to prosecute.

Smith pronounced authorities said, to attempt to furnish the Springfield church with a set of chime to replace those stolen which were returned here yesterday.

ILION MAYOR AVOIDS QUESTIONS ON STRIKE

Labor Board Examiner Tells Counsel to Regard Him as Adverse Witness.

By the Associated Press.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Mayor Frank C. Whitney of Ilion testified yesterday before the officers of the Remington Rand Co. tried to persuade him to deputize 80 guards, imported for strike duty at the company's Ilion factory.

Testifying at a National Labor Relations Board hearing into union charges that the company employed unfair labor tactics in dealing with its workers, Whitney said he refused the request "because the men were non-residents."

He testified that the request was made to him and to the chief of local police "the last week in May" about the time the company's strike began.

Whitney gave the answers—"I don't know"—"I can't say"—"I don't remember"—to several questions pressed by Daniel B. Shortall, attorney for the labor board.

Whitney, finally declared: "From now on, counsel, you may treat this witness as an adverse witness."

Whitney testified about a joint meeting of the board of directors of the Remington Rand Co. of which he was a member, and the board of directors of the Remington Rand Co. of which he was a member, and the board of directors of the Remington Rand Co. of which he was a member.

He said that Reginald Boote, whom he identified as the head of an organization seeking to persuade the men to return to work, told the board members that the strike was called "unfairly and illegally" and that if the men didn't go back the plant would be moved.

Joseph W. Woodward, head of a union at the Ilion factory, testified he saw a notice on a bulletin board at 9:40 a. m. the day the strike was called announcing that a ballot was to be taken at 10 a. m. on whether the workers desired to strike.

He said there had been no previous notice. He said he hurried through the plant urging the workers not to vote.

Woodward declared that company announcement saying that 97 per cent of the workers voted against the strike was "not true." He said he opposed the ballot because it did not constitute "collective bargaining."

Clothing Set Ablaze by Leaves Mother, Mrs. Charles Walter, Was Burning.

Marian, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walter, 2230 Mary avenue, Overland, died today of burns suffered yesterday when her clothing caught fire as she played about a fire of leaves her mother had built in the yard of her home.

Mrs. Walter said she turned her back for a moment, then heard the child scream and saw her running from the fire, her clothing aflame. The mother beat out the flames and took the child to St. Louis County Hospital.

AMMUNITION FOUND HIDDEN ON SHIP AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Customs officers, who have been on the lookout for arms or ammunition which may be destined for Spain, found 1000 rounds of revolver ammunition hidden under boxes of nails aboard the passenger and cargo liner Caracas when it arrived from Venezuela and Puerto Rico yesterday. The Caracas does not go to Europe.

Frank Villanueva, a Spanish ship carpenter in whose workshop the ammunition was found, denied any knowledge of it but was turned over to Department of Justice agents.

SIX REBEL PLANES SHOT DOWN IN AIR FIGHT OVER MADRID

base was so far from Madrid that attacking planes could get away from the city before Government craft arrived. Now, however, the Government has established a temporary air base near Madrid, its whereabouts a secret.

More than 70 pursuit planes, defense officials said, have been detailed to the protection of the capital. All are of modern construction, each armed with two to four machine guns, and each manned by an experienced pilot.

It was learned many tanks had been received by the Government. Two Government bombing planes flying low because of heavy fog last night, crashed into a hillcock, killing six airmen, a communique announced.

Other Fighting Continues.

On the western side of the Manzanares River, insurgents and loyalists maintained an artillery and rifle battle around the Casa del Campo, former royal estate. Rain and fog hampered the efforts of both sides.

An Associated Press correspondent who was in the battle zone south of the capital reported Government forces engaged in heavy, counter attacks on the Fascist right flank.

Small raiding parties from both sides of the lines around Madrid pushed forward in attempts to penetrate opposing forces at either end of the river bridges. The minor drives accomplished little.

Military officials inside the capital said sufficient reinforcements had arrived from the southeastern coast to defend the city against insurgent attacks.

Fresh forces were expected from Catalonia (Barcelona) and Valencia to bolster the Government defenders, who already have the support of strong contingents of international volunteers composed of Poles, Italians, French and Russians.

Lake Between Armies.

In the Case del Campo section, Fascists held large sections of the outskirts but strong Government lines prevented further advances. The troops were drawn up on either side of a large lake.

The Government still held a small section known as the Users district south of Casa del Campo, the militia in formation with the Carabanchel bull ring on the right and the Toledo road on the left.

Fires in the capital were visible to observers both inside and outside. The flames apparently were confined to the northwestern section, where several buildings could be seen afire.

MOVING TO COMPEL A.F.L. CONVENTION VOTE ON THE CIO

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 13.—The American Federation of Labor's Metal Trades Department instructed its president, John P. Frey, today to introduce a resolution in the A. F. of L. convention next week for the expulsion of the 10 unions in John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

The metal trades department, representing 650,000 workers, brought the "insurrection" charges before the A. F. of L. executive council that resulted in suspension of the Lewis unions two months ago.

By a second resolution, the department directed Frey to introduce a general convention resolution next week calling for an A. F. of L. boycott on all goods produced by the suspended unions.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, discussed Lewis' drive to put all the workers in each big industry into one big union, in addressing the federation's building trades department convention today.

"We're going to organize the unorganized of America and we're going to organize them into the American Federation of Labor," Green said.

"The experiments motivated by vaporous idealism are completed by those who have invaded the field independently—when they admit they're through—A. F. of L. will step in and do the job."

Green's only prediction as to what the federation's general convention would do about the Lewis rebellion against the traditional craft form of organization was that "the world will know where we stand when we get through."

"Going to Use Judgment."

A member of Lewis' United Mine Workers, Green said he knew the miners "deep in their hearts love the American Federation of Labor."

"However," he added, "we're going to deal with this issue not on our hard heads, but by the judgment of our rank and file."

Green was applauded when he said the Knights of Labor, the Debs movement and the International Workers of the World, each in turn, had tried to destroy the A. F. of L. without success.

"We'll go from here ready to face any foe either within or without the A. F. of L.," he concluded. "I pledge to you all I have and all I can give in defense of the federation."

WOMAN Jailed for Coercing Man. By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—For her alleged attempt to lead a 44-year-old bachelor to the altar at the point of a pistol, Mrs. Esther O'Rourke, 29, was sentenced to seven days in the Bridewell by Judge Joseph B. Hermes today.

"The cave-man era was reversed," said Judge Hermes. Mrs. O'Rourke said she carried a weapon to protect herself when she attempted to take Phineas Crocker of Marlboro, Mass., to suburban Waukegan last Tuesday to marry him.

Predicts Building Boom.

Green said the country was "on the threshold of a great building boom."

"There is a shortage of homes throughout the land," he said. "There is a great need for other types of building."

"I predict for the building trades a great building boom, increases in wages and employment for all workers. The demand for workers will be in excess of the number available. New men will have to be trained. That will soon be one of the problems before your unions."

Green promised to work for enactment of the Wagner law cost housing bill at the next session of Congress.

"In every community," he said, "we will see a housing program so big and comprehensive that all building mechanics will be employed."

Proposal for Fight on Lewis.

Leaders of the Building Trades Department yesterday proposed a fight by all craft unions against Lewis' Committee.

The department's executive council also recommended to its convention that all building trades locals affiliate with central bodies and state federations of labor "so as to assure concerted action."

The proposal by the building trades leaders followed a report that eight of the federation's executive council members desired to make peace with Lewis. Miss wanted to expel the 10 C. I. O. unions at the federation's general convention here next week, it was said in well-informed quarters. The 10 unions already are under suspension.

J. W. Williams, president of the building trades department, said: "Most of the Lewis committee were communists and they were seeking power for their own aggrandizement."

John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department, said there was "no genuine intention" behind peace overtures as far as the Lewis faction was concerned.

More Pay Increases Announced By du Pont Rayon and Others

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 13.—The du Pont Rayon Co. today announced wage increases of 7 to 10 per cent, effective immediately, for the 3000 employees at the Amphyll plant near Richmond.

LOWELL, Mass., Nov. 13.—News of wage increases came today to 3400 mill employees in this city and adjacent places. Fifteen hundred employees of the Abbott Worsted Co. in Lowell, Graniteville and Forge Village will receive a 10 per cent increase. Wages of 1200 employees of the Royal Worsted Co. and United States Bunting Co. and Ames Worsted Co. also will be increased 10 per cent Nov. 23, and 700 workers of the Talbot Mill in North Billerica will receive a boost in pay, the amount and exact date to be determined. The American Woolen Co. and other mills announced wage increases yesterday.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Nov. 13.—The Simonds Saw and Steel Co., with plants in this city, Ludlow, N. Y., and Chicago, announced today a wage increase, ranging from 5 to 10 per cent, effective Monday.

for all its employees in the United States.

NAUGATUCK, Conn., Nov. 13.—An "upward revision" of wages for approximately 5000 workers in the footwear plant of the United States Rubber Products, Inc., was announced today. The increase becomes effective Nov. 27.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 13.—The Lorraine Manufacturing Co., Pawtucket, employing about 2700 workers, announced today a 10 per cent increase in hourly and piece pay, effective for both the cotton-rayon and woolen divisions of the mill.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 13.—The Atlantic Mills in Olneyville, woolen manufacturers, this afternoon announced a 10 per cent pay increase to its 2100 workers, effective Nov. 20.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 13.—Wage increases ranging from 7 to 10 per cent were announced today by Old Hickory units of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. The company employs approximately 5500 persons.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 13.—Gov. Guy B. Park said today the Federal Government had informed him that its investigation into Federal funds of Missouri's Health Department had disclosed no irregularities.

Park said R. A. Johnson of the Federal Public Health Service and F. R. Simpson of the Federal Bureau of Child Welfare had told him their audits showed Federal funds handled by the State department balanced.

The Governor in issuing the statement said he had delayed announcing the Federal audits because he had wanted to see a State audit of the department first.

Both the Federal and State audits were made after Attorney-General McKittick began an investigation of the department's canceled and blank checks were cashed from the Mississippi River at St. Louis. The check mystery is still unsolved.

Forrest Smith, State Auditor, said the State audit was virtually completed and "would be turned over to the Governor soon."

SEAMEN CHARGE SPIES WERE USED AGAINST UNIONS

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—P. Melnikow, counsel for six of the seven striking seamen's unions, charged yesterday at a Federal Maritime Commission hearing that employers had sought to discredit unions through a spy system involving private detectives and tapped telephone lines. He said unwanted union men were blacklisted and working agreements violated by shippers.

His charges were described as "mere innuendo" by Gregory Harrison, employers' counsel, who said he would welcome a commission investigation and abide by its recommendations.

Melnikow said the unions did not recognize the authority of the commission to act as an arbitration board, and reserved in full their rights to determine by methods of collective bargaining, wages, hours and working conditions.

The Maritime Commission hearings, in charge of Rear Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, were postponed indefinitely after yesterday's session, devoted to taking testimony of the unions. The employers presented their side several days ago.

Meanwhile, Assistant Labor Secretary Edward F. McGrady tried again to arrange a mediation conference. Today was the fifteenth day of the strike, which has tied up about 175 ships on the West Coast and caused sympathy walkouts in Atlantic and Gulf ports.

McGrady said he would present to shipowners a proposal for control of waterfront hiring halls, which both unions and employers seek to operate individually. Under terms of the 1934 maritime strike settlement, joint control was established, but shipowners charged the unions appropriated full control.

McGrady said if the employers indicated approval of his plan, he would attempt to get them together with union representatives in a conference, long delayed by various difficulties.

Sailing of Ship With 500 Passengers Canceled at New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Panama Pacific Line last night canceled the scheduled sailing for today of the steamship Pennsylvania, on which 500 persons had booked passage to the West Coast.

The company gave no explanation for the cancellation. The American Steamship Owners' Association announced that it was due to the West Coast strike, which might have hampered docking and loading of cargo.

"prospects" for benefit dances to be given for Rock Hill village's

Affairs of the racket were, for all

Park was not learned, but one of the "dynamiters" said he understood about $5000 had been taken in during that time. One of the "leapers" had in her possession $45 which she said she had collected yesterday afternoon in St. Louis.

Among her collections was a $5
check from the Washington Park which she said the conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra had left at the desk in the Park Plaza Hotel for a ticket sold by a phone solicitor.

Alleged Sponsor Sought.

For more information on this matter, the police are seeking Guy Baldwin, named by the "dynamiters" and "leapers" as the sponsor of the Washington Park racket. He has twice been arrested before for questioning about "boiler rooms."
The St. Louis police said today, however, that they were in error yesterday in saying the promoter of the Washington Park racket was an ex-convict.

Found in the bungalow, which was a pretty tidy mart for a business operating through 15 telephones, was a typed line of "patter" to be used in soliciting ticket sales for the Rock Hill dance, to be given
New Year's eve in Fenton, St. Louis County. The solicitor was taught to introduce himself as "Officer Williams, Assistant Chief of Rock Hill," a non-existent personage, of course.
The same line of solicitation had been used for the Valley Park dance to be given at Fenton Thanksgiving eve.

Roger H. Stephens, the police force of Rock Hill, declined to discuss the ticket sale, or to comment on the police "courtesy card" which went to each purchaser. Several who purchased tickets, said the solicitor had mentioned the card might come in handy if they should be arrested in Rock Hill.

Marshal Tells of Agreements.

Marshal Richard H. James of Valley Park said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had made an agreement with Baldwin under which his four-man force was to get all the proceeds from the ticket sales and 65 per cent of the revenue from program advertising. Conceding that he had no way to check the books of the promoter, he said he expected to receive about $1800 and already had received about $800. Baldwin had promoted two other dances for the force, he said, and expenditures from these moneys were regularly reported to the Valley Park City Council.

Baldwin was arrested last February in a "boiler room" at 3711 Olive street, where tickets were being sold for a benefit dance for the Washington Park police. Mayor W. B.
Gawford told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the force had received $700 from the promoter as share of the proceeds, supposed to be split on a 50-50 basis, but added he was not satisfied his men had received all that was coming to them.

The Baldwin crew also promoted dance and farmers' festival last September for the police of Dupu-age, east of St. Louis. Marshal L. B. Adams said he learned $100 tickets were sold for $1 each,
but that his force got only $157,
although they were, by agreement,
to get 50 per cent of the proceeds.
He also said he understood between him and $700 was realized on sales of advertising in the program. Dupu-age was none of that.

Charged with Killing Fiancee

KENTUCKIAN HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH
RELEASED ON BAIL

Henry H. Denhardt Arrested at Inquest Into Shooting of Fiancee, Mrs.
Verna Taylor.

By the Associated Press.
NEW CASTLE, Ky., Nov. 13.—
Henry H. Denhardt was arrested yesterday on a charge of killing his fiancee, Mrs. Verna Garr Taylor, a widow of La Grange, Ky. Denhardt, who was Adjutant-General of the Kentucky National Guard until he resigned last December following the election of Gov. A. B.
Chandler, was released on $25,000 bond for his appearance at an examining trial here Nov. 20. He is 60 years old.

His arrest yesterday ended an inquest into the fatal shooting of Mrs. Taylor a week ago. Her body, a bullet through the heart, was found in a roadside ditch, with Denhardt's revolver nearby.

Denhardt, the first witness called by Coroner D. L. Ricketts, declined to testify, "advice from my counsel."

"I would like to testify very much," he said, "but counsel insists that I should not. I have argued with them for hours about it."

Sheriff Interrupts.

As his attorneys started to argue a motion by Commonwealth's Attorney H. B. Kinsolving to continue the hearing indefinitely, Sheriff Evan Harrod stepped up.

"Mr. Denhardt," he said, "I have a warrant for your arrest." The warrant, charging murder, was sworn out by Dr. E. S. Garr of La Grange, brother of Mrs. Taylor.

The sheriff, his prisoner and attorneys walked to the chambers of County Judge A. S. Morgan, where he was arrested by Dr.
Arthur T. McCormack, head of the Kentucky Health Department, a boyhood friend of Denhardt.

Defense attorneys refused to discuss the situation but Denhardt declared:

"If they had let me testify I'd have told them quick who killed her."

The body of Mrs. Taylor was found by four men, including Denhardt, who began searching for her after two shots were heard.

Denhardt told the coroner he and Mrs. Taylor were standing on the country. The car stalled and while they waited for help Mrs.
Taylor left him to look for a lost glove.

The coroner quoted Denhardt as saying he thought Mrs. Taylor took the revolver from his car and killed herself because her two daughters opposed her marriage to him.

Denhardt's Career.

Denhardt was Lieutenant-Governor of Kentucky from 1923 to 1927.
In 1931 he was wounded seriously by a pistol shot as a result of a political controversy.

He was Adjutant-General of the State during the administration of Gov. Ruby Laffoon, 1931 to 1935, and led the State militia in investigations of several counties to occupation disorders and supervise primary elections.

He was indicted last year for criminal contempt after leading a National Guard expedition into Harlan County in violation of a temporary order issued by Circuit Judge James M. Gilbert. Gov. Laffoon arranged for dismissal of the charges.

A total of 235 delinquent tax bills
of the Webster Groves, Maplewood, Clayton and Ferguson school districts were sold at Clayton courthouse yesterday and today for $1420, under provisions of the Jones-Mun-ger law. Two hundred six other bills were settled prior to the sale for $6828. A total of 2449 bills, with a face value of $6047, had been offered.

Tomorrow and Monday 1292 bills of the Normandy School District, valued at $65,486, will be offered.

LINEELL ESTATE GETS $900,000 BY INSULL FAILURE

Court Decree Shows Total Paid When Building Was Not Put Up at 12th and Washington.

How the Jimmie Lineell estate, owner of the northeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue, received $900,000 for the failure of an Insull subsidiary company to carry out its plans for a new building on the corner, was shown in a friendly suit of law, in which Circuit Judge Granville Hogan rendered a decree yesterday.

The Insull concern, Midwest Industrial Development Co., took a 48-year lease on the Twelfth-Washington property, beginning June 1, 1931, at $75,000 a year. It planned to erect an 11-story building, to be used chiefly by the Illinois Terminal System, and capable of supporting nine additional stories to be added later. It demolished the 10-story Carleton Dry Goods Co. building, which stood on the corner, and gave the Lineell estate a $600,000 bond to guarantee the erection of a new building.

Continuance of the depression,
and the failure of Insull companies,
made it impossible for the Midwest Industrial Development Co. to proceed with its plans. As shown in the heirs' proceeding, the company paid the estate four years' rent, or $300,000, for cancellation of the lease, and its $600,000 bond was forfeited to the estate.

Difference Between Heirs.

Both the $300,000 and the $600,000 received by the estate were subjects of the Court's orders. As to the $300,000, a difference existed between the chief heir, Mrs. Robert S. Brookings of Washington, with a one-half interest in the income of the estate, and the two one-fourth heirs, Robert Ian Forbes Leith and Mrs. Lorna Leith Prior, who live in England.

Mrs. Brookings, formerly Miss Isabel Valle January, widow of the former head of Washington University Corporation, asked that the Court award her outright one-half of the $300,000, or $150,000.
She held that the $300,000, paid for cancellation of the lease, had in fact been paid in lieu of future rent, and was to be considered income of the estate, therefore that the heirs should receive it.

The English heirs took the view that the money was in place of rental for the 44 years that the lease still had to run, and that payments to the heirs should be made on an annual basis of one-fourty-fourth of the amount. This view prevailed, and Judge Hogan directed that Mrs. Brookings should be permitted to choose whether she should receive annually, for the rest of her life, one-fourty-fourth of her $150,000 share, or whether she should receive at once the amount for as many years as her expectancy of life, shown by actuaries' tables.

Mrs. Brookings' Choice.

Mrs. Brookings, now 60 years old,
would have an expectancy of 15 years, it was stated. Hence she has the choice between receiving about $3400 a year for the rest of her life, or receiving 15 times that sum, or about $51,000 immediately.

As to the $600,000, which represents forfeiture of the bond guaranteeing a new building, the court ruled that it should remain in custody of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., trustee of the estate. The trust company can use the money in erection of a new building on the site, on agreement of the heirs, and until such an understanding is deemed advisable, it was directed to invest the money.

Mrs. Lineell, who died in 1894, was the widow of Jesse Lineell, one of three brothers, who engaged in mercantile trade and river transportation here, beginning in 1811.
Lineell boulevard bears their name,
and the Lineell Hotel, formerly at Sixth street and Washington avenue, and the Lineell Street Railway, now parts of the Page, Delmar and Park lines of the Public

PRISONER WHO FLED IN 1912 TO SERVE 4-YEAR SENTENCE

Habeas Corpus Plea Dropped Because Fred Leineman Lacks Funds to Continue Fight.

Fred Leineman will be taken to Jefferson City shortly to begin serving a 4-year sentence for larceny, which has been standing against him for 24 years. Today his attorney, I. Joel Wilson, appeared in Circuit Court and withdrew an application for a writ of habeas corpus, saying that Leineman was without funds to continue his fight for freedom.

In the application for a writ of habeas corpus Leineman contended that he was a victim of mistaken identity, that he was James Howard, whose fingerprints just happened to be identical with those of Fred Leineman, who escaped from the Municipal Courts Building in April, 1912, shortly after he had been sentenced to four years in the penitentiary for stealing a team of horses and a dray of merchandise valued at $1200.

Leineman was returned to St.
Louis last September following release on parole from the Southern Michigan penitentiary where he served a term as James Howard for defrauding the State of $21,000 in gasoline taxes. His identity was established to the satisfaction of Ber-tillon authorities through fingerprints, which were sent out from the Michigan prison to police throughout the country when "Howard" applied for parole. He was manager of a wholesale oil company in Detroit until his arrest
there on the tax fraud charge.

Contractor Erects Scaffolding on

An extensive wooden scaffold has been erected on the north and west sides of City Hall by a contractor replacing the 41-year-old tile roof with a new surface of copper-colored tile. The temporary structure has given the building a strange appearance.

When work started the scaffold was on the south or back of the building. Later it will be shifted to the east side. Part of the new roof has been completed. Cost was announced as $52,000, of which $23,400 was coming from a PWA grant for rehabilitation of principal municipal structures.

JANITOR ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF KILLING NEW YORK BAKER

Denied Knowledge of Man's Whereabouts and Then Reported Finding Body.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Michael Bowen, 32-year-old janitor, was arrested on a homicide charge last night in the killing of Morris Erde, 71, a baker known on the Lower East Side as the pumpernickel king. Erde operated a fleet of trucks. Missing since Sunday, he was found clubbed to death in the courtyard of his East Side apartment house, his head in a potato sack. All identifying marks had been removed from his clothing.

Bowen, who worked at the apartment house and reported discovering the body, disclaimed knowledge of Erde's whereabouts when questioned in connection with the disappearance Sunday and denied knowledge of the killing.

Police said stains were found on his clothing and had been sent to a laboratory.

London Magazine Discusses The King and Mrs. Simpson

Doubts Possibility English Ruler Will Marry American and Abdicate—Papers Silent But Betting Odds Speak Loudly.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 13.—A mimeographed circular magazine, the Week, under the heading "The King and the Rumors," has printed an article covering the possibility King Edward might marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson and abdicate. The magazine arrived at the conclusion that there was little possibility of either development.

Under the subheading, "Palace Battle," the Week asserted a "battle royal" was under way in court circles between the "old guard," which represents the King's friendship with Mrs. Simpson, and the "newer type of courtier," who apparently thinks Mrs. Simpson is "ace high."

The publication commented on the arrival of "chopped up" American papers in Britain and added: "It has become obvious a very great deal has been said in the United States about the King and Mrs. Simpson." It went on: "It is true that if any two persons so placed as Mrs. Simpson and the King were to fall in love, their situation would be one of intolerable difficulty, and therefore there is no doubt its possibility is an absorbing subject of study for the American press and a profitable object of speculation for the British Stock Exchange. Press Silent but Not Bettors.

"For, though the English press has been silent in the matter, the same cannot be said for the insurance brokers.

"The difficulty of finding a valid reason for having an insurable interest in the King's marriage hasn't prevented a brisk business from being done in insurance against this possibility.

"Even more symptomatic of the frank gambling which is based on hints and rumors of the King's private affairs are the rates quoted for postponement of the coronation. "Actually, the most important factor in any calculation of the possibility of postponement is the Duke of Connaught (the King's great-uncle). It is thought the Duke is at present in good health, but he is now a very old man, and were he to die suddenly on the eve of the coronation, the ceremony might well be postponed.

"This factor might account for a slightly higher rate than usual, but certainly does not explain the present rate nor the special rate of 8 per cent, which on this occasion, for the first time, is being quoted against postponement for causes other than the death of a member of the royal family, the King's illness, or war.

Question of Abdication.
"There are, therefore, included all but one of other than the most remote reasons for the postponement, and that one remaining possibility is abdication.

"The idea behind the rate is that the King will insist on marrying Mrs. Simpson and that the opposition of the Bishops to such nonconformity and of the Conservative party generally will force him from the throne.

"The rate, of course, does not mean there is a 12-to-1 chance of the King's abdication before the next year or even, in that contingency, that the brokers think these are the odds, but only that there are rather more suitors about than was generally supposed.

"In any case, there is yet no evidence at all to support the premise of the American press and the city gamblers that there is an affection between the King and Mrs. Simpson of the kind they suppose, or that either party has yet contemplated marriage with the other.

Two Parties About the Palace.
"Almost since the King's accession, there have been two parties around the palace. One, representing the newer type of courtier of which Sir John Aird is typical, is on the inside; the other, the Old Guard, over whom towers the substantial figure of Lord Derby, is one the outside furiously counter-attacking.

"The Old Guard disapprove most strongly of the new court, and, although Derby himself is far too astute a politician to stoop to such methods, there is no doubt a certain old palace set, without his approval, has definitely set afloat various rumors in connection with the King and Mrs. Simpson, hoping thus to bring to their side the most valuable forces in any such attack, the two archbishops.

"Along this line, the Old Guard has had certain success, and some 10 days ago the archbishops had in fact an audience with the King, in which, the Old Guard freely rumored, Mrs. Simpson was discussed.

Lunched With Queen.
"However, these attempts to discredit the King's friendship for Mrs. Simpson were dispelled when she lunched last week with the Queen.

"The Old Guard can only report one local success. At Aberdeen, a well-foretold rumor about the King's failure, when at Balmoral, to attend some local function due in some inexplicable way to Mrs. Simpson's influence, resulted in the chalking of streets in one district at least with personal attacks on the King.

"Actually, it is now abundantly clear that the King's friendship, with the assistance of the American and foreign press, has been grossly exploited by persons who occupied, in the last reign, a position in which they could influence the throne, and who are greatly disappointed that they cannot do the same at the present time."

SPEAKERS URGE PASSAGE OF MILK LAW AT HEARING

Representatives of Organizations Declare It Is Necessary to Insure City
a Wholesome Supply.

PRODUCERS ARGUE AGAINST MEASURE

Tell Welfare Committee Provisions of Present Ordinance Are Safe—Next Session Thursday.

Adoption of the standard milk control ordinance of the United States Public Health Service was declared necessary to insure a wholesome milk supply for St.
Louis, and its provisions were defended as reasonable by speakers from some of more than 100 organizations which have endorsed the measure, at the first public hearing before the Welfare Committee yesterday in the chambers of the Board of Aldermen.

Representatives of milk producers' organizations contended that the milk marketed in accordance with provisions of the present ordinance was safe and said that the standard ordinance would require them to make expensive changes in equipment.

Distributors, who have been active in opposition to the proposed ordinance, were not heard yesterday and the hearing was continued to 1 o'clock next Thursday afternoon.

Supporters of Law Listed.

Mayor Dickmann and about half the members of the Board of Aldermen, including President William L. Mason, attended the hearing. A list of organizations which had endorsed the ordinance was filed with the committee and representatives were asked to answer to a roll call, announcing the number of persons they represented.
Mrs. E. J. Kerber, spokesman for the Standard Milk Ordinance, said the membership of all the groups amounted to more than 180,000.
About 500 persons attended the hearing.

Although no distributors spoke yesterday, proponents of the ordinance, familiar with their objections made before other bodies, discussed the principal issues. They are:

The degrading provision, intended to insure enforcement by empowering the Board of Public Service to lower the "grade of a distributor's product, and requiring him to label it accordingly, if he violates provisions of the ordinance.

The proposed tax of 4 cents on 100 pounds of milk, or about 1-11 of a cent a quart, to provide funds for inspection.

The requirement that milk to be sold as Grade A, pasteurized, not exceed an average of 200,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter before its delivery to the plant.
(The present limit is 1,500,000.)

Dr. Cady Speaks for Bill.
Dr. Lewis D. Cady, president of the St. Louis Medical Society, recalled that he and other leaders of his organization predicted that the present ordinance, enacted as a compromise two years ago when distributors opposed the standard ordinance, would not control the St. Louis milk situation.

"Here we are again," Dr. Cady said. "The medical profession has had to recommend special grades of milk or direct that ordinary grades be boiled for use by infants or persons suffering from stomach or intestinal ailments. Because its taste, it is difficult to obtain a proper consumption of condensed milk."

"We would like to increase the consumption of milk in the interest of public health but this turmoil and loss of confidence in our milk is bad for the dealers, bad for the producers and bad for the doctor's patients."

Advocates Stronger Law.
"Human nature being what it is, evasion of a regulatory law is not looked upon by business men as such a terrible thing. We must have an ordinance with effectual enforcement provisions and penalties. Police Court prosecution, as provided by the existing ordinance, has proved its futility."

Dr. Cady urged that it be kept in mind that while the distributors would actually remit the tax, it would be collected from consumers.
He disapproved the recent suggestion of distributors that they continue their present voluntary contract to provide funds for farm inspection and increase it to provide for plant inspection also. It was undesirable, Dr. Cady said, that inspectors and employees "look directly or indirectly" to those whom they inspect for their pay.

Dr. Seelig on Present Supply.

Dr. M. G. Seelig, also speaking for the Medical Society, termed the present milk supply as "unspeak-able" and urged the committee to give weight to the fact that members of the Medical Society spoke with authority, were unprejudiced and "had no ax to grind." He referred to reports of the society's committees which had visited other cities where the standard ordinance is in effect and where distributors, who first opposed it, were quoted as being enthusiastic about it now. Dr. John C. Morfit, former president of the Medical Society, asserted that "all this fight is for is to give the public an honestly-graded milk." "Examination has showed that the public has not always gotten what it paid for when it bought Grade A milk," he said. "Doctors recommend milk substitutes and public confidence is undermined by all this discussion."

SPEAKERS URGE

PASSAGE OF MILK LAW AT HEARING

Prof. Williams Heard

Prof. Tyrrell Williams of Washington University, president of the Dairy Council, which supervises dairy farm inspection with funds voluntarily contributed by producers and distributors, spoke as a representative of the Consumers' Council. While the voluntary contract expires Dec. 1, he said, sufficient funds were on hand to continue farm inspection for about three months.

Prof. Williams favored the proposed 4-cent tax to provide inspection funds, declaring that present plant inspection, carried on by the city at a cost of about $34,000 a year, was inadequate. To finance inspection from general revenue, he said, would be to impose on St. Louis real estate owners for inspection of milk for the large part of the Greater St. Louis population living outside the city limits.

(Seven St. Louis County municipalities have milk control ordinances modeled after the standard ordinance but providing that milk meeting St. Louis requirements is approved. Since most milk sold in St. Louis suburbs, both in the county and in Illinois, is distributed by St. Louis dealers, these municipalities rely on inspection by St. Louis.)

He said that 19 farm inspectors, "each a young scientist" from an agricultural college, had been employed during the depression at salaries which were much lower than they could receive elsewhere and that some were leaving. It was the intention of the present administration, in event of adoption of the standard ordinance, he added, to employ these experienced inspectors. He suggested enlargement of the force and pay increases.

Priest's Plea for Measure

The Rev. W. F. Mullaly, pastor of St. Mary Magdalen Catholic Church, defended the degrading provision and the 4-cent tax and submitted Weather Bureau statistics to support his contention that 200,000 bacteria count for raw milk was a reasonable requirement. He asked that the aldermanic committee "not betray us by compromise." Other speakers in behalf of the ordinance were: Prof. Ralph S. Fuchs of Washington University Law School, Dr. Joseph M. Klamon of Washington University, Ralph Ferdinand M. Jasserman of Temple Israel and Health Commissioner Joseph F. Bredeck.

Argument Against Law

Edward W. Tiedemann, president of the Sanitary Milk Producers, cooperative which produces about 75 per cent of the milk sold in St. Louis, told the committee that the suggestion by producers that they and distributors voluntarily contribute to the inspection fund two years ago was evidence that his organization was eager to insure a healthful milk supply.

"The present ordinance has proved its usefulness and we can see no reason for junking it for one which is untried and which we know will increase the cost of production appreciably," he said. "To meet the requirement of a maximum 200,000 bacteria count, farmers in summer months must have mechanical refrigeration or ice to prevent rapid growth of bacteria. Mechanical refrigeration would cost at least $400."

"Of the producers on the St. Louis market, about 60 per cent are tenant farmers. They cannot afford to make these improvements. The standard ordinance would put half these men out of business. But I don't doubt there would be a sufficient supply of milk. However, the consumer would have to pay a much higher price."

"If you want milk of a low bacteria count, you can get it now," Tiedemann continued. "But it costs you 3-cents more a quart. St. Louis is getting a good, safe milk now but we can give you a gold-plated milk if the public wants it and is willing to pay for it."

Submits Dairy Experts' Letters. Tiedemann left with the committee letters from dairy experts at the Universities of Missouri and Illinois stating that it would not be possible for farmers to meet the 200,000 bacteria count requirement without ice or refrigeration during the hot summer months. He added that while the figure of 200,000 was required as an average over the year, including winter as well as summer, it was unfair to lead the consumer to believe that he would obtain a milk of low bacteria count under the ordinance the year round. Milton F. Mueller, Highland, Ill., president of the Square Deal Milk Producers' Association, another cooperative said producers could not afford the investment which the standard ordinance would make necessary.

Reports $75 Robbery

Robert McAlone, 361A Maryland avenue, reported to police that he was robbed of $75 by two drinking companions who took the money from him in an alley near Boyle and McPherson avenues at 8:15 p. m. yesterday. He said he bought drinks for the men, whom he knew as "Bob" and "Charley." They accompanied him to a second saloon and were on their way to a third drinking establishment when they seized him in the alley and took his money, McAlone said. The men ran away.

DANGER ADMITS HE WROTE TEN EXTORTION LETTERS

Pleads Guilty in New York, but Sentence Is Deferred Pending
Further Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Frank Vitolo, acrobatic dancer and former vaudeville performer, pleaded guilty in Federal Court yesterday to an indictment charging him with sending threatening letters to Harry Sinclair, Mrs. George Horace Lorimer and eight other persons in an attempt to extort money.

Judge Francis G. Caffey deferred sentence until Nov. 23 after instructing Chief Probation Officer E. Fred Sweet to make a thorough investigation of the case. The dancer, whose wife is an expectant mother, said he had written the letters in desperation because he was without a job and needed money.

Other recipients of letters are: Col. Douglas I. McKay, William R. Coe and Mrs. George E. Smith of New York; Robert E. Montgomery of Miami, Fla.; Mrs. William Fine and Mrs. David E. K. Bruce of Yonkers, N. Y.; Mrs. Alexander H. Rice of Newport, R. I., and Robert Owen Foster of Minneapolis.

Mrs. Vitolo was in court, but withdrew on Judge Caffey's suggestion while he questioned her husband.

BOND DOES IT AGAIN!

STAY SMOOTH SHIRTS
nationally sold at $1.95

Most special events shout about price and whisper about Quality. We believe that's bad business! True, the savings you're due to get here aren't to be sneezed at. But the wearable features of these grand shirts are far more important. "Stay Smooth" headlines a new collar that's as smart and neat as the old starched kind, but as comfortable as soft linen. No wrinkles, no wilting—and no rough saw-edges! What's more you get a full year's guarantee against fading and shrinking. Every shirt is stamped with the date of purchase. If anything goes wrong, you get a new shirt! Let your taste run riot when it comes to color and pattern—all this season's best sellers are represented. And pocket a neat saving of 20%—one swell reason why you should stock up, today or tomorrow!

Get set for Bond's Overcoat Parade

It starts today!

We do this once a year! And it's always a crowd-getter. The reason is simple. Instead of waiting until the winter is over to place a magnetic price on our overcoats, we do it before the cold weather starts. A square deal for you—good business for us! ★ We haven't nearly enough room here to detail a complete lineup for this year's Overcoat Parade. You'll just have to come and see it! But we can tell you that practically all of America's most prized fabrics are included—that every coat has been tailored by hand in our new Rochester plant—and that our Overcoat Parade prices are all of $10 lower than is usual for such quality. If you need a new overcoat, this is the week to get it.

74 ARE INDICTED ON SLOT MACHINE CHARGES IN CITY

Operators of Pin Ball Games and Baffle Boards Included—One True Bill Alleges Handling Bet.

Seventy-five gambling indictments, a record for one day's work, were voted by the grand jury yesterday in a four-hour session, from 1 to 5 p. m.

One charged Allyn Roberts, arrested last March at 1008 McCausland avenue, with custodianship of a bet and the others were for setting up gaming devices, such as slot machines and pin-ball and baffle boards. Of the 74 indictments, 43 were against persons arrested in taverns, 23 against persons arrested in restaurants, four against persons taken in custody in drug stores, two against men arrested in cigar stores and two against men taken in custody in other establishments.

A total of 121 gambling cases were ready for presentation, but the grand jury, unusually busy with the election fraud investigation, had time to consider only 76. The large number of cases had accumulated because of a police campaign against gambling and because the preceding grand jury was occupied at the end of its term with investigation of the registration frauds. Maximum penalty on conviction of either of the two charges is imprisonment from two to five years. Customarily, however, persons pleading guilty are fined $50 for a first offense of setting up a gaming device and $250 for a first offense of custodianship of a bet.

Gaming Device Indictments. Those indicted on charges of setting up gaming devices and the places where they were arrested follow:

STUDENT RIOTS IN POLAND

Classes Suspended at One University; 10 Jews Injured.

By the Associated Press. WILNO, Poland, Nov. 13.—Anti-Jewish demonstrations by Polish students resulted today in suspension of classes in Wilno University after 10 Jewish students had been severely injured.

The Warsaw Academy of Commerce, where men and women students barricaded themselves Oct. 27 to defy police efforts to subdue an anti-Jewish demonstration, remained closed. Minor riots continued at Lwow University which, authoritative sources said, probably would be closed.

MAYOR FROM FRANCE PRAISES CITY'S ZOO

Dr. Jean Delacour, Naturalist and Traveler, Particularly Pleased With Bird House.

By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
DR. JEAN DELACOUR.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S WOMANLY CRITICISM OF HOUSING JOB

Only Male Designer Would Have Put Coal Bin in Laundry Room, She Says.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 12.—Visiting the $8,000,000 Resettlement Administration project here, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt deplored the designers' failure to seek feminine counsel.

In Milwaukee on a lecture tour, she told the planning engineers and project officials yesterday that coal bins and laundry tubs should not be in the same room, and the men nodded solemnly as she continued.

"It simply proves what I always say, that a man should have a woman at his elbow when he's planning these things. A woman would have seen that right away because she's the one who does the washing."

Mrs. Roosevelt said, however, Milwaukee's Greendale project was one of the finest she had seen. "In fact, it's absolutely wonderful, and I'll tell Rex (Tugwell) when I get back to Washington what a grand job you're doing here," she remarked.

Canada Buys Two Destroyers.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced last night Canada is buying two modern destroyers from Great Britain to replace the obsolete "Champlain" and "Vancouver."

Dr. Jean Delacour, Mayor of Rouen, France, naturalist, world traveler, and a member of the governing boards of three of Europe's largest zoological gardens, visited the St. Louis Zoo yesterday, after which he said it was one of the most attractive he ever had seen.

On a rapid airplane trip of the United States and Central America, he came here from Chicago, was entertained at luncheon by Zoo Director George P. Vierheller and Mayor Dickmann, and departed last night for San Francisco.

What especially pleased Dr. Delacour at the zoo was the bird house. He has been collecting birds since he was five years old and now, according to Vierheller, has one of the finest private collections in the world. His specialty is pheasants. The way in which the birds at the St. Louis Zoo were displayed was very fine, he thought, and the collection of hummingbird and sugar birds in their warm glass-enclosed cages was the best in the world.

Immediately after luncheon Dr. Delacour went with Vierheller to preview a movie short called "The Chimp Champs," which has been made with the chimpanzees at the Zoo as the principal actors. There is a prologue by Grantland Rice, the sports writer, and Frank Buck, the wild animal dealer, and the announcing is done by Ted Husing, the radio commentator.

The stars are Sammy and Billy, the hardest-working chimps this side of Africa. They engage in a four-round boxing match in which there is more hard punching, free swinging, clubbing, clowning, dirty tactics, humor and general good feeling than in a month of professional or amateur bouts between human beings.

Sammy—or is it Billy?—finally wins when his opponent takes a dive. But the outcome makes little difference. It's the way in which they throw each other out of the ring, or beat each other mercilessly about the ears, or the sly look on Sammy—or is it Billy?—after he has taken the dive that counts.

Dr. Delacour, as did all the previewers, liked the picture immensely. Then he went back to the zoo to look over the new hoofed animal pits which are nearing completion. He has a large collection of hoofed animals on his estate.

Unmarried and 46 years old, Dr. Delacour has so many avocations that he constantly complains that life is too short to do everything he wants. He is on the Paris, London and Rome zoo governing boards. He loaded himself up with pictures and folders on the St. Louis Zoo to show to his colleagues in Europe.

ARKANSAS GOVERNOR-ELECT SPEAKS AT RACQUET CLUB

Carl E. Bailey, Once Shoe Factory Worker in City; Outlines Road Bond Refinancing.

Governor-elect Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas, a native of Stoddard County, Mo., who worked in a St. Louis shoe factory when a youth, discussed the program of his administration at the Racquet Club last night at a dinner of local business men, bond brokers and bankers with interests in Arkansas. He is completing a two-year term as Attorney-General of Arkansas.

One of the major objectives is refinancing of his State's $38,000,000 of road and bridge bonds at lower interest rates. If the rate, now varying between 4% and 5 per cent can be reduced to 3½ per cent, Arkansas will effect a total eventual saving of about $32,000,000, according to Bailey.

Other objectives of his administration include electrification of farms, improvement of conditions affecting tenant farmers, betterment of the State prison system and legislation to place most State employees under civil service. In his campaign, Bailey advocated a measure simplifying criminal procedure, which was approved by voters Nov. 3.

FOUNDER OF GIDEON SOCIETY BURIED AT BELOIT, WIS.

He and Another Traveling Man Planned Organization at Chance Meeting 38 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.
BELOIT, Wis., Nov. 13.—Samuel E. Hill, 68 years old, one of the two traveling salesmen who planned the Gideon Society in a Wisconsin hotel room 38 years ago, was buried yesterday. He died here Monday of heart disease.

The other man was John H. Nicholson, who first met Hill in 1898 at the Central House, in Roscoe, Wis. Nicholson was told by the clerk there was no room, but he might share Hill's room for the night. Before retiring Nicholson took a Bible from his grip and told Hill it was his custom to read it every night.

"I too am a Christian," Hill answered. "Let's have our devotions together."

They knelt in prayer, read the fifteenth chapter of St. John, and the Gideon Society had its inception. The next summer, 30 traveling men were invited to a meeting at which organization was completed. Nine years later the society set a goal of placing a Bible in every hotel room in the United States and Canada.

TRAVELERS' SOCIETY HEARING

Group Cited to Show Why Fraud Order Shouldn't Be Issued.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Hearing on a citation of the National Commercial Travelers' Association, and H. R. De Lave, its president, to show why a fraud order should not be issued was begun yesterday before an Assistant Solicitor of the Postoffice Department.

The citation issued Oct. 6, charged the association and De Lave with "obtaining and attempting to obtain various remittances of money through the mails" from operators of rooming houses, hotels and inns as balances alleged to be due on "so-called applications for membership service." O. C. H. Willard, St. Louis Postoffice Inspector, the first witness, presented numerous statements from persons who had taken out memberships in the association.

DEER HUNTER FROZEN TO DEATH

Body of Denver Man Found on Mountain.

By the Associated Press.
CRAIG, Colo., Nov. 13.—The frozen body of L. O. M. Lucero, Denver court reporter missing four weeks, was brought down from Cold Spring Mountain yesterday.

Sheriff George Krieger said Lucero evidently had died of exposure and exhaustion after he was caught in a blizzard while hunting deer. Arthur Sparks, a rancher, found the body.

Mishawaka Co. Raises Pay of 4000.

By the Associated Press.
MISHAWAKA, Ind., Nov. 13.—Effective Nov. 23 nearly 4000 factory employees of the Mishawaka Rubber & Woolen Manufacturing Co. here will receive a wage increase ranging from 5 to 10 per cent, the company announces. Anticipation of a higher degree of prosperity next year was given as the reason.

REPORT SAYS BOOTLEGGERS ARE HIGHLY ORGANIZED

Institute of Public Administration, in Two-Year Survey, Urges More Enforcement Agents.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Asserting the bootlegging business "is as highly organized since repeal as it was during prohibition," the Institute of Public Administration, tonight called for an enlargement of law enforcement agencies. The institute, announcing the first of a series of conclusions based on a two-year study of the liquor problem, estimated 40,000,000 gallons of untaxed liquor were produced in 1935 as compared with the withdrawal of $2,816,000 gallons of tax-paid spirits.

As an alternative method of discouraging bootleggers the report suggested a substantial reduction in liquor taxes, but said: "It is not likely that with their present need of revenue governments will move toward this reduction."

Wholesale Prices Advance 0.1 Per Cent.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday that wholesale commodity prices advanced 0.1 per cent during the week ended Nov. 7. The all-commodity index for the week stood at 81.3 per cent of the 1926 average. The bureau said the current level of wholesale prices is also 0.1 per cent higher than at the same time a month ago and 1.8 per cent higher than for the corresponding week of last year. Market prices of farm products advanced 0.4 per cent during the week, as did wholesale food prices.

Chrysanthemum Show at Jewel Box

THE new building in Forest Park will be open to the public following dedication by Mayor Dickmann tomorrow.

KILLED AS HE CROSSES ROAD TO GET ON BUS

Frank M. Dallmeyer, 73, Hit by Auto Near Festus—Coroner's Verdict: Accident.

Frank M. Dallmeyer, 73-year-old machinist, 4534 Clarence avenue, was killed last night when struck by an automobile as he was crossing a Jefferson County highway near Festus to board a bus for St. Louis.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned. The driver, Leslie Church of Crystal City, testified that Dallmeyer walked into the path of his car at the intersection of Highway 41 and the Festus-Crystal City road.

Dallmeyer had been in Festus yesterday, repairing the equipment of a shoe shop. He had been engaged in shoe machinery repair work since 1925, when he retired as head machinist of the Champion Shoe Machinery Co.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Hermann mortuary, 2161 East Fair avenue, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

MISSING MISSOURIAN FOUND

Phones From Louisiana That He Forgot After Taking Drink.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Nov. 13.—J. H. Hinderleider of Cape Girardeau, Mo., contractor, sought since his abandoned truck was found here Sunday, offered an explanation yesterday in a telephone conversation from Benton, La.

Louisiana officers found Hinderleider Sunday walking along a highway with another man and took him to Benton. Hinderleider said an unidentified man came into his office Nov. 3 and asked him to haul a stove to Kennett, Mo. "He gave me a drink from a bottle and I don't remember anything else," Hinderleider said.

Delmar Bus Line Extended

A three-block westward extension of the Public Service Co.'s Delmar bus line was approved yesterday by the University City Board of Aldermen. The terminus will be moved from Donne avenue, which is a short distance west of North and South boulevard, to Center, drive, 8000 west. The company announced the change, made because of growing population in the vicinity and hazards of a Y movement for turning buses at Donne, would be made Monday.

NEW JEWEL BOX BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED TOMORROW

3000 Chrysanthemum Plants in 150 Varieties to Be Displayed.

More than 3000 chrysanthemum plants in 150 varieties have been arranged in a formal Chinese garden design at the new Jewel Box floral conservatory in Forest Park for the dedication of the building, which will take place at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Mayor Dickmann will officiate at the ceremony.

The centerpiece of the display is a pool set in a rock garden with a waterfall and miniature foot bridge. Walks wind around beds of multi-colored chrysanthemums, including the large single-stemmed varieties, the bush type, singles, the azalea form, and basket chrysanthemums with smaller flowers.

Erected at a cost of $120,000, the new conservatory is of original design, with features for control of light intensity. After tomorrow the Jewel Box will be open daily and Sunday to the public from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

The chrysanthemum show will continue through the first week in December and will be followed by the annual Christmas poinsettia display. The floral exhibits are grown in the Park Department greenhouses in Forest Park.

Guard Hails Two Fleeing Convicts.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 13.—Two Ohio State penitentiary prisoners, one of them carrying a wooden pistol, attempted to scale the prison walls early today, but were halted by an alert ground guard. They were Herbert Colowat, 19 years old, convicted of second degree murder, and William Corbett, 19, serving a term for robbery. Warden James Woodard said the men, taking advantage of a heavy fog, had reached the outer walls when they were halted.

Democrat in Philadelphia Council.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Nov. 13.—A $50,000 fire swept through the plant of the Egyptian Iron Works here late Monday night, burning it to the ground and destroying everything except the patterns department. The foundry produced mine supplies and iron supplies for streets and roads, and had been doing a heavy business since last February. Only about $5000 of the investment was covered by insurance.

MAYOR TO CONFER WITH LEGISLATORS

Hopes to Obtain State Relief Funds and Share of Gasoline Tax Funds.

Mayor Dickmann said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that within the next few weeks he would call a meeting of the St. Louis members of the State Legislature to discuss a legislative program to obtain relief funds for St. Louis, passage of a permanent registration bill, and a measure designed to permit St. Louis to share in the distribution of State gasoline tax funds for the maintenance of St. Louis streets which are part of the State highway system.

The Mayor said he believed that provision of relief funds was primarily a State problem and was hopeful that St. Louis might obtain sufficient sales-tax funds or money from other State sources to carry the relief load through the winter and spring. As has been told, the $500,000 balance in city relief bond-issue funds has already been appropriated and most of it will be exhausted by Dec. 1. The Mayor was unable to say how much would be left after Dec. 1, but he was hopeful that it would be sufficient to cover local relief needs until the first of the year.

Former Bill Killed.
A permanent registration bill for St. Louis has been advocated for several years by civic organizations such as the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the St. Louis League of Women Voters, and such a bill was introduced in the 1935 session of the Legislature. It was killed in committee, being opposed by James A. Waechter, then chairman of the St. Louis Election Board, and Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee and the city administration's legislative agent.

The Mayor first announced his support of permanent registration last summer following exposure by the Post-Dispatch of frauds in the June 18 supplementary registration, and appointed a committee, including Hannegan and Fred W. Pape, Republican City Committee chairman, to draft a bill. Work has been delayed several weeks by the illness of City Counselor E. H. Wayman, a member of the committee, but the Mayor said today a tentative draft of the measure might be ready next week.

Under Discussion for Years.
The proposal to allot some of the State gasoline tax funds to St. Louis for maintenance of local streets which are part of the State highway system has been under discussion for several years and has been advocated by the present and previous city administrations without success as far as action by the Legislature has been concerned.

Recently, it was suggested that the Legislature might increase the present rate of 2 cents a gallon, the increase to be effective after 1938, and turn back part of the increased rate to counties and cities. Gun Vailkamp, attorney for the Automobile Club of Missouri, said in his opinion that the Legislature would have no authority to provide for any use of an increased tax other than for the State road fund.

The entire St. Louis legislative delegation of 25 members, including the 19 State Representatives and three State Senators elected Nov. 3, is Democratic, as was the case in the 1935 session.

NEGRO CONFESSES BURGLARIES; OWNERS IDENTIFY WATCHES

Fyious Jennings Shot at When Woman Found Him Trying to Enter House.
A Negro arrested yesterday confessed 10 burglaries, police announced, after two watches found in his room at 3420 Lawton boulevard were identified by the owners. He was booked as Fyious Jennings, 25 years old. One watch was stolen last June 6 from the home of Mrs. Mary Cleary, 17 North Spring avenue, who was awakened by a burglar. The second watch was taken last Saturday from the home of Isadore Kolodny, 4026 Lindell boulevard. Kolodny chased the thief out of the house.

The prisoner also admitted he was the man at whom Mrs. Jesse Neville fired two revolvers when he discovered him trying to break into her home, 3818 Evans avenue, at 2 a. m. on Nov. 1.

PWA CLERK FOUND INJURED ON ROAD NEAR HIS AUTO

Claude Waldron Presumed to Have Been Struck by Car While Fixing Flat Tire.
Claude Waldron, 48 years old, a clerk employed by the PWA, was taken to County Hospital early today with fractures of the skull and leg, suffered, it was believed, when he was struck by an automobile, the driver of which failed to stop. Waldron, residing at 5049 Miner-va avenue, was found at 4:30 a. m. lying near his automobile in St. Charles road, a quarter of a mile east of Carson road. There was a flat tire on his machine, and officers believe he was struck by an automobile while making repairs. He was taken to the hospital by a deputy constable.

General Labor Organization to Call Meeting of Experts.
By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Nov. 13.—The governing body of the International Labor Organization decided last night to convene an international experts' commission to examine methods of fighting silicosis.

The action was taken on recommendations of George S. Meany, president of the New York Federation of Labor, and Walter Riddell, Canada's permanent representative at Geneva.

Injured When Ship Pitches in Storm.
By the Associated Press.
CHERBOURG, France, Nov. 13.—Twelve passengers on the liner Europa were injured when the ship pitched in the Atlantic storm Nov. 10, it was disclosed when the vessel docked yesterday. One of those injured, the Countess Lehnardt, was taken to a hospital for an emergency operation.

The same storm cost the life of Frank Coffin of Pawtucket, R. I., who was fatally injured on board the liner Queen Mary, which docked at Southampton Wednesday.

Governor of Rome Shifted.
By the Associated Press.
ROME, Nov. 13.—Maj. Giuseppe Bottai, governor of Rome, was named Minister of Education yesterday in one of Premier Mussolini's so-called "changes of the guard."

Bottai for a time was governor of Addis Ababa after the Italian conquest of Ethiopia. Cesare Maria de Vecchi, governor of Italian Somaliland, was named governor of Italy's islands in the Aegean Sea.

Woman Killed, Man Wounded.
SEYMOUR, Ind., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Pearl B. Humphrey, about 30 years old, was found shot to death in bed here yesterday and Walter Hargrove, a used car salesman, was found seriously wounded in the woman's apartment.

MISSING CHICAGO MERCHANT FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN AUTO

Police Suspect Murder Although Pistol Was Clutched In Man's Hand.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Missing since Monday, Louis Kruglick, 36 years old, merchant, was found shot to death in his parked automobile on the northwestern edge of the city yesterday.

Because of the unnatural position in which the victim's hands clutched a revolver, from which a single shot had been fired, police said they were investigating to determine whether the death was suicide or murder.

Detectives said Kruglick's wife, Fay, said her husband disappeared Monday morning after leaving home for his place of business. She said she did not report the disappearance to police because her husband often left the city on short trips of two or three days. Mrs. Kruglick said her husband carried a large amount of cash when he left his home. The pockets of the dead man contained but $2, Merrill said.

Record Arkansas U. Enrollment. Special to the Post-Dispatch. FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 13.—Registration of students for the present semester in the University of Arkansas has reached an all-time high of 2013 according to an announcement from the office of the university president. The university training high school, which is used as a laboratory for the training of teachers, has an enrollment of 176, bringing registration to 2189. There are 306 students registered in the School of Medicine at Little Rock.

TESTIFIES SHE SAW HUSBAND AND MRS. CLARK IN APARTMENT

Wife, Suing Widow for $150,000, Tells of Peeping in Window of Los Angeles Building.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Christine Fitzpatrick testified yesterday that she once peeped through the window of an apartment here and saw her husband and Mrs. Thelma Clark, wealthy widow, in each other's arms.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, who asks for $150,000 damages from Mrs. Clark on the ground she stole the love of her husband, Michael Fitzpatrick, a purser, said she accompanied detectives to the apartment July 16. On cross-examination, counsel for Mrs. Clark tried to show that Mrs. Clark had nothing to do with the breaking up of the Fitzpatricks. Mrs. Fitzpatrick was asked if her husband was not angry with her for making an automobile trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles with another man.

"Didn't your husband tell you he didn't want anything to do with you and for you to go back on the bus?" she was asked.

"No, he didn't," she said, but added that he was provoked.

Mrs. Clark is the widow of the grandson of the late William A. Clark, Montana Senator and copper mine owner.

WORLD LABOR BODY ACCEPTS TEXTILE MEETING INVITATION

British, Replying to American Proposal, Refers to "Immense Prestige" of Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, Nov. 13.—Delegates to the international labor organization accepted today an invitation from President Roosevelt for an international textile conference in Washington next spring.

The conference probably will be held in April, and will discuss the 40-hour week, working conditions and customs problems.

All countries desiring to attend will be invited; probably 22, including Germany. Delegates will represent governments, employers and workers.

The invitation was presented by Carter Goodrich, United States Labor Commissioner at Geneva. Fredric Leggett, British representative, in summarizing the speeches of acceptance, declared President Roosevelt possessed "immense prestige" and added: "I am convinced a 40-hour week for textiles is coming, but it requires the co-operation of employers and workers."

WOMAN FOUND DEAD NEAR MOUNTAIN CABIN

California Forest Rangers Say Rolling Boulder May Have Hit Her.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—The body of Mrs. Margaret F. Walker, 48 years old, was found near a mountain cabin yesterday. A blood-stained ax was near.

Forest rangers looked for two men reported seen by the woman's husband, Henry Clay Walker, 54. Walker said he noticed the men in Pine Canyon, near the cabin, while gathering firewood, and on his return, found his wife dead, the back of her head crushed.

There was a possibility, rangers said, that Mrs. Walker had been struck by a boulder tumbling down the mountainside.

TEACHER WHO SAVED PUPILS IN TORNADO GETS MEDAL

Miss Pauline Rader and Two Veteran Educators Receive First Missouri Teachers' Awards.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 13.—Two veteran educators and a young woman teacher received the first three medals for distinguished service to Missouri education awarded by the Missouri State Teachers' Association last night.

The recipients were Dr. John R. Kirk, 85 years old, president-emeritus of the Northeast Missouri State Teachers' College, Kirksville; William T. Carrington, 82, of Jefferson City, former State superintendent of schools, and Miss Pauline Rader, 24, of Niangua, heroine of a tornado last March.

W. W. Parker of Cape Girardeau, president of the Teachers' Association, presented the medals. He said not more than five awards would be made annually hereafter.

Miss Rader was in the Kilburn School House in Webster County last March 23 when a terrific windstorm struck the community. Just as the tornado was about to strike she instructed her 16 pupils, the oldest 12 years, to run into the schoolyard and lie flat on the ground, faces down. A few minutes after the children and Miss Rader left the building, the wind demolished it. Four persons in the community were killed.

Postoffice. The package was addressed to the "St. Mercie Hospital, San Francisco," bore 81 cents postage and probably originated in Illinois. There is no St. Mercie Hospital in San Francisco.

MISSOURI LIQUOR SUPERVISOR DROPS CHARGE AGAINST FOUR

Takes Under Advisement Case of Man Accused of Operating With Inadequate Stock.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 13.—E. J. Becker, State liquor control supervisor, dismissed four cases against liquor dealers today and took another under advisement.

Cases dismissed were against Maurine Wall of Milan, Mo., for selling on Sunday; Joe Smith Beverage Co. of Joplin for selling intoxicating liquor to 3.2 per cent beer dealers; J. C. Brown of Pineville for selling intoxicating liquor on a 3.2 permit; and Hugh Proctor of Southwest City, also charged with selling intoxicants on a 3.2 permit. Becker took under advisement a case charging H. K. Stephens of Branson, Mo., with operating with an inadequate stock as required by State law.

LONDON SAYS MINORITY WON'T BE ABANDONED

Discusses Plans With Hamilton to Continue Republican Organization.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13.—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, defeated Republican presidential nominee, pledged his party last night to a program of active work in the between-campaigns period. Asserting that "the country needs an active, intelligent, and militant minority," the Governor promised that all who joined in the campaign headed "will not be abandoned."

The titular head of the party came to Kansas City by train for a conference with John D. M. Hamilton, Republican National Chairman, specifically on the subject of the party's future. After the conference he made the following statement:

"Under the American system of government the country needs an intelligent, constructive and militant minority. Our discussions today have been directed to that end."

"This means the continuation of an active national headquarters that will be able to furnish the people of this country with a fair statement of facts. It means intelligent assistance to the Republican members of the United States Congress and of more importance, the stimulation of the details of party organization."

"No man or woman who has assumed a position of leadership in the campaign just ended can fail to realize the deep obligation due to the more than 16,000,000 Americans who voted their convictions."

"I have expressed to Mr. Hamilton my deep appreciation not only to the members of the Republican organization, but to all of those who joined in the common cause. They will not be abandoned."

Gov. Landon said before the conference "This last campaign has demonstrated that you can't build an effective organization in just four months."

Gov. Landon returned to Topeka and Hamilton flew back to Chicago.

WOMAN SAYS STORY SHE TOOK BABY FROM A DOG IS HOAX

Wife of Louisiana WPA Worker Tells Officers Infant Is Ours by Another Man.

PEARL RIVER, La., Nov. 13.—Her story of snatching an infant boy, wrapped in a blanket, from the mouth of a dog in the woods near her cabin was repudiated last night by Mrs. Louis E. Crawford.

The 24-year-old wife of a WPA laborer, 20 years older than she, told Deputy Sheriff Clarence Crawford of St. Tammany Parish, a distant relative of her husband, that the baby was her own and that she fabricated her previous story, the officer reported. Mrs. Crawford said the baby's father was a black woodsman whom she "no longer loves."

Her husband asserted, after relating to a reporter that he was apprised by his wife of the circumstances of the case, that he "loves Effie" and will stand by her. The baby was said by physicians at New Orleans, where it was taken by a welfare officer, to be eight days old but declared by her to have been born Sunday night.

Mrs. Crawford told a reporter that she hid the infant for two days from her husband. "My husband said he was 'suspicious' of the dog story and that his wife told him yesterday afternoon her original report was not true. The child is in the Charity Hospital at New Orleans recovering from a slight attack of pneumonia."

MAN WHO ESCAPED 8 HOURS BEFORE PAROLE IS CAPTURED

Prisoner Who Fleed From Iowa Reformatory in 1934 Held in Denver.

By the Associated Press. DENVER, Colo., Nov. 13.—Christian Sorensen, 27 years old, who, police say, admitted fleeing from the Iowa Men's Reformatory in August, 1934, eight hours before he was to have been paroled, prepared today to fight extradition. An officer has started from the Anamosa (Ia.) institution to return him.

Denver detectives arrested Sorensen at the request of the Anamosa Wardens. They said he had been working, had married and had no record here.

Sorensen was serving a 10-year sentence for burglary in the Iowa prison. Denver detectives said he admitted escaping. The parole order was on the Warden's desk the night of the escape, to be delivered to Sorensen the next morning. He had been imprisoned three years.

He married here March 15, 1935. His wife said she would ask Gov. Ed C. Johnson to deny extradition. Sorensen at first signed a waiver for extradition, but later decided to fight the case.

M. E. ANTI-LIQUOR CAMPAIGN

Bishops Plan It Because of Increase in Drinking.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 13.—The Methodist Episcopal Board of Bishops prepared today an educational campaign against drinking. The bishops said it was necessary because of the increase in drinking. The senior bishop, Edwin Holt Hughes of Washington, D. C., suggested a return "to good old-fashioned pledge-signing."

RATE CUT CONFISCATORY, SAYS UTILITY AT SPRINGFIELD, MO.

Rehearing Sought on Commission's Order to Reduce Electric Charges $315,000 Per Year.

By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 13.—Declaring that an electric rate reduction of $315,000 annually would "confiscate its property," the Springfield Gas & Light Co. asked the State Public Service Commission yesterday for a rehearing on the commission's Oct. 23 order.

In addition to authorizing the cut in rates, the utility regulating body here approved the replacement of street cars in Springfield by trolley and motor busses, and ordered several changes in the financial setup of the company.

The company did not suggest any figure as a reasonable reduction. The $315,000 reduction, it contended, would "constitute a wrongful taking of their property without due process of law."

In its application for rehearing, the company charged that reducing the reasonable rate of return from 7 per cent to 6 1/2 per cent is "unreasonable and confiscatory." The company also asserted it would be impossible for it to obtain the $100,000 required for investment in the bus transportation system unless a reasonable return on that amount is assured.

DR. MIDDLEBUSH ON TRIP GOING TO OKLAHOMA, TEXAS; OTHER FACULTY MEMBERS AWAY.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 13.—Fredrick A. Middlebush, president of Missouri University, will speak at an alumni meeting at Oklahoma City this evening. He will continue to Houston, Tex., where next week he will attend a meeting of land grant colleges and another alumni dinner in his honor. Frank L. Martin, dean of the School of Journalism, left with three faculty members for St. Louis today to attend the annual meeting of the Missouri Press Association. M. E. Miller, acting dean of the Missouri College of Agriculture, and F. Ellis Johnson, dean of the School of Engineering, with three other faculty members, will attend the meeting at Houston.

FARM SYSTEM TO BE BUILT UP FOR THE BROWNS BY DEWITT

New Owners Likely To Offer Compromise Contract to Hornsby

Manager's Agreement Calls for Increase in Salary and Cancellation of Profits Percentage Clause in Event of Sale of Club; Conference to Be Held Soon.

By J. Roy Stockton.

One of the first tasks confronting Bill DeWitt, general manager-to-be of the new Browns, will be the organization of a farm system similar to that which has enabled the Cardinals to take a commanding position in the baseball world.

"It is too late to buy players from the minor leagues for the 1937 season," DeWitt explained during the return trip from Chicago, after the American League had approved the sale of the Browns to the group headed by Donald L. Barnes yesterday. "Our only chance to get help for the next pennant race will be in the major leagues. And that isn't going to do us much good, because major league clubs don't relinquish players of outstanding ability. However, we'll have to get along as best we can, meantime keeping an eye on the market for possible trades."

What were prospects of a farm system? Were there and minor league clubs left with which the new Browns could arrange working agreements?

"Much help in the minors," the reply. "As to the farm system, I have definite ideas about what we ought to do, and I think Mr. Barnes, who will be president of the club, agrees with me. We will have to get together, after we get through with the purchase details, and formulate a policy to guide us. But there are many clubs in the small minors with which we can work, and thereby help ourselves and also the minor leagues."

"The Browns' farm system, as we will find it when we take over the club, if there is no hitch, includes as a farm system only the San Antonio club and optional arrangements with two small league clubs."

As soon as is convenient, Barnes and DeWitt plan to confer with Rogers Hornsby, who is now manager of the team has two more years to run. The contract calls for a salary of $18,333 a year and 25 per cent of any profits, but contains a clause providing for an increase in salary and cancellation of the profits provision, in case the club should change hands. A compromise probably will be suggested to Hornsby. Barnes said he saw no reason why Hornsby would not remain as manager and it is known that DeWitt considers the Rajah as one of the club's assets.

A Little Red Tape, and Then—Only a few strands of red tape remain to be cut before ownership of the Browns can be transferred.

Four or Five Stockholders Will Have Control of New Organization

While the list of owners, which has a distinct soured club flavor, seems to be rather cumbersome, it was explained that control would be vested in about four or five members. The principal stockholders are Barnes, DeWitt, Francis, McCluney and Curtis, and members of the "ret-acquainted" committee, which were devoted to greet and be greeted by the other American League owners, laughed at the idea that cross-currents of opinion could interfere with smooth functioning of the set-up. It was announced that other St. Louisans who are interested in the development and future of the club would be invited to join the group. The purchase price was announced as $250,000, and additional stock, already subscribed or spoken for, will give the new Browns a working capital of $175,000 for current expenses and the purchase of players.

About Four Night Games.

Much of the three-hour session at the Palmer House in Chicago yesterday was devoted to night baseball. While no other club owners contemplate installation of lighting plants, they agreed that the Browns should be given all possible help in their competition with the Cardinals. It was explained that Sam Brendon was planning to install a lighting system and play a limited number of night games next season and the Browns were authorized to confer with the owners of Sportsman's Park and with Sam Brendon, to reach an agreement scheduling a limited number of games for each St. Louis club. It was stated that the agreement is reached it will be recommended to the American League for approval, probably at the December meeting in New York.

The American League owners who attended the meeting yesterday indicated that they would approve an arrangement calling for four night games for the Browns and an equal number for the Cardinals. It was feared that 14 games in one city would be too many, experience having taught baseball operators that night games were more profitable if they were kept in the novelty class.

Radio Discussed by Owners. After disposing of the Browns and night baseball, the American League owners turned to discussion of radio broadcasting. There is no thought of prohibiting the broadcasting of major league games, but

Cubs May Bid for Outfielder Berger

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The word still hangs high over the heads of all Chicago Cubs.

Manager Charlie Grimm said today as he conferred with Owner P. K. Wrigley over possible trades this winter to strengthen the team which won the pennant in 1935, then skidded badly from the top last season. Every member of the team, Grimm said, is subject to trades which would improve the outfit.

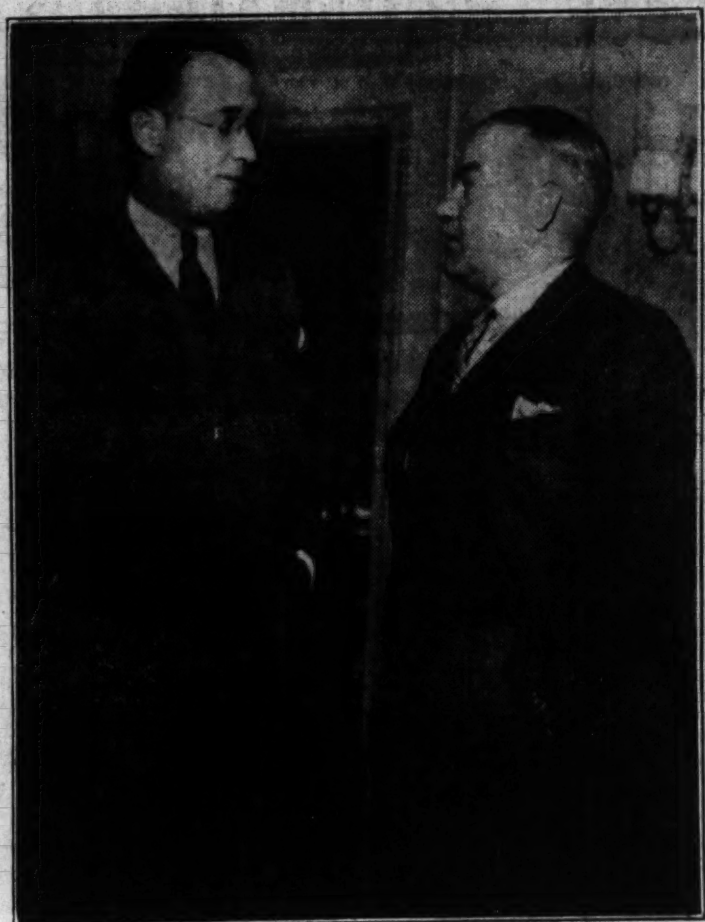

Particularly, Grimm would like a hard-hitting outfielder, and intimated efforts will be made to land Wally Berger of the Boston Bees or Hank Leiber of the New York Giants. A third baseman such as Lew Riggs of Cincinnati also would be welcomed, the manager said.

from the Ball estate to the group headed by Barnes. Louis B. von Weise and Miss Ella Jacoby, executives, will ask the Probate Court to approve the sale and when approval is granted, the sale will be consummated.

Barnes, as has been told, will be president; DeWitt vice-president and general manager, and Samuel C. McCluney, of McCluney & Co., investment bankers, will be elected treasurer. The board of directors will include a secretary and the management will select an assistant treasurer and a traveling secretary. DeWitt intimated that few changes would be made in the present office personnel of the Browns.

Others interested in the purchase of the club include Talton T. Francis, Frank Rand, Andrew Johnson, Bradford Shinkle, Howard Lindsey, James R. Kearney Sr., George C. Foster, Edward Magnus, Herbert Walke, Anthony A. Buford, Walter C. Haussler, W. N. Sifton, Thomas S. McPheeters, Rhodes E. Cave and former Senator George H. Williams, all of St. Louis, and Alonzo G. Curtis of Grand Rapids, Mich., a business associate of Barnes.

They'll "Take Over" Soon

Ability of Myer to Come Back Troubles Bosses of Senators

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The only thing Bucky Harris feels sure of next season is that his Washington Senators can advertise the fattest battery in baseball.

Even rock-batted infielders groan as Catcher Frank (Shanty) Hogan, the 260-pound smiling Irishman, and Eddie Linke, the 225-pound blond with the pulseless tossing wing, amble on to the diamond.

"The fat boys will be on the firing line," Bucky said yesterday, "and that's really about all I can say now about next season."

Credited with one of the best managerial performances in the majors as he jockeyed his bargain-counter Senators into fourth place this year, less than a half-game behind the Detroit Tigers, Harris shied away from a forecast for 1937.

"We may do better and we may not do as well," he explained. "It all depends on what players we have and what breaks we get."

Harris goes into a luncheon huddle with Owner Clark Griffith almost every day of the off-season.

SHAMROCKS AND LEAGUE STARS AGREE TO PLAY 3-GAME SERIES

By Dent McSkimming.

A two-out-of-three game series between the Shamrocks and an all-star team of the St. Louis Soccer League is practically assured as a result of progress made today in preliminary negotiations between representatives of the rival groups.

Both sides favor such a series to open Sunday, Nov. 22.

Demand for such a test series was one of the natural results of the astonishing 3 to 2 victory of the league all-stars over the Maccabee club of Palestine at Walsh Stadium recently. The Jewish team from the Holy Land had not been beaten in six previous games in this country and Canada. The St. Louis team that defeated the Maccabees was made up of outstanding players in the four St. Louis Soccer League clubs, the Burke F. C., the Town Criers, the Harps and the Club Lotus. The Shamrocks have won four games they have played thus far against out-of-town clubs.

Charles DeWitt, as president of the St. Louis Soccer League, is representing his group in the negotiations, and William Lehman is representing the Shamrocks. C. efforts are being made to book a visiting team to meet the Shamrocks here Sunday, an announcement to be made later.

Although the Recreation Department of the public parks system is laying plans for a series of lectures for young soccer players to be held in the community centers, two North Side teams have announced plans for a similar instruction course to be held supplementary to that of the Recreation Department.

Beginning next Wednesday evening, weekly meetings will be held at the Eighteenth Ward Democratic Club's rooms, 2244 Benton street, at which time professional players, former players and others will offer instruction to young players.

The present plan, according to Bob Russell, manager of the Eighteenth Ward team, is to have the players of one or two junior or in-

MISSOURI COACH TAKES SQUAD OF 30 TO OKLAHOMA FOR BIG 6 GAME

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13.—It was the calm before the storm for Big Six football teams today as they awaited tomorrow's games in which every conference member faces stern opposition.

The two roving clubs, Iowa State and Missouri, were camped on the doorsteps of their respective opponents, Kansas State and Oklahoma. Nebraska and Kansas were sitting tight awaiting their trouble. The Huskers will try to break a 15-year Pittsburgh jinx at Lincoln and Kansas hopes for the best when it entertains Michigan State at Lawrence.

Despite the air of tenacious premeditation football-minded Lincoln, the Huskers, in rare form, went through their final heavy drill yesterday in a careful manner. Confidence fairly oozed from the husky Huskers, despite the fact they will be meeting a great team tomorrow, one which never really gets going until November.

Any idea the Iowa State might have that they might catch Kansas State in a slump as a result of the Wildcats' hard game with Oklahoma last week was refuted by Coach Wesley Fry, who said Kansas State had snapped out of its lethargy and was ready to go.

Anticipating a barrage of flying footballs from the air-minded Iowans, Fry stressed pass defense in the final heavy drill. With the exception of Leo Ayers, quarterback, and Barney Hays, end, the squad was in fine condition.

The Iowa State team was guest of alumni during a big game in Des Moines last night, and was scheduled to arrive at Manhattan early this afternoon.

Faurot Takes 30 Players. Don Faurot and his Missourians were enroute to Oklahoma City today with a big squad of tomorrow's battleground. Faurot took 30 men on the trip, choosing them for their ability to play more than one position.

Major Lawrence, "Biff" Jones, up in the drill of his Oklahoma squad. Drummy scrimmages and live defense is the Kansas workout. It was indicated that William "Red" Knight, center who has played every minute to date, would continue his record as a future and their Thanksgiving day battle with Missouri, nevertheless have been getting in some overtime in their preparation for the Michigan State squad.

Impassive records, Michigan State rates a big edge, but a steady improvement has been noted in the Kansas, play, and a green team such as Lindsey is tutoring is liable to bloom at any time. Lindsey stressed pass offense in the last heavy drill.

intermediate teams meet at the club rooms each week. The Carlstroms of the Intermediate Division at Fairground Park will be the guests next Wednesday night. Others will be invited later.

Bert Patenaude, in his first American Soccer League game in two years, played at New York last Sunday, scored three goals for the Passion club of Philadelphia, but his team was defeated by Brookhattan, 5 to 4. The former center forward of the Shamrocks was in great form, the critics said.

A Pittsburgh soccer writer in commenting upon the recent 4-0 defeat suffered by Castel Shannon at the hands of the Shamrocks here, wrote: "When the team goes away to represent a district and gets trimmed, 8-0, it's about time the moguls put a stop to these joy rides—not to mention the inconvenience and reflections put upon the schedule makers."

There was nothing in their conduct here that indicated Castel Shannon players considered their trip a joy ride. Pittsburgh officials will have to look elsewhere for an explanation. Maybe a visit by the Shamrocks to Pittsburgh would be the convincer.

The Community Center Soccer League (for "midget" and junior class teams) is about ready to open its season on Saturday, Nov. 21. There is still room for all the midget class teams that wish to apply and there are several openings in the junior class.

Following entries have been received, Junior Division (boys under 18): Sherman Park-Sherman Boys' Club, St. Philip Neri, Shamrock Juniors and St. Edwards. Carondelet Park-Blow Playground, Spanish Caballeros, Southern A. C. and Steve Meritz Club. Murphy Park-Neighborhood A. C. and Mulhally A. C. Fairground Park-Holy Rosary.

Midget Division (boys under 16): Sherman Park-Sherman Boys' Club, McBride, Trojans, Twenty-fourth Ward Democrats.

Final organization details will be worked out at a meeting of the Community Center League next Tuesday evening at Sherman Park Community Center. Applications will be received at that time, or sooner, by Community Center directors.

A player who could work immediate and lasting benefit in the teamwork of any club here is Bob Fleming, center halfback, who is attached now to a Puerto Rico club. He was a star with the New York Americans for several seasons.

Present-Day Boxers Have Easier Time and Make More Money, Says Harry Trendall, Now a Manager

Muri Thompson, a featherweight boxer here for the past several years, was taking quite a boxing lesson from Midget Wolgast, former flyweight champion of the world, at the Business Men's Gymnasium yesterday afternoon, with Thompson's handler, Harry Trendall, looking on.

Trendall, a very clever light-weight of 20 years ago, was one of the outstanding boxers developed in St. Louis but since he retired from the ring has paid little attention to boxing until just recently when he took an interest in Thompson.

Better Equipment. "Boxing equipment is much better now than when I took up the sport some 30 years ago," mused Harry as Muri and Wolgast slugged in the ring, "there is no trouble getting sparring partners and the boys have better gloves and headgear to work with in practice."

"I remember when I started in the neighborhood around Twenty-third and Carr street under Johnny Murphy, who introduced me to the game. I used to get Negro boxers to work with me but most of the stuff I learned about boxing I picked up by myself. It took me about two years to pick up the knowledge I needed and I got most of it in the East when I went to Philadelphia to box and later on the Pacific Coast."

"Then, too, the boys have a much better chance to make money now than when I took up the sport. The best purse I got was in California for boxing Freddie Welsh for which I received a little more than $2200 and the best I got in St. Louis was $1320 for boxing Packy McFarland. Packy refused to gamble and demanded an even cent for his and but I took 20 per cent and got more than he did; also I took a licking."

Trendall is now 50 years of age. He has very few marks of his 10 years in the ring, only a few scars above his eyes. His ears are not "cauliflowered" at all but he does have a few gold teeth in his mouth. Trendall was inactive in the boxing game for many years here although he has made his home in this city and other men in the game welcome his revived interest.

Thompson is his first charge and has shown improvement in his recent bouts since Trendall took him over. He knocked out Joe La Pele, Louisville, Ky., on the recent Coliseum card.

"I have tried to show Muri what to do," remarked Harry, "but he lost a lot of time in the amateurs and picked up some habits which he is now trying to break. I believe, though, he is a pretty good boy and will show steady improvement."

Thompson has given Wolgast good, stiff workouts the past two days in preparation for Wolgast's coming match with Everett Rightmire at the Auditorium next week. Wolgast, whose real name is Joseph Los Calzo, is under the direction of his uncle, Frank Los Calzo, and has been in the 10 years he has been boxing in the flyweight, bantamweight and featherweight divisions.

Midget and Beer. Wolgast has that sleek appearance which usually denotes advancing age in a boxer but Uncle Frank declares it is only due to the Midget's fondness for beer. "You know," laughed Frank.

Wykoff-Steele Mat Bout Tonight At the Coliseum

One of those "unusual" wrestling matches will be staged at the Coliseum tonight when Lee Wykoff meets Ray Steele. The match was so unusual that Commissioner Ernest F. Oakley called a meeting of the principals this afternoon to straighten out the unusual conditions of victory.

Wykoff, in his challenge to Steele, agreed to pin Ray twice in 90 minutes. He didn't mention at the time what would happen if Steele pinned him and at the meeting this afternoon Lee still didn't want to mention anything about that.

But Commissioner Oakley did and the following are the conditions Oakley prescribed: "If there are no falls within the first 90 minutes the match will be permitted to continue to a fall. The one who secures the first fall after 90 minutes will be declared the winner. If Steele should secure a fall within 90 minutes the match is over and Steele is the winner."

"If Wykoff should secure two falls within 90 minutes with no fall for Steele the match is over and Wykoff is the winner. If Wykoff should secure but one fall in 90 minutes the match continues. The wrestler securing the first fall after the 90-minute period is the winner of the match."

Lou Spandler of Kansas City will be the referee for this event. The complete program: MAIN EVENT—Wykoff, Nevada, 230, vs. Ray Steele, St. Louis, 215. SEMI-MAIN EVENT—Dory Roche, Des Moines, 185, vs. Milo Steinberg, Germany, 215. 30-minute time limit. OVER CARD—Toland Kirkham, Drumright, Ok., 235, vs. Len Macaulay, Boston, 215. 30-minute time limit. SECOND BOUT—Walter Broad, Vancouver, B. C., 215, vs. Pat McGuinnis, 215. 30-minute time limit. FIRST BOUT—Nick Zaharias, Pueblo, Colo., 215, vs. Babe Smith, Serbia, 210. 20-minute time limit.

Rodak Favored to Win. HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 13.—Two class Eastern featherweights, Leo Rodak of Chicago and Frankie (Kid) Covelli, New York Italian, headline tonight's fight card at the Legion Stadium. Rodak, on past performances, was rated an edge over the veteran little New Yorker.

Monmouth is favored to beat Augustana Saturday, having defeated Bradley who tossed the Vikings 18 to 0 last Saturday. St. Viator is rumored to have been polishing an air attack for the Northern Teachers' invasion Saturday. The Teachers will be out for one more victory which, if all the undefeated

RETURNS TO RING ACTIVITY AS MANAGER

HARRY TRENDALL.

"Midget likes his beer and it is probably my fault. When he started boxing he weighed only about 101 pounds so when he finished his workouts I always had a bottle of beer for him. I wanted him to have something in his system to work off."

"He has put on weight in the last few years but he never had any trouble in getting it off. He is supposed to weigh 130 or 131 pounds for his match with Rightmire but if it were necessary he could get down to 123 in a week or two."

Wolgast claims he is only 26 years of age. He has had 292 bouts in a long career. He had to advance to the 118-pound division when he ran out of opponents among the 112 pounds.

"I think the flyweight division is shot to pieces," he remarked, "why I don't know, but there are no good flyweights around the country. There are many of them in Europe, however, but the promoters here like to match heavyweights rather than build up the small division."

Wolgast showed his cunning in his work with Thompson for he hit Muri from all directions but Trendall's boy stuck a good left jab into the former champion's face, too.

Rightmire also was on hand for a workout, coming in from Kansas City with his stablemate Ray Baker.

Joe Alcantara, Kansas City lightweight, Henry Armstrong's opponent on the coming card is expected to arrive today or tomorrow.

Armstrong, who has made quite a hit with those who have seen him working at the Pine Street Y. M. C. Club, is expected to play the day for the next few days.

Jack Callahan expects to postpone the show at the Coliseum which he had scheduled for Nov. 27. Thinking it a bad night because it is the day after Thanksgiving he plans to hold his next show early in December.

Panish, Bradley Star, Leads Point Scorers in Little 19

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Ted Panish, running and passing star of the high-scoring Bradley Tech grid machine, is pacing all ball carriers of the Indiana Intercollegiate Conference with 36 points.

Runner-up to Chester Davis of Northern Teachers last week, Panish counted two touchdowns while Davis was being bottled up by Wesleyan. Result—Panish went to the top with an average of one touchdown per game.

Joe Moran, North Central halfback, also crept up on Davis, counting twice to bring his total to 30, good for a tie with Davis for second place. Both have played in five games.

Phil Merritt, Wheaton halfback, is next in line with 25 points, just ahead of Frank Persichiotto, Eureka. Both have played in four games. Wesleyan, Monmouth and St. Viator, the undefeated leaders of the conference, all risk their championship chances this week-end.

John Piliks of Chicago, stole a goodly portion of the limelight last week in the Wesleyan-Northern Teachers game. He played both at the halfback and fullback positions, gained continually off the tackles and scored the first Wesleyan touchdown.

The Green and White engage Elmhurst next in their race for the L. C. C. crown, and will have an edge of 15 pounds per man in the line. It will be the final game of the season for Elmhurst.

At Monmouth Ralph Carville, a reserve, has replaced Bob Reid at fullback by virtue of great work against Cornell last Saturday. Carville personally conquered the plucky Corners in scoring position for a third marker.

Monmouth is favored to beat Augustana Saturday, having defeated Bradley who tossed the Vikings 18 to 0 last Saturday. St. Viator is rumored to have been polishing an air attack for the Northern Teachers' invasion Saturday. The Teachers will be out for one more victory which, if all the undefeated

RANKING OF TWO WOMEN PLAYERS TROUBLES U. S. TENNIS BOARD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The delicate task of selecting Alice Marble or Helen Hull Jacobs for the No. 1 spot in the 1936 national tennis "first ten" is troubling members of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association's Six-man Ranking Committee.

With precedent to work on, the committeemen are deliberating carefully to determine whether Miss Marble, conqueror of Miss Jacobs in the final of this year's U. S. championship, or Miss Jacobs, four times American titleholder and reigning all-England champion, should get the lead-off position.

Twenty-two years ago the sisters were confronted with an almost identical situation after R. Norris Loughlin, 6-3, 5-4, 10-8, in the final of the 1914 tournament.

Up to that time victory in the championship virtually carried with it the No. 1 ranking. Taking into consideration McLoughlin's previous triumphs over Williams that year and his victories over Tony Wilding and Norman Brookes of Australia in the Davis Cup challenge round, played in New York, the committee ranked McLoughlin No. 1 and Williams No. 2.

Ranked on Season's Play. The report of the committee's finding, recorded in the 1914 December issue of the American Lawn Tennis publication, set forth the suggestion that in the future the No. 1 ranking should not necessarily go hand in hand with the national title. Shortly thereafter, U. S. L. T. A. inserted the following paragraph in its ranking regulations:

"The winners of the national championships will be ranked on their season's records as are other players and shall be arbitrarily placed at the head of the rankings, but in comparison of their records with those of other players, they shall be given a very generous benefit of any reasonable doubt as to the relative merits of such records."

That paragraph also covers a player's performance in foreign national championships.

Thus Miss Jacobs' victory over Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling at Wimbledon this year and a triumph over Miss Marble in an Eastern invitation tournament before the national only serve to complicate the situation from the committee's viewpoint.

In addition to winning the prospect of Miss Jacobs' holding the No. 1 ranking she has held for the last four years or, at least, sharing it with Miss Marble.

Records of Two Players. "Twenty-two years ago I thought that Williams, as national champion, was entitled to the No. 1 ranking," said A. Wallis Merriam, a member of the present committee. "I still feel that the national champion should get the No. 1 position, unless the victory was achieved on a fluke basis."

"Although Miss Marble scored a clear victory over Miss Jacobs' idea, I do not, however, think she should not arbitrarily be graded above Miss Jacobs. Up to now I haven't given the matter full consideration, but I'll have to admit it's going to be a ticklish problem, deciding between the two."

Before winning the national crown, Miss Marble signalled her return to competition, after a forced retirement due to illness, by winning the California State title and the Longwood Bowl and Seabright Invitation tournaments. Then she lost, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4, to Miss Jacobs at Augusta, Mass.

In addition to winning the all-England championship from a field which, on paper anyway, seemed much stronger than the United States championship entrants, Miss Jacobs scored a sparkling victory over Kay Stammers in the finals at Forest Hills. But her defeat in the Wightman Cup match at Wimbledon stand against her.

ST. LOUISAN SUFFERS BROKEN LEG IN POLO GAME; TIGERS BEATEN. By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 13.—The University of Oklahoma polo team defeated the University of Missouri in the opening contest of a two-game Big Six Conference series.

Ike Scheiber, St. Louis, Mo. Tiger No. 2, received a broken leg when he fell from his horse across a boundary board in the second period.

Scheiber had put the Tigers on the lead with a short shot in the first chukker. The Sooner were held scoreless until the third chukker. They came back after the time intermission, however, and scored in every period.

Ronald Hooten, No. 2 led the Sooner attack with three goals.

Crowd of 10,248 First Game of Hockey Association at the Arena.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 13.—The first game of the American Hockey Association at the Arena was a close contest between the St. Louis Flyers and the Kansas City Hawks.

The Flyers, who were within 31 of a victory when they scored the winning goal, and neither team counted in the two five-minute periods. All the score was done in the third session.

The building was gaily decorated with bunting and balloons.

The purpose of the little game being for the fans to place their bets on the score. From their number hockey club management expects St. Louis to tally several times the fans to the number (figures supplied by the club) waited so long to use the arena for the first time.

Good Tactics, Bad Execution. The crowd had waited a long time for something to cheer about, and they let loose a roar when the Flyers goal seemed at the time to be just what the doctor ordered for a win.

And immediately the Flyers back upon the defense. They tried their blue line to bar the Kansas City rushes at some minutes the strategy was working. So well did the Flyers play that the spectators to file out of the building were a little more than left to play. In fact, they went away with the thought that the Flyers had the season with a victory.

But when Kansas City began to play in the closing minutes, rushing five men down the line, the Flyers were forced to stop a shot, Pittsburgh to Beat Nebraska, Princeton to Defeat Yale, Army Over Notre Dame, Duquesne to Win From Carnegie and Navy to Sink Harvard.

By Jimmy Conzelman.

Head Football Coach of Washington University.

For real piskin pyrotechnics this week, focus your weather eye on Lincoln, Neb., where the Cornhuskers meet the Pittsburgh Panthers. I'm picking Pitt, but nobody seems to know the exact strength of this Nebraska eleven. Yes, the boys up there were defeated by Minnesota, but so was every other team that faced the Gophers in the past two years until Northwestern came along.

GRANITE CITY WINS, SURE OF TIE FOR TITLE

Granite City High School's football team officially closed its 1936 campaign in Madison-St. Clair Conference competition by defeating Wood River's Oilers, 25 to 0, last night at Granite City. The victory was the fifth in six starts for the Warriors and assured them of at least a tie for the championship. Should Belleville defeat East St. Louis Thanksgiving day, Granite City would win the title.

NORMANDY AND C.B.C. ELEVENS, BOTH UNBEATEN, MEET TONIGHT

Normandy and Christian Brothers high schools' undefeated football teams clash tonight at Normandy's field starting at 8 o'clock in the feature of the week's interscholastic games. Another game to-night has Central going to St. Charles.

Comparative scores favor the Brothers tonight, but it's not likely that Normandy's squad will pay any attention to that. Normandy was tied by St. Louis University High, 0-0, in the second game of the season, while C. B. C. trounced the Junior Billikens, 37-0 last week. The Brothers also beat Webster City, 16-4, while Normandy won, 7-0.

The Brothers have scored at least two touchdowns in every game while the Vikings have held the opposition to one touchdown in eight games, so it can be seen that the game will be a battle between the Brothers' offense and the Vikings' defense.

Normandy has three of its players on the injured list. Norbert Bednarch, end; Orville Klockner, guard; and Bob Waters, halfback, all have injured knees and probably will not play much. But Ira Smith, Meredith Kiburz, and Vernon Tracy are capable replacements and will most likely start the game.

Normal will have a weight advantage of nine pounds a man but C. B. C. has a big advantage in speed. It is probable that the winner of tonight's game will be invited to play Beaumont in a post-season benefit contest. Beaumont is the only other undefeated team in the district and has won eight contests, scoring at least one touchdown in every game. Beaumont is idle this week.

Alabama Likes Its Line, Too—Indiana Backs Can Carry Mail.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 13.—Through the aid of three sophomores and plenty of imagination with regard to color, you'll see a "tiger" mascot in action for Princeton's Orange and Black football Tigers against Yale Saturday. It's not exactly a tiger, but a cat for which the three sophomores have been caring. They say it looks black at night, but "sort of orange" in the daytime.

Also Pretty Strong.

UNIVERSITY, Ala. — While they've been boosting the strength of that forward wall at Fordham, the defensive power in the front line of another Rose Bowl hopeful, Alabama, has been more or less overlooked. But you can't get away from the statistics, which show only two teams—Loyola and Tulane—have been able to score a total of only 14 points against the Crimson Tide, while Bama has been rolling up 134 points.

DETROIT—Coach Gus Dorais at Detroit still is amazed. As is his annual custom, he sent out questionnaires to all the Titans' rivals at the beginning of the season. The general rule is for the opposition to do a lot of "moaning" low in replying. Dorais almost fell out of the chair, however, when North Dakota came up with the flat statement the material was fine and the prospects best in years.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Introducing intercollegiate football's "pony backfield" for the year—Penn State's quartet of little fellows, averaging 153 pounds, probably the smallest major college ball-carrying squad in the country. Individually they are Harry Harrison, halfback, 144; Sam Donato, halfback, 145; Red O'Hara, quarterback, 153; Joe Metro, fullback, 168.

Can Carry the Mail.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Another set of first-rate postman prospects are performing at Indiana. They carry the mail like veterans, those Hoosier backs. So far this year, they've totaled 1545 yards from scrimmage in six games, an average of 257.5 per meeting.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Paging Scotland Yard. After piloting the team through six games, Coach Elmer Layden says his Notre Dame eleven "is as much a mystery as ever." After watching the Irish drop a 3-0 decision to Navy last week, one Notre Dame publicity man came up with the crack: "The outfit has been consistent in only one thing—it's inconsistency."

VILLANOVA, Pa.—If hard work wins ball games, Temple had better watch out for Villanova this week-end. Coach Clipper Smith has been giving his Wildcats three sessions of it daily this week: Lectures every morning, a two-hour workout each afternoon, and a 90-minute dummy scrimmage every night.

60 TO COMPETE IN CROSS COUNTRY RACE

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—The eleventh annual cross country meet of the Illinois Intercollegiate Conference will be held tomorrow morning on the State Normal Course of 3.6 miles.

Complete teams have been entered by Southern Teachers, Eastern Teachers, State Normal, Illinois Wesleyan, Wheaton, Bradley, Western Teachers and Shurtleff. In addition, McKendree will send three runners and individual entries will participate from Monmouth, Knox and Elmhurst.

Joe Cogdal of State Normal, director of the meet, expected the entry list to number more than 60, larger than for any previous cross-country meet.

Robert Anderson of Eastern Teachers is the defending champion, but a teammate, John Dayton, has beaten him to the tape several times this year and is accorded a good chance to finish first.

State Normal will be after its sixth successive team championship, having taken over after Bradley took the team honors in the first five meets.

ROBERT'S LEG BROKEN IN WRESTLING MATCH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Yvon Rebe, 216, Toronto, a claimant to the world's heavyweight wrestling title, received a broken leg last night in a match with Cliff Olson, 210, Baudette, Minn. The match ended in eight minutes.

Olson declined to accept the decision or claim the title.

LINCOLN U. TO PLAY KENTUCKY STATE SQUAD

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 13.—Lincoln University plays its homecoming football game here tomorrow afternoon with the State College eleven of Frankfort (Ky.) as its opponent. Starting time is 2 o'clock.

The Tigers of Lincoln took their final workout yesterday. Campbell, Tomlin and Hyatt are the stars of the Lincoln eleven. The Kentucky team is favored to win with "Tarzan" Kendall and "Big Bertha" Edwards in their backfield.

Changes Tune.
Andy Kerr, Colgate football coach, departed from custom long enough to heap praise on two of his stars, Whitney Jaeger and Red Chesbro.

Stay Tops WITH SCHOTT'S

The day after is just as rosy as the day before when you stick to Schott's Old Lager—no stomach upset, and fit as a fiddler's fiddle! What more could any beer drinker expect?

But that isn't all. Just get this earful of joyful news: Burps are out, too!

Hurrah! No burp-muffler needed. Both hands always free for good two-fisted drinking.

And how you can drink Schott's! That old time flavor gets you, boy—smacks right into the bull's-eye every time. Good? You'll say it's great! But be prepared. One bottle always shouts for more.

In taverns, restaurants—every place where good things are expected—"Call Your Schott's," and get it!

SCHOTT BREWING COMPANY, Highland, Ill.

"Call your SCHOTT'S"

Schott's Old Lager is the perfect beer, winter and summer, because it's aged in the famous Schott Caves, 35 feet under ground. You may be freezing in so-below-zero weather, or melting at 110°, but the temperature in the Schott Caves stays between 34° and 36°.

Mercolized Wax
Holds the Lure of Lucid Skin

Your complexion can be as perfect as the luminous, glowing pearls you wear, if you give your skin simple, sensible daily care with Mercolized Wax. This simple cream completely beautifies an unattractive, blemished complexion. Mercolized Wax is composed of active ingredients that assist Nature in flaking off useless, faded surface skin. This natural skin shedding process is actually invisible. Each day you apply Mercolized Wax your skin becomes lovelier and more irresistibly beautiful. It defies time and weathering. Mercolized Wax makes vitiated skin breathe anew, revealing the satin smoothness that is so alluring.

Use Saxolite Astringent daily. A refreshing, stimulating skin tonic. Smoothes out wrinkles and age lines. Refines coarse pores. Eliminates oiliness. Dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. At all drug stores.

MAN AND WIFE CHARGED WITH KILLING HER ADMIRER

Accusation Filed in Hour After Justice of Peace Is Shot at Woman's Home.

By the Associated Press.
THURMOND, W. Va., Nov. 13.—Robert L. Bennett, railroad section foreman, and his wife were charged with murder last night in the death of H. C. Bennett, railroad conductor and justice of the peace.

Deputy Sheriffs Virgil Lyons and Carl Ballard filed the charge an hour after H. C. Bennett was shot to death at the Robert L. Bennett home.

Lyons said the two men were not related, and added: "Jealousy was the cause of the shooting. Bennett told us that I shot him as he came in the door and we wrestled and then we both shot him. I asked him who he meant by 'we' and he said 'my wife.'"

"Mrs. Bennett told us that she had been seeing H. C. Bennett about five or six months, and that her husband found out about it, and decided to wait in the house today when R. C. Bennett called."

State Game Warden Frank Wetzler said the deer apparently escaped from a zoo or game preserve, although he had received no reports of that kind. Its death will mean a venison banquet Sunday for a child's home.

DEER INVADERS ELGIN STORE

Crashes Through Plate Glass, Suffers Cut and Is Shot.

By the Associated Press.
ELGIN, Ill., Nov. 13.—A five-prong deer invaded Elgin's business district yesterday, became frightened at the heavy traffic and crashed through the plate glass show window of a shoe store. A shard of glass pierced the deer's throat and it was shot by policemen who found the animal cowering on a heap of shoe boxes.

State Game Warden Frank Wetzler said the deer apparently escaped from a zoo or game preserve, although he had received no reports of that kind. Its death will mean a venison banquet Sunday for a child's home.

EXCEPTIONS HEARD ON ESTATE
SETTLEMENT BY WILFRED JONESWilliam H. Meyer Denies Signing Checks and Receipts; Trial to Continue Tomorrow.

Evidence in support of exceptions to Attorney Wilfred Jones final settlement as executor of the $17,000 estate of Mrs. Rose M. Meyer was heard yesterday by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt. The trial will be resumed tomorrow.

The exceptions were filed by Mrs. Meyer's husband, William H. Meyer, 74 years old, 4150 Shreve avenue, who is named as a beneficiary in her will.

Meyer denied that he had indorsed several checks or signed receipts which appeared in the settlement, for which Jones, one of the defendants in the Muench baby hoax case, took credit. However, when Meyer also denied the authenticity of his signature on other documents, about which there was no dispute, Judge Joynt said he was uncertain how to receive his testimony and that he could not put much faith in it.

The case originally was heard by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold, who sustained the exceptions and entered a judgment for $2248 against Jones and the Maryland Casualty Co., surety on his executor's bond. Later the court set the judgment aside to give the surety an opportunity to present a defense. Then Jones filed a plea alleging that Judge Arnold was prejudiced against him and obtained a change of venue to the Circuit Court.

MAN KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH

Ten Persons Injured When Cars
Run Into Load of Bricks.

BARRINGTON, R. I., Nov. 12.—Al Defano, a truck driver, was killed and 10 persons were injured when a gasoline train of the New Haven Railroad crashed into a truck loaded with bricks at a grade crossing near the station here this morning.

The motorman of the train, Alfred F. Tardie, 54 years old, of Riverside, cut the engine after it was apparent the air and emergency brakes would not stop his car. Among those on the train who were injured was Alfred A. Tardie, 24, son of the motorman, who was a passenger. The elder Tardie suffered lacerations of the face.

MEN FROM 16 STATES AT PARK CONFERENCE

Three-Day Session on Development and Conservation Opened.

State park officials began a three-day conference today on conservation, development and maintenance of state park areas at the Melbourne Hotel. Park superintendents, planning board members, conservation authorities and highway officials from 16 states attended.

Charles H. Taylor of Washington, assistant director of Emergency Conservation Work, will speak on the development of recreational facilities of the United States tonight at the Coronado Hotel.

The Missouri Game and Fish Department is host for the conference. States represented are: Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

How to revise park planning to meet the demands of owners of automobile trailers was to be discussed by R. N. Johnson, inspector of the Illinois Department of Public Works and Buildings. Wild life values and balance in state park systems were subjects of other addresses.

Metropolitan influences were to be discussed at a session this afternoon by A. P. Greensfelder, vice-chairman of the St. Louis Planning Board, and S. Herbert Hare, consultant for city planning and park development in Kansas City.

About 100 of the visiting park officials are expected to visit the Lake of the Ozarks tomorrow, traveling in automobiles. Inspection of the area will be followed by a dinner at the Civilian Conservation Corps camp there.

The final session of the meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at Babler Memorial Park. Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service, will speak.

GERRITZENS DROP TWO MORE SUITS AGAINST LEAD COMPANY

Costs of $125 Assessed Against Them in Actions Seeking $650 in Fees.

Al and Leo Gerritzen, attorneys, dismissed two lawsuits in Circuit Court today, in which they were seeking a total of $650 from the National Lead Co., alleging the company settled two personal injury damage suits, in which they had a 50 per cent interest as counsel for the plaintiffs, without their knowledge.

The dismissals were with prejudice, which means the suits cannot be refilled and the Gerritzens will have to pay costs of about $125.

On Monday the Gerritzens dismissed another suit of the same nature in which they sought $330 from the lead company. Costs in that case amounted to $1087.

ALASKAN TOWN GETS MOVIES; ADMISSION CHARGE, ONE FISH

Eskimo Boy With Sandwich Board and Cowbell Carries the News.

BETHEL, Alaska, Nov. 13.—An Eskimo boy paraded the mile-long sidewalk of Bethel's main street today, ringing a cowbell and turning himself so all could read the legend on his sandwich boards:

"Moving Pictures Today."

Admission One Fish." Bethel's 20 whites and 200 Eskimos knew civilization had reached the Kuskokwim River country. The Northern Commercial Co. trading post manager arranged the movies last August, when the last boat of the season brought enough talking pictures to last until navigation reopens next June on a twice-a-week basis.

The admission charge—one fish—leaves it optional with the Eskimo movie goers whether they pay one smoked salmon or one smoked whitefish, full size. The smoked fish, staple diet of sled dog, later are sold by the trader to dog drivers for cash.

Idaho Miners Pay Raised. WALLACE, Idaho, Nov. 13.—The "Big Four" of the Coeur d'Alene mining district—Bunker Hill & Sullivan, Sunshine, Federal and Hecla Companies—have announced wage increases of 50 cents a day, effective Nov. 16. An estimated 3640 workers will benefit.

KILLS LANDLADY AND SELF

Jealous Movie Studio Worker Also Beat Victim's Mother.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 13.—A jealous movie studio worker who objected to his divorces landlady going out with other men shot her to death, beat her mother, fired wildly at her 9-year-old son and then committed suicide, police said today.

Detective Lieutenant William G. Marr reported that last night's shootings ended a two-day quarrel between the worker, Dan J. Richards, 34 years old, and the woman he killed, Mrs. Ruth Chamberlain, 30.

CHAPTER I DRIVING HABITS

Large fleets of motor vehicles are driven for big companies every year at a cost per mile that often amazes private owners of vehicles of the same make.

Twenty or thirty thousand miles, for instance, at a cost of 31 cents a mile, including gasoline, oil, tires and depreciation, is not uncommon. Under these conditions small cars are averaging 18 to 22 miles per gallon every day of the year, in cold weather and hot, on cement, gravel, dry, wet and snow-covered roads.

How do they do it?

The answer lies in two practices—both of which you can follow as a private owner:

1. These fleets of cars are handled only by carefully selected drivers—men who know how to get the most out of cars. (And by "most" we do not mean top speed. Anybody who can push an accelerator to the floorboards knows how to do that!)

2. Every car receives a regular routine check-up by trained mechanics who correct little mechanical troubles before they grow to be big ones.

To make sure that drivers understand why they should form certain driving habits and to make sure they know the latest discoveries, regular meetings of these "fleet" car drivers are held. In these meetings, through common discussion the reasons why driver Jones gets more miles per gallon than driver McGillicuddy are brought out. McGillicuddy learns that something he had never thought of... or something he thought of only trifling importance... has been making a difference of as much as two miles the gallon on his record.

STANDARD'S FREE BOOKLET WILL PUT MONEY IN YOUR POCKET... CONTAINS FACTS YOU'VE NEVER READ... TELLS HOW YOU CAN HELP YOURSELF TO MORE MILES PER GALLON

● Your Standard Dealer has waiting for you right now, your copy of one of the most unusual little booklets ever published. Here, for the first time, an oil company tells you how to use less gasoline per mile to operate your car.

For years owners of big fleets of passenger cars have been piling up information on this subject. Yet when we saw the reports of private car owners in the recent "World's Greatest Road Test" we realized that the public in general still does not know many of the tested ways to get more miles per gallon. The public, we realized, was losing money it did not need to lose.

Frankly, Standard wants you to become better acquainted with the unsurpassed long-mileage ability of Standard Red Crown gasoline. But Standard, too, wants you to benefit from all the facts that are known about economical use of motor fuel.

And here they are, illustrated and simplified—laid right out before your eyes. Some of the facts in this new booklet, just off the presses, you may know. Some of them have been published, one or two at a time, elsewhere. But never, as far as we know, have they all been collected in printed form under one cover.

ACT TODAY—EDITION LIMITED

Your Standard Dealer has only a limited number of copies of this new free book. Drive in and get yours today. You'll find that with this book and a tankful of Standard Red Crown you will be able to get more miles to the gallon than you've ever gotten before. Plus the extra miles per gallon built into Standard Red Crown you'll have the facts at hand on how to roll up a new personal record in car economy. Remember—edition limited! Get your copy today.

ACCUSED OF SWINDLING MEN WHO ADVERTISED FOR BRIDES

Detroit Workman Wrote and Got Money for "Traveling Expenses," Matrimonial Club Wife Says.
DETROIT, Nov. 13.—Postal inspectors and detectives questioned George Indeck, 29-year-old factory worker, today after his bride of six months accused him of writing letters under women's names to obtain money from advertisers in matrimonial publications. Detective William Andrews quoted Mrs. Elizabeth Indeck, 21, as saying would-be bridegrooms sent Indeck money for "traveling expenses" to join them and that he forced her to cash a money order for $80 made out to "Mary Indeck." Indeck denied the charges and accused Mrs. Indeck and her foster-mother of "framing" the story. Mrs. Indeck turned over to police letters she said Indeck received from state as far away as California. "I never want to see him again," she told detectives. "He even asked me to go out with one of the men he corresponded with as 'Mary Indeck' and when I refused he forced me out of the house." Mrs. Indeck said she met her husband through a matrimonial club.

TANK CAR GAS KILLS MAN

Escaping Fumes Also Sent 5 to Hospital at Johnstown, Pa.
By the Associated Press.
JOHNSONBURG, Pa., Nov. 13.—Gas escaping through a broken valve on a tank car killed a pedestrian, sent five persons to a hospital today and affected 15 others. A. W. Nordstrom, 60 years old, collapsed and died as he walked past a paper mill.

R. N. Jones, an official at the mill, said a valve broke on the tank car in which gas was being received at the plant. He said the fumes spread through the neighborhood. A workman, Anthony Monardo, and a mother and three children who lived near the mill, were sent to hospitals. Physicians treated 15 persons who inhaled small amounts of the fumes.

ILLINOIS SHERIFF, 15 OTHERS UNDER LIQUOR CHARGES

Frank Dueppmann, of Clinton County, Denies Any Connection With Still Seized at Albers.

TWO FORMER TAX AGENTS INDICTED

Lester D. Bundy and Bruce Sigler Among Those Accused of Revenue Law Violation.

Sixteen persons, including Sheriff Frank Dueppmann of Clinton County, Illinois, and Bruce Sigler and Lester D. Bundy, former Alcohol Tax Unit agents of the East St. Louis office, are under charges of violating the internal revenue laws in connection with the operation of a large still, seized last December at Albers, Ill., in Clinton County.

An indictment, returned Tuesday in the Federal Court at East St. Louis, was made public yesterday. Besides conspiracy, it charges the 16 persons with failure to pay liquor tax, failure to pay a distiller's bond, and possession of a still, 7500 gallons of mash and untaxed liquor.

Others named in the indictment, all of whom have been arrested except Sigler, are: Joseph Nettemeyer of Albers, on whose land the indictment charges the still was seized; Frank Hassard, 914 North Second street, East St. Louis, and his three sons, Francis, John and Daniel; John Ogonski, 1010 Pennsylvania avenue, East St. Louis, son of an undertaker; Lawrence Ardison of Collinsville, and John Burham, Roy Brake, Andrew Young, John Buchannon and Tony Milyanico.

Sheriff Dueppmann, a former miner, who was elected in 1934 on the Republican ticket, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had nothing to do with the operation of any still and was not guilty of the charges. Bundy and John Hassard were first arrested last December during a raid by Federal agents at the alleged still, when they tried to escape in their automobile, but it mired in the mud. Three other men escaped on foot. Bundy and John Hassard have been under bond since, on warrants charging them with operating an unregistered still. An arraignment for all of those named in the indictment has been set for Monday.

Huge concrete vats, found at the still site, were destroyed with dynamite. Agents said the still was of 500-gallon capacity, and the entire plant equipped for producing large quantities of alcohol.

Bundy was discharged last year as agent for the Alcohol Tax Unit. MURPHY DOOR BED CO. FILES PETITION FOR REORGANIZATION

Action Under Amended Bankruptcy Act Shows President H. C. Martin Owes Firm $11,000. A petition for reorganization under the amended bankruptcy act was filed in Federal Court yesterday by the Murphy Door Bed Co. of St. Louis, 315 North Tenth street. The petition stated that between 1920 and 1929 the company increased its original investment from $20,000 to $100,000, but that subsequent inactivity in the building industry affected its business. The opinion was expressed that renewed construction activity would enable the firm to continue profitably in business under financial reorganization.

Assets of the company total $19,539 and liabilities are $13,842, according to the petition. The majority of the debts consist of accounts payable. Capital stock consists of 3970 no-par value shares. The assets were listed as follows: $626 cash, $2786 accounts receivable, $3837 merchandise and supplies, $802 fixtures and $1137 representing an account receivable from H. C. Martin, president of the company. The Martin account was described as doubtful, although the petition stated his services were necessary to the welfare of the firm.

TO REHIRE OUSTED MANInvestigator Denies Firing Was Due to Union; Dismissal Caused Strike.Wayne Barker, whose dismissal from the Federal Writers' Project precipitated a strike of 17 union employees of the project Oct. 27, will not be reinstated, because his dismissal had nothing to do with union activities, Reed Harris, assistant national director of the project, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today.Harris came here from Washington on orders from Henry G. Alberg, national director of the project, to investigate the dispute between the strikers and Mrs. Geraldine B. Parker, State director of the project.Members of Local No. 9 of the American Writers' Union, employed on the project, contended Barker had been fired because of his active participation in the union. Harris said, however, that Barker was dismissed for highly irregular conduct. He made the announcement after conferring with Mrs. Parker, Matthew S.
Murray, State WPA administrator, and members of the union.Since he has not completed his investigation, Harris said he was unable to determine yet whether six striking employees who were also discharged by Mrs. Parker had been fairly dealt with. He conferred with a committee representing the strikers last night at the Mark Twain Hotel.Harris also is investigating all dismissals by Mrs. Parker since the writers' project began here last fall.
He will report to Alberg, who will make recommendations to Murray regarding possible reinstatement of some of those dismissed.BARRETT SAYS HE PAID ONLY CAMPAIGN TRAVEL COSTSOther Expenses Taken Care of By Organization and State
CommitteeJesse W. Barrett, unsuccessful Republican candidate for Governor, complying with the law requiring candidates to file campaign expense accounts with the Recorder of Deeds, filed notice today that he had spent nothing except for traveling and lodging. He added that general campaign expenses were paid either by the Barrett-for-Governor organization or the Republican State Committee.Circuit Judge Arthur H. Bader, one of the Republicans defeated for re-election, spent $2182, he reported.
He gave the Republican City Committee $600, or $1 per precinct, before the primary and $1000 before the election. He also contributed $450 to various clubs and ward organizations and spent $63 on miscellaneous items.Joseph J. Ward, a Democrat elected Circuit Judge, reported giving the Democratic City Committee $800 and spending $17 for postage. Frank X. Dorsey, one of the defeated Republicans running for State Representative, spent nothing on the campaign, he related.

OFFICIAL RETURNS IN COUNTY

Roosevelt 63,226, Landon 45,541.

Lemke 2615, Thomas 615.

William Lemke, Union party candidate for President in the election
Nov. 3, received 2615 votes in St.
Louis county, according to the official vote announced by the County Election Board today. President Roosevelt received 63,226 and Gov.
Landon got 45,541.Vote for other minor party candidates was as follows: Norman Thomas, Socialist, 615; D. Leigh Colvin, Prohibition, 47; Earl Browder, Communist, 29; John W. Alken, tor raises the hinged seat and lifts the sitter to a standing position. One is being sent for trial to the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis sufferers, in Georgia.ELOPEMENT AND MARRIAGE LAST APRIL DISCLOSEDMiss Eleanor Hopkins Wed to Earl

C. Weidmueller; Second
Ceremony Held.The secret marriage last April 12 of Miss Eleanor Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Hopkins, 16 Yale avenue, University City, and Earl C. Weidmueller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Weidmueller, 6206 Gravois avenue, was disclosed yesterday.The pair eloped to Waterloo, Ill., and were married by a justice of the peace. Last Monday, after they had told their parents of the wedding, a second ceremony was performed at the Hopkins home by the Rev. John P. Caskey, pastor of University Methodist Church.Mrs. Weidmueller was graduated in 1934 from Washington University, where she was a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Weidmueller, an accountant for the International Harvest Hat Co. here, is a graduate of the University of Missouri.

Alaskan Food Ship Crippled.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD UNITED STATES MO-TORSHIP NORTH STAR, off Unalaska, Nov. 13.—This Bureau of Indian Affairs motorship, with its broken rudder temporarily repaired, moved toward the Alaskan coast today with a bent propeller. The rudder was broken in a severe storm. The propeller was bent in the crush of the ice off Point Barrow, where the vessel took supplies to starving natives. The Coast Guard cutter Tallapoosa will convoy the North Star between Sand Point in the Shu-magin Islands to Kodiak.

FOR INJURY IN BLASTMan Blinded Says Product Was Defective and Seeks $75,000.Trial of a suit by Jake Reeves for $75,000 damages against the Ensign-Bickford Co. of Simsbury, Conn., on the charge that Reeves was blinded by the use of defective blasting fuse made by the company, was under way today before a Federal Court jury. It began yesterday in the court of Judge George H. Moore.Reeves, 32 years old, 515 Marshall avenue, Webster Groves, obtained permission early in 1934 from J.
A. Busch to work an abandoned quarry at 1060 Pacific avenue, Webster Groves. He had been unemployed. Testifying, he related that he had had no previous experience in blasting, but had been shown how by men whom he helped in several quarries.From time to time, he related, he bought fuse of the defendant concern at a Rock Hill hardware store, storing it in a dry place. April 10, 1934, he continued, he prepared a hole in the rock with powder and fuse, using three and a half feet of fuse from a length he had bought four days previously for 1 cent a foot. After he lighted the fuse, he explained, he and his helper, J. W.
Lovell, retired and waited 15 minutes for the blast, which, he said, should have occurred in 2 1/2 to 3 minutes.Then he found that only an inch or two of fuse had burned, so he lighted it again and waited 15 minutes, with no result, repeating the process once more before quitting time. The next morning, he went on, he tried again with a new fuse from the same roll, but it failed to burn and had to be relighted.
After waiting 15 minutes the second time, he returned to the hole and an explosion occurred when he was two steps away, he said.Besides being blinded, his right ear was torn almost off and he was cut and bruised by flying rock.
Lovell took him to a relative's home nearby and then to a hospital, where he spent 33 days. In the course of his testimony Reeves related that he was married some time after the accident. He was ## led about in court by a brother.

A foreman for the fuse company was called as a witness for the plaintiff, testifying the fuse roll alleged to have figured in the accident was the company's product.
Counsel for the company, which was founded 100 years ago, asserted in an opening statement that the accident could not have happened in the manner alleged. In cross-examination of Reeves it was indicated a defense of contributory negligence might be offered.

Announcing THE FORD V-8 FOR 1937

The Quality Car in the Low-price Field

V-8

85 HORSEPOWER

Maximum Performance with Good Economy

V-8

60 HORSEPOWER

Good Performance with Maximum Economy

Bore, 2.6 in. Stroke, 3.2 in.
Displacement, 136 cubic in.

THE New Ford V-8 for 1937 is the most beautiful Ford car ever offered. It is built in only one size—with one standard of roomy comfort and modern appearance. But you may have either the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum performance—or the new 60-horsepower V-8 engine for maximum economy. The smaller engine makes possible a lighter car—a lower priced car, with lower operating costs—and permits still more people to enjoy the smoothness, quietness and reliability of the V-type 8-cylinder engine.

Improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine—Drive it and watch the speedometer!

If any single factor contributes more than another to establish the Ford as the quality car in the low-price field, it is the V-type 8-cylinder engine. More than three million owners are now enjoying its superior performance on the road. When you drive the 1937 Ford powered with the improved 85-horsepower V-8 engine, you are master of a modern power plant that gives you everything you can possibly demand in speed and acceleration. Today it is a better engine than ever—with a better cooling system and new smoothness of operation. Yet improved carburetion enables it to deliver its thrilling performance with unusually good gasoline mileage.

New 60-horsepower engine—Drive it and watch the fuel gage!

The new 60-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine is almost an exact replica of the "85"—except for size, weight and power. It delivers V-8 smoothness and quietness—even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour—with gasoline mileage so high that it creates an entirely new standard of economy in modern motor car operation.

We invite you to see this new Ford car, and arrange to drive one equipped with the engine that fits your own needs.

about the easy payment plans of the Universal Credit Company.

FEATURES THAT CHANGE—AND SOME THAT DON'T

NEW FEATURES OF THE 1937 FORD V-8 CAR—

APPEARANCE—A newly designed car—wide and roomy, with a low center of gravity. Distinctive front end, with headlamps recessed in fender aprons. Modern lid-type hood hinged at the back. Larger luggage space. Spare tire enclosed within body. Completely new interiors. The slanting V-type windshield opens in closed cars.

ENGINES—A choice of the improved V-8 85-h.p. engine or the new V-8 60-h.p. engine. More efficient cooling. Quieter performance. New economy.

COMFORT AND QUIET—By every modern standard of design, the 1937 Ford V-8 is a big, roomy car. Extra space is in the body, where you want it—not taken up by the engine under the hood. Comfort of the Ford Center-Poise Ride is further increased by smoother action of the long-tapering springs, with new pressure lubrication. New methods of mounting body and engine make this a quieter car.

SAFETY

BRAKES—New Easy-Action Safety Brakes, of the cable and conduit control type. Positive and direct—"the safety of steel from pedal to wheel." Self-energizing—car momentum is used to help apply the brakes. About one-third less pedal pressure is required to stop the car.

BODY—All-steel body construction. Not an ounce of wood used for structural strength. Frame structure is all steel—sheathed with steel panels, top, sides and floor. All are welded into a single steel unit of great protective strength. Safety Glass all around at no extra charge.

OFFICIAL CHICAGO VOTE REPORT

2,031,736 Ballots Cast; 96.61 Per Cent of Registration.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—A record vote of 2,031,736 was cast in Cook County Nov. 3, the official proclamation of the Board of Election Commissioners and the County Clerk showed today. The balloting represented 96.61 per cent of the total registration and exceeded by $34,984 votes, or 13.75 per cent, the previous high vote cast in 1932. An analysis showed that 69.34 per cent of the vote was straight ballots. State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney piled up the largest total. His vote of 1,289,908 exceeded that of President Roosevelt by 36,744. C. Wayland Brooks, defeated Republican candidate for Governor, ran ahead of Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican presidential nominee, 794,559 to 701,206. Roosevelt's plurality in the county was 561,958.

BERRY CALLS MEETING OF LABOR, BUSINESS

December Conference "To Frame Program for Long-Time Stabilization of Recovery."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13.—George L. Berry, Federal co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, issued a call yesterday for business men and workers to meet here Dec. 10-11 to frame "a program of industrial legislation looking toward long-time stabilization of recovery."
"The problems which will come before us," he said, "are those which vitally affect all industry. They cover the operations of raw materials producers; the great manufacturing corporations; and finally reach through distributive processes to the corner grocery and the cross roads general store."
Berry said announcements of the meeting would be sent to all trade associations and industry groups, and to several thousand individual business interests, as well as all bodies of organized labor.

Outlines Program.
The first day of the meeting, Berry said, will be devoted to general sessions over which he will preside, the second to executive sessions to consider reports from committees which submitted findings at the last conference in March.
Out of that session emerged a recommendation to President Roosevelt that the nation adopt a permanent industrial policy including minimum wage and maximum hour standards and elimination of unfair trade practices.
The recommendation was approved by the council composed of about 200 business men and labor leaders, but national associations of such large industries as steel, automobiles and textiles were not represented.
The first conference, in December, 1935, was almost disrupted by an uprising of some business representatives who were refused the floor. It was partly because of this that some business groups refused to name representatives to the council.

Preparing Licensing Bill.
Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, said he was preparing a bill for Federal licensing of corporations.
The bill would provide compulsory licenses for firms in interstate commerce, each license containing stipulations against child labor, discriminatory wages for women, or interference with union activities.
These regulations would be enforced by an enlarged Federal trade commission, including representatives of labor and industry. Violations might be punished by revocation of licenses and heavy fines.

QUINTUPLETS NEVER TO HAVE PRIVACY, DR. DAFOE SAYS

Know They Are Exceptional; Marie Is Most Energetic, Bosses the Other Girls.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The only real privacy the Dionne quintuplets will ever have in life will have to be bought, Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe said today.
"Subconsciously they already know they are exceptional," he said. "They can't help knowing it. They see visitors staring at them every day. Half a million were there last summer; in one day over 12,000."
The little girls, who will be 3 years old May 28 next, are learning music, dancing, singing. They speak only French, and they talk a lot.
"The nurses—they have two—read them old French fairy tales and translations of English tales," Dr. Dafoe said. "Emilie heard the story of Old Mother Hubbard and her dog and couldn't sleep for worrying about the poor dog. So she took her morning bacon, put it in her book against the dog's picture and told the nurse she had fed the dog."
Marie is the most energetic, Dr. Dafoe said. She "bosses the show" when she can. Yvonne has already received a marriage proposal—from an American boy, "Bobbie," who is 12, hopes to be President and asked Yvonne how she would like to live in the White House.

$10,000 FUND TO ESTABLISH DR. W. T. COUGHLIN LIBRARY

Given to St. Louis U. Medical School by Executor of Dr. F. H. Griffin Estate.
A $10,000 fund for the establishment of the Dr. William T. Coughlin Library at the St. Louis University School of Medicine has been given to the school by executors of the estate of Dr. F. H. Griffin. It was announced last night by the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, dean of the school.
The announcement was made at a dinner in honor of Dr. Coughlin, head of the surgery department and a faculty member for 25 years, at Norwood Hills Country Club. Father Schwitalla also announced he had received checks totaling $1200 for the library fund, donated principally by alumni.
Nineteen other men who have served on the faculty 25 years or longer were also honored at the dinner. Their names were published in the Post-Dispatch last Tuesday. About 600 alumni, faculty members and guests attended the celebration.

Pair Married 60 Years.
Mr. and Mrs. James McAlevy, 4280 Botanical avenue, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary tomorrow night with a party to be attended by seven children and 17 grandchildren at the home of a son at 3033 Laclede road, Maplewood. Mr. McAlevy is 60, his wife is 65. Both were born in St. Louis.

FORMER NEW YORK JUDGE DIES

Gustave Hartman Directed Annual Benefit for East Side Children.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Former Municipal Court Justice Gustave Hartman, who once a year enlisted Hollywood and Broadway celebrities to aid East Side orphans, died of heart disease yesterday after a brief illness. He was 56 years old and had been in poor health for some time. Judge Hartman was director of an annual benefit show in Madison Square Garden, which attracted notable stars both before and behind the footlights. From a small beginning as a charity ball in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory 12 years ago, the affair developed each year until it filled the big sports arena.

Beware The Cough From a common cold That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, fluid extract of Licorice Root, fluid extract of Wild Cherry and Menthol, but also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children with remarkable results.
Thousands of doctors use Creomulsion in their own families as well as in their practice knowing how Creomulsion aids nature to soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion top for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for going to the very seat of the trouble. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund every cent of the money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go to get a bottle of Creomulsion right now.

DR. V. G. HEISER TELLS STORIES OF FAR LANDS

Doctor-Writer at Contemporary Club Relates Experiences in Fighting Disease.

A field marshal in the fight against pestilence, enlisted under the banner of the Rockefeller Foundation for campaigns in the Far East and the Philippines, Dr. Victor George Heiser spoke last night of bubonic plague and leprosy, cholera and beri-beri, to members and guests of the Contemporary Club at Hotel Coronado.

To merely order "brandy" is to risk missing the enjoyment you anticipate. When the connoisseur orders his after-dinner liqueur, he leaves nothing to chance... he says "Three-Star Hennessy."

To he might be deluded into believing that his nearly 40 years of intensive research in countries struggling against disease had been little more than a pleasure tour of the Orient and the South Seas. Only once, and then in a humorous manner, did he hint at the personal dangers and hardships he encountered in his tasks.

The speaker, tall, thin, with only a fringe of white hair remaining, and with twinkling eyes behind thick-lensed glasses, told of some of the superstitions which he and his associates combatted in order to overcome the prejudices of natives, deluded by quacks and fakirs, toward modern medicine.

Health Officer's Head Was Proof.
"Of course bad water in the Philippines was the source of much disease," he said, "and we drilled artesian wells. But the natives were told by their 'wise men' that if they drank the water that we brought up, unnaturally, from the holes in the ground that they would lose their hair, of which they are inordinately proud."

"If you don't believe it," the fakirs said, "go take a look at the Health Officer!"
In Ceylon, where he led a fight against hookworm, quacks told the ignorant people that the capsules which the white men said would cure the sick, actually would explode inside the patient in two years.

He told how India was "charted" for hookworm and how it was found that in one area where lived 55,000,000 persons, 50,000,000 had hookworm. He spoke of the heroic efforts of science in Egypt to trace the carrier of a disease, bilharziasis, to which one-half of the 12,000,000 population was heir. It was found, he said, to be the snail. He mentioned an epidemic of measles in the South Seas which took the lives of nearly 300,000 persons.

Scientific Future in China.
He discussed briefly and humorously his experiences in Japan, and touched on his activities in China, which country, he predicted, will one day be the source of highly important contributions to scientific knowledge.

Dr. Heiser, known in his profession as a hygienist, is 63 years old and unmarried. Dr. Roland M. Klemme introduced him as "the private physician to the world who has done more to create good will toward Americans than any man since Benjamin Franklin."

Dr. Heiser entered the United States Marine Hospital service in 1898 and since then has been a leader in the international fight against disease. He was delegate to the International Congress on Medicine in 1902 in Egypt and was assigned to the Philippines from 1903 to 1915, the last 10 years as director of health. He became an associate director of the International Health Division of the Rockefeller Foundation in 1915, and served on health councils in China and as president of the International Leprosy Association. He is the author of numerous scientific books and articles and has written "The American Doctor's Odyssey," based on his experiences.

FEDERAL AGENT LEAR REED'S APPEAL UNDER ADVISEMENT

Denied Writ of Habeas Corpus in Raid Killing He Took Plea to Higher Court.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals took under advisement yesterday the appeal of Lear B. Reed, Department of Justice agent, from a ruling of Federal Judge Charles B. Davis denying him a release on a writ of habeas corpus from a manslaughter charge in the St. Louis Circuit Court.

The manslaughter charge grew out of the killing of Mrs. Dessie Masterson, who was shot at her home 1416 Hogan street, on July 12, 1934, during a raid led by Reed. The officers were seeking the machine gun used in the killing of John C. Johnson, Negro State's witness in the Kelley kidnaping case. A hearing failed to establish who fired the shot which killed Mrs. Masterson. The machine gun was not found.

Arguments of counsel were heard by the Court of Appeals yesterday. United States District Attorney Harry C. Blanton, representing Reed, contended that the agent conducted the raid in performance of his duty, and that Judge Davis erred in denying a writ of habeas corpus.

Joseph Granza, Alleged Bank Robber, Held in Kansas City.
By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Nov. 13.—Two New York detectives, aided by city police, yesterday arrested Joseph Granza, 26 years old, indicted by a Federal grand jury for the $12,000 robbery of a messenger of the First National Bank of Farmingdale, L. I. He was turned over to Federal authorities on a fugitive warrant.
The New York detectives said John Linardi, arrested Wednesday in New York, had been identified as one of the robbers. Granza also is wanted in New York for questioning in the $125,000 robbery of the Radio City Jewelry Co. Jan. 26, the officers said.

LATE SELLING CUTS RECENT LEADERS UP TO 2 POINTS

Some Specialties Manage to Weather the Blow but These Are None Too Buoyant at Market Session Close.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—A late selling burst featured the stock market today and numerous recent leaders suffered further losses of fractions to 2 or more points.

The ticker tape was late for a while in the morning and again in the final downward push.

A few specialties managed to weather the storm, although these were none too buoyant at the close.

Transfers were around 2,600,000 shares.

A little stimulation was derived here and there from extra dividends and bright earnings statements.

Merchandising and low-priced amusements were in the best demand. The steels picked up early, but could not hold. Mines, motors, utilities and several of the rails were in the skidding division.

Bonds gave ground and commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was up 1/2 of a cent a bushel and corn was unchanged to 1/2 higher.

At mid-afternoon sterling was up 3/16 of a cent at $4.88 3/16, and the French franc was unchanged at 46 1/2 cents.

Yield in Final Hour.

Shares up fractions to a point or more during the greater part of the session—although the majority yielded in the final hour—were Woolworth, Gimbel, Lerner Stores, Allied Stores, National Department Stores, Safeway Stores, Boeing, Transcontinental & Western Air, United States Industrial Alcohol, Distillers Corporation, Seagrams, Cluett-Peabody, Libby, McNeill & Libby, Warner Bros., Paramount, American Locomotive and Baldwin preferred.

Losers included General Motors, Chrysler, White Motors, Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Allied Chemical, Goodrich, General Electric, American Radiator, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, North American, Standard Oil of California, Celanese, N. Y. Central, Union Pacific and International Harvester.

Trend of the News.

The recent ability of the merchandising shares to buck the slipping trend evidenced in other groups is explained in part by the week-end review of Dun & Bradstreet, which finds virtually all lines of trade expanding substantially.

The survey says the spending mood of the public is definitely aggressive while demand in the wholesale field is further heightened by dwindling store stocks and indications of further shortages in items needed for the Christmas shopping season.

Attention is directed to some of the carrier equipment issues following the Pennsylvania Railroad's purchase of 200,000 tons of steel, the largest single order in several years.

Day's Fifteen Most Active Stocks.

Sales, closing price and net change of 15 most active stocks:

TREND OF MONEY RATES AND IN YIELD OF BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Trend of money rates and bond yields has been continuously downward since 1933. In that year the average yield of United States Treasury issues was 3.31 per cent. Today, since the post-election advance in Government loans, the average is closer to 2.40 per cent. For corporate issues the trend has been the same.

Federal Reserve Board figures show an average yield of 120 issues in 1933 of 5.88 per cent and on Oct. 21 of this year, 3.74 per cent.

Rates charged customers by banks show a similar decline. In eight northern and eastern cities, excluding New York, interest rates came down from an average of 5.34 cents in 1933, to 3.45 per cent last September.

Manufacturer's Bank Dividend.

The Board of Directors of the Manufacturer's Bank & Trust Co. of St. Louis declared the semi-annual dividend of 1 per cent payable on Dec. 1, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Nov. 12.

MRS. SPARGER PLEADS GUILTY OF HARBORING BANK ROBBERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 13.—Mrs. Juanita Sparger, wife of Clarence Sparger, pleaded guilty yesterday in Federal Court before Judge Albert L. Reeves as a jury was being selected to try her and Mrs. Faye Fullbright on charges of harboring Sparger and John Langan, convicted bank robbers, in a tourist cabin near Hickman Mills.

FREEDOM OF PRESS CHAMPIONS HONORED

Illinois Press Association and Editors' Hall of Fame Selections Named.

By the Associated Press. CHAMPAIGN, ILL., Nov. 13.—Notable champions of freedom of the press will be honored in a gallery at the University of Illinois under a plan of the Illinois Press Association and Editors' Hall of Fame Committee.

The Association and committee yesterday selected for admission to the gallery the following 12 men: John Milton, English poet; John Wilkes, English reformer and publisher; James Franklin, publisher; Thomas Edwin, English advocate who worked for the passage of the libel act of 1792; William Bradford, first printer in New York and Pennsylvania; William Brewster, of the Mayflower company; Benjamin Harris, British and American newspaper editor; Edward Cave, English news writer who fought for the right to report the proceedings and debates of parliament; John Peter Zenger, defendant in a famous trial in which jury determination of the defamatory nature of publications was urged; Thomas Jefferson, Thomas Paine, editor and Samuel Adams, noted for editorials written in New England prior to and during the American Revolution.

For conspicuous service to freedom of the press, the following already have been elected to the Editors' Hall of Fame: Benjamin Franklin, Victor F. Lawson, Horace Greeley, Samuel Bowles II, Harvey Whitefield Scott, Edwin Lawrence Godkin, Joseph Medill, Elijah Parish Lovejoy, Theophrastus Renaudot, Maximilian Harden, John Thaddeus Delane, Henry Jarvis Raymond, Joseph Pulitzer and Henry Watterson.

The names of eight more were announced for inclusion in the national hall of fame and four were chosen for the State gallery today at the Press Association meeting. Designated for the national section were: Walter Williams, founder of the University of Missouri School of Journalism; Henry Woodfin Grady, editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution for many years; William Cullen Bryant, poet and for 40 years editor of the New York Evening Post; Thomas Ritchie, editor of the Richmond Enquirer in the period after the Civil War; Carl Schurz, German-American editor and statesman of St. Louis and New York; Walter Hines Page, editor of the Atlantic Monthly and writer; C. P. J. Mooney, editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal; C. P. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian.

The men selected for the State gallery were: Ansel Nash Kellogg, founder of newspaper syndicate serving country newspapers; William Tylor Davidson of Lewistown, editor of the Fulton County Democrat from 1858 to 1915; John P. Beckman of Carthage, publisher and member of the State Legislature; John Hay, diplomat, statesman and writer.

MISSOURI PRESS ASSOCIATION HOLDING CONVENTION IN CITY

350 Expected to Attend Seventeenth Annual Meeting During Two-Day Program.

The seventeenth annual convention of the Missouri Press Association opened today at Hotel Statler. Attendance of about 350 was expected, many of the members being publishers of rural weeklies.

The day's program included addresses by R. C. Goshorn, Jefferson City, president of the association; Charles W. Keller, Columbia, field representative; Clarence E. Watkins, Chillicothe, speaking on State legislation affecting newspapers; Allen E. McGowan, field manager of the Minnesota Editorial Association; Vernon Nash, former St. Louisian, now professor of journalism at Yenching University, China, and Clifton C. Edom, Aurora, discussing possibilities of use of local pictures in small newspapers. Photo-engraving equipment suitable for small papers has been set up at convention headquarters.

There was a luncheon for members of the Missouri Associated Dailies. A banquet tonight will be addressed by Dean Isidor Loeb of the Washington University school of business and public administration and E. H. McReynolds of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. A business session tomorrow will conclude the convention.

GUARANTEED RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Common constipation is usually due to meals low in "bulk." Pills and drugs give only temporary relief. The sensible thing to do is to put "bulk" back into your meals. Millions of people get this needed "bulk" in a delicious cereal: Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Its "bulk" is much like that in leafy vegetables. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system. Some years ago, an investigation was made among thousands of ALL-BRAN users. 98 per cent found it satisfactory. Only 2 per cent had the type of constipation that would not respond to ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company. Just eat two tablespoons daily, either as a cereal or in cooked dishes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Nov. 13.—Swing of Leftist and Rightist at Leftist and Rightist stopped a stormy session Chamber today.

The trouble began during late over the World War of the Minister of the Roger Salengro. Opposing screamed invectives at each other when Premier Leger mounted the tribune, the left benches and the right benches in mad confusion. Books sailed through the air. The deputies slugged one another. One Leftist, dashing across in front of the Government benches, struck the Rightist Tixier-Vignancour. Tixier-Vignancour had been the Premier rose to Blum means war!

Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber, called a halt to the fighting and ordered ushers to clear the tribune. Start of Disorder: The Rightist Deputy, Hugues, carrying to the floor Chamber charges that Salengro was condemned to death as a traitor in the World War, forced to halt his speech when Salengro, seated on the bench beside Blum, shouted at each other. Leftists made similar against the Rightist Deputy Herriot.

A court of honor cleared the tribune on Oct. 30, of charges he betrayed his country during the war. The court, headed by Marie-Guy Yve Gamelin, Chief of Staff, declared Salengro had not been condemned as a deserter and that he had been acquitted by a military court during the war, while he was prisoner in Germany.

After several minutes of the deputies were separated and the session was resumed later. Meanwhile, Defense Minister Daladier won a confidence from the Chamber Committee after refusing to consider Communist and Socialist proposals that the term of military service be reduced. When the session was resumed, the chamber voted 105 to 100 to condemn the government against Salengro. It was the biggest majority ever for the Blum government in the Chamber.

A second motion, confirming Salengro's removal from office, was voted 374 to 201, indicating a Communist and Socialist vote against Salengro. The Communist demand for Salengro's removal was rejected. A Communist attempt to sign against Salengro was rejected. The Communist demand for Salengro's removal was rejected.

Criticism Split Threatened Moderate supporters of the Front government but they would bolt if Blum's government would not support the international non-interference agreement if Great Britain likewise. The Radical-Socialists, moderate element in the Popular Front, answered that they would support the Premier abandoned the Front independently. The Communist appeal to the Front to support their intervention. The Front Socialists to join their ranks in a large army of volunteers for the defense of Madrid. "There is not a minute to lose," the Communist leaders declared. They also demanded a truce for the proposed vote and the release of political prisoners arrested during the war, for making grenades and other munitions.

BLOWS STRUCK
AMID SHOUTING

Herriot Orders Sitting Ended After Speaker Is Interrupted and Books Sail Through Air.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Nov. 13.—Swinging fists of Leftist and Rightist Deputies clashed in a stormy session of the Chamber today.

The trouble began during a debate over the World War record of the Minister of the Interior, Roger Salengro. Opposing Deputies screamed invectives at each other and when Premier Leon Blum mounted the tribune, the Leftists left their benches and swarmed over the Rightists in mad confusion.
Books sailed through the air as the Deputies slugged one another.
One Leftist, dashing across the room in front of the Government benches, struck the Rightist Jean Louis Tixier-Vignancour with a right to the chin.

Tixier-Vignancour had shouted,
when the Premier rose to speak:
"Blum means war!"
Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber, called a halt to the sitting and ordered ushers to clear out the spectators.

Start of Disorder.
The Rightist Deputy, Henri Be-quart, carrying to the floor of the Chamber charges against Salengro, was condemned to death as a deserter in the World War, while deputies shouted at each other.

Salengro, seated on the Government bench beside Blum, remained silent as Rightists yelled: "Salengro is a deserter!"
Leftists made similar charges against the Rightist Deputy, Philippe Henriot.

A court of honor cleared Salengro on Oct. 30, of charges that he betrayed his country during the war. The court, headed by Gen.
Marie-G. ve Gamelin, Army
Chief of Staff, declared Salengro had not been condemned to death as a deserter and that he had been sequestered by a military court, during the war, while he was then a prisoner in Germany.

After several minutes of fighting the Deputies were separated and the session was resumed half an hour later.
Meanwhile Defense Minister Edouard Daladier won a vote of confidence from the Chamber Army Committee after refusing to consider Communist and Socialist proposals that the term of obligatory military service be reduced. He had threatened to quit the cabinet after this program encountered opposition.

When the session was resumed yesterday, the chamber voted, 427 to, to condemn the campaign against Salengro. It was one of the biggest majorities ever given the Blum government in the chamber.

A second motion, confirming confidence in the Government, was voted 374 to 201, indicating many centrists who opposed the campaign against Salengro were unwilling to vote confidence in the entire Government.

C. Alton Split Threatened.
Moderate supporters of the Popular Front government said today they would bolt if Blum yielded to Communist demand for intervention in Spain to save Madrid.

A Communist attempt to bolster Blum's defenses was opened by Jacques Duclos, secretary of the party in France, at a meeting of Popular Front deputies.

Duclos reminded the legislators of Blum's assertion last Monday that his government would scrap international non-intervention agreements if Great Britain would do likewise.

The Radical-Socialists, most moderate element in the Popular Front, warned that they would withdraw from the Premier's abandoned neutrality either independently or by agreement with London.

The Communists appealed to the Popular Front to support their demand for French intervention. They urged the Socialists to join them in resisting a large army of volunteers for the defense of Madrid.

There is not a minute to lose,
they declared.
They also demanded an open debate for the proposed volunteer army and the release of small prisoners, for making arrests last week Government without il-

Communists Renew Fight On Religion in Russia

Church-Going Blamed for Loss of 35 Per Cent of 1936 Crops—Propaganda to Be Increased.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Nov. 13.—Firm measures against religion were approved at a Communist Party Conference at Moscow yesterday, north of Moscow yesterday.

The delegates heard allegations that peasants, under the influence of priests, caused a loss of 35 per cent of Russia's crops for 1936 because of attendance at church.

The conference decided to increase anti-religious propaganda, to organize councils of militant godless persons in all districts and to open anti-religious schools to educate youths.

Speakers declared that on many collective farms in the Bialik and Galich districts, "church leaders had praised farm women who violated labor discipline by attending church."

One speaker asserted Evangelists circulated a statement saying: "Be as simple as doves and as sly as snakes. Jesus was of proletarian origin, the son of Joseph, the carpenter, and of a tolling woman. It is necessary to explain that Jesus Christ was the great Socialist and Communist predecessor of the Communist party."

The magazine Bolshevik declared women and older peasants still were strongly religious.

Among the younger peasants,
most of whom attended church in 1923, only 1 per cent of the men and 12 per cent of the women now go to church, the magazine stated.

Long middle-aged peasants, Bolshevik said, 3 per cent of the men and 26 per cent of the women are still churchgoers, while among older peasants 14 per cent of the men and 48 per cent of the women still worship.

Eastman and Others Discuss Government Rail Ownership

Thomas W. Lamont Declares Step
Is Not the Answer to Problems of the Roads.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Joseph B.
Eastman, former railroad co-ordinator and a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, told the dinner session of the annual transportation meeting of the Academy of Political Science last night that he did not question the practicability of Government ownership but added that because of the "staggering difficulties" in taking over the properties, "I am not now urging it."

Without regulation, he said, however, "the time may come, as it has come in other countries, when the system of private ownership and management will break down for reasons beyond control." He suggested that regulation "should be brought to the minimum which the public interest requires."

Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., held that Government ownership was not the answer to the railroads' problems.
He proposed that private ownership be maintained, but with "the closest co-operation of the Government."

Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, said processes now in operation would mean that "probably beginning in 1940 private investment in the railroads will be expropriated and they will be absorbed in some form of Government ownership or operation."

Teacher Under Inquiry
Denies Slurring Lincoln

Classes of Wisconsin U. Extension Instructor Stopped After Address.

By the Associated Press.
WAUSAU, Wis., Nov. 13.—T. Harry Williams, 24-year-old University of Wisconsin extension division history teacher, denied last night that he had in an Armistice day address cast reflections on Abraham Lincoln, as reported in the Wausau Herald-Telegram. The reported speech led earlier in the day to the discontinuation of Williams' classes pending an investigation by the university.

Williams said he was not quoted correctly in the newspaper. He said he did say in his address that many factors in 1861 were working toward war and that political leaders of both parties did nothing to stop them.

E. C. Hirsch, superintendent of Wausau schools, and E. A. Holm, director of the vocational school, announced that after receiving many complaints they were stopping Wil-iams' classes.

The newspaper quoted Williams as charging that "Lincoln plunged the nation into civil war merely to save a tottering Republican party."

Belgium Tells League It Must Clarify Sanctions

Urges Interpretation Include Measures Against "States Imperiling Peace."

By the Associated Press.
GENEVA, Nov. 13.—Belgium warned the League of Nations today that the sanctions article of the League covenant must be clar-ified.

A Belgian communication asserted:
"The existing uncertainties as to the practical meaning of the sanction article 16 must be dispelled so that the nations may know exactly the extent of their obligation and the help on which they can count in grave situations."

Belgium said it thought the covenant should be clarified not by amendment, but by interpretation.
This, it added, should be directly at securing the adherence to the League of Nations of all nations and at emphasizing measures to prevent war, including measures against states which imperil the peace.

The note insisted that the League
avoid the danger of creating opposing blocs of nations, both inside and outside the League.

ROOSEVELT PROCLAIMS DAY OF THANKSGIVING

Says Country Has "Safely Passed Through Troubled Waters."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Roosevelt today proclaimed Thursday, Nov. 26, as Thanksgiving day.

The text of the proclamation follows: "I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of November, 1936, as a day of national thanksgiving."

"The observance of a day of general thanksgiving by all the people is a practice peculiarly our own, hallowed by usage in the days before we were a nation and sanctioned through succeeding years."

"Having safely passed through troubled waters, it is our right to express our gratitude that Divine Providence has vouchsafed us wisdom and courage to overcome adversity. Our free institutions have been maintained with no abatement of our faith in them."

"In our relations with other peoples we stand not aloof but make resolute effort to promote international friendship and, by the avoidance of discord, to further world peace, prosperity and happiness."

"Coupled with our grateful acknowledge of the blessings it has been our privilege to enjoy, we have a deepening sense of our solemn responsibility to assure for ourselves and our descendants a future more abundant in faith and in security."

"Let us, therefore, on the day appointed, each in his own way, but together as a whole people, make due expression of our thanksgiving and humbly endeavor to follow in the footsteps of Almighty God."

"In witness whereof, I have become unto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed."

"Done at the City of Washington this twelfth day of November, in the year of Our Lord 1936, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and sixty-first."

ANTI-PENDERGAST MAN SEEKS TO LEAD G.O.P. IN LEGISLATURE

J. A. Gray Writes Letter to Republican Representatives; Won in County Roosevelt Carried.

By the Associated Press.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 13.—J. A.
Gray, of Watson, Republican State Representative from Atchison County, in letters mailed to all Republican representatives has announced his candidacy for minority leadership of the State Legislature during the coming 1937 session.

His principal opponent of the Pendergast machine in the last session of the Legislature, Gray was re-elected by 796 votes in a County
Roosevelt carried by 419 votes.

While delivering an attack on the Kansas City machine over State owned radio station WOS at the last session of the Legislature the power was cut off by what employees said was a burned-out transmitter tube. Gray charged that the breakdown was deliberate.

POPE MAKES HOUR'S SPEECH

Thus Dispels Rumors That State of Health Is Serious.

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 13.—Pope Pius XI spoke for an hour today to 300 representatives of the Priests'
Missionary Union, dispelling rumors that the state of his health was serious.

Witnesses said the Pope made the speech with only slight and natural evidences of weariness toward the close, and that there was no change in his tread in walking into and away from the hall. His voice was firm throughout most of the address.

'NO PEACE IN EUROPE TILL WORLD KNOWS BRITAIN IS ARMED'

So Declares Prime Minister Baldwin in Tilt With Winston Churchill.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 13.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Winston Churchill, clashed last night in the House of Commons over the progress of Great Britain's armament program. Churchill, War-time Minister of Munitions and First Lord of the Admiralty, derided the Government's policy and Baldwin defended it.

Churchill charged Britain never had been more imperiled "since the U-boat campaign was crushed." He told the House of Commons it should demand a parliamentary inquiry into what he described as neglect of the National Defense.

Baldwin, agreeing with Churchill on the urgency of rearmament, rebuked the Commons and the nation for opposition which, he said, prevented Britain from getting an early start in the European rearmament race. But now, he declared, though democracies are two years behind dictatorships, they have a unity of purpose nothing can break.

"There can be no peace in Europe unless every country knows we are prepared for war," Baldwin said.

LUTHERAN PASTOR AMONG 12
HELD IN ANTI-SOVIET PLOT

German Embassy at Moscow Says
It Can't Act as Pastor Is Native Russian.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Nov. 13.—A Russian-born German Lutheran clergyman was one of 12 persons arrested Wednesday in an alleged anti-Soviet plot, reliable sources said last night.

The pastor, the Rev. Mr. Streck, was to have performed a wedding for U. S. Vice-Consul George Minor and Mildred Wright, both of Charleston, W. Va.

He became "unavailable," and responsible sources said he was in jail.

The German Embassy said nothing had been heard from the Rev.
Mr. Streck for several days. German officials said they were powerless to act as the pastor was a native Russian.

The embassy, however, redoubled its efforts to learn the charges placed against five German nationals reported to have been held in-communicado since May 5.

Likewise concerned was the Austrian Embassy, whose spokesmen said they had been unable to learn the names of three Austrians reported held with the Germans, a Swede and several other persons.

It was reported that the Austrians held were Schutzbund members who fled from Vienna two years ago during the authoritarian government there.

The Schutzbund was a Socialist,
semi-military defense corps numbering about 150,000 which was dissolved by Chancellor Engelberg Dollfus in March 1933.

TREATY FREEING LEBANON
IN THREE YEARS SIGNED

Independence of Territory Mandated to France Is Conditional on Joining League.

BEIRUT, Nov. 13.—A French-Lebanese treaty granting independence to the Lebanese republic after a period of three years was signed here today.

Independence of the mandated territory was made conditional on the republic's admission to the League of Nations.

The treaty stipulated that French troops might remain for the purpose of preserving order.

AUSTRIA, HUNGARY JOIN ITALY IN PACT ON REARMAMENT

Right of First Two Nations to Build Up Military System Proclaimed After Parley.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Nov. 13.—The right of Austria and Hungary to rearm was proclaimed last night in a muniqué issued by the Foreign Ministers of Italy, Austria and Hungary.

Little Entente nations—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia —have repeatedly opposed Austrian-Hungarian rearmament, basing their protests on the post-war treaty of Versailles which forbade the two countries to rearm.

The communiqué declared the right to rearm was the principle objective of the new tri-Power accord.

The communiqué said Austria and Hungary would receive special privileges in the development of Ethiopia, where Italian sovereignty was formally recognized by the two nations last night.

The official statement did not disclose further details of the negotiations. Informed sources, however, declared the three countries —already bound by economic and financial pacts—had agreed on a united front regarding Russia, Spanish Leftists and the League of Nations.

A foreign office spokesman said
the Italian-Austrian-Hungarian accord was linked with a possible bid to Germany to join in a four-Power bloc.

Diplomatic quarters also heard that recognition of the insurgent (Fascist) Government in Spain, if the Madrid Government collapsed, was among the points of agreement.

ITALIAN REFUSES TO SIT BESIDE VACANT CHAIR OF ETHIOPIAN

JERUSALEM, Nov. 13.—Count
Quinto Mazzolini, Italian Consul-General, left the first session of the Royal British Palestine Commission yesterday because he was seated next to an empty chair reserved for the Ethiopian delegate.

The Ethiopian Consul-General Wolbe Geriel, did not attend the session, but Mazzolini issued a statement that he considered the seating arrangement "a serious breach of respect which is intolerable."

It was reported that the Austrians held were Schutzbund members who fled from Vienna two years

ment there.

Berlin Scientist Wins
Nobel Chemistry Prize

Award Granted to Peter Joseph Wilhelm Debye for Studies in Molecular Structure.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, Nov. 13.—Peter
Joseph Wilhelm Debye of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Physics in Berlin, was awarded the Nobel Chemistry Prize yesterday for his studies of the structure of the mole-cule.

Debye was born March 24, 1884.
He is a member of a number of academies of science, including the Washington (D. C.) and Boston Academies.

Prof. Carl David Anderson of

Pasadena, Cal., and Prof. V. F. Hess of Innsbruck University, Austria, will be given about $20,000 each for the Nobel award in physics, which was announced yesterday,
along with the award on letters to Eugene O'Neill, American playwright. Dr. Anderson, 31 years old, discovered four years ago the positron, or positive electron, a particle of the atom.

O'Neill cabled the Swedish Academy today that he would be unable to reach Stockholm in time to receive the prize personally. The award, incorrectly stated to amount to $45,000 in first reports, will be only $40,000. It was stated that the money for last year's prize, which was not awarded, has been added to the capital fund of the Nobel Foundation.

Judge Refuses to Restrain Railroad

Judge George C. Sweeney refused yesterday to issue a temporary injunction against the Boston & Maine Railroad to restrain the road from paying taxes under the Social Security Act. The injunction was sought by a stockholder.

Judge Sweeney granted a petition of the Attorney-General for permission to intervene in the action, and announced the case would be heard later on its merits.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely existing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Ash-Can Yawns.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I READ with interest your editorial "Another Candidate for the Ash-Can." Sunday, when I read Dr. George Gallup's article, I was also amused to see the credit he was taking for forecasting Mr. Roosevelt's election and landslide. Picking the winner was not a feat, for most people thought that Mr. Roosevelt would win, but by a close vote.

The final Gallup poll is good only by comparison with other straw polls, particularly the Literary Digest. In every state, except North Carolina, the Gallup poll is closer to the actual results than the Literary Digest poll, and in most states considerably closer. However, when you compare their percentages for Roosevelt in each state with the actual election, you find that the Gallup poll is close in only a few states.

Kentucky, a Southern State, gave as many votes on a percentage basis to Mr. Landon as did Michigan, and practically as many as Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Who would have predicted this? In fact, who did actually predict this tremendous landslide? Mr. Roosevelt not only had the honor cards, but also excellent distribution.

After comparing the actual vote by states with the Gallup forecast, you should be more convinced than ever that Gen. Johnson's celebrated "ash-can" is yawning invitingly for "scientific" sampling.

Our "Secret" Ballot.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
AT this year's election, I cast my first vote, and I was astounded to find that the "secret" ballot was not secret at all because my ballot was numbered and a record of that number kept opposite my name on the registration list. Obviously, this is the same as if I had signed my name to my ballot.

A NEW VOTER.

Even Artists, It Appears, Must Eat.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THANK you for your editorial of Nov. 6, "St. Louis Art on View," giving consideration to the discussion of rental fees for contemporary artists' exhibitions.

Exhibits of "old masterpieces" cost old masters nothing, but the living artist, the source of the "old masterpieces" of tomorrow, has human needs—bread, canvas and paints.

Unless the art profession finds practical solutions for these problems in an industrial world, art production must of necessity be curtailed.

As usual, the Post-Dispatch, with clear vision, cuts through the external clutter and confusion of ideas to the basic principles involved.

JESSIE BEARD RICKLY.

As "Sport Salad" Put It.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I WISH to congratulate L. C. Davis on his verse on the election in his "Sport Salad."

"Alas for Morgan and du Pont,
As goes Maine so goes Vermont;
The old tradition is a myth—
For confirmation, see Al Smith.
Yea, Landon, in his hour of need,
Was leaning on a broken reed;
While Henry, with a soulful sigh,
Just sat and watched the states go by."

This is one of the finest comments on the election I have seen.

Commends the Union Electric Co.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
RECENTLY I read in your paper an article stating that the Union Electric Light & Power Co. had issued a declaration to the effect that the married women in its employ were to be released after a stated period of grace. To my mind, there is no better step in business life in this, which will definitely establish us in the path of recovery. I believe that the Union Electric Light & Power Co. is to be heartily commended for taking the initiative in this matter. Undoubtedly, if other large corporations and companies were to emulate this example, many of the new boys and girls would get their chance.

MRS. R. K.

Cheers for Father Coughlin.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I READ in your paper about Father Coughlin and I wish we had more men like him. I say three cheers for Father Charles E. Coughlin, Victor Miller and Joe Folk; these three fearless men fought for honesty and cleanliness. Who can say no? The truth sure hurts.

M. D.

A Necessary Provision.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
IT is probable that no contract plan for the future financing of a public milk inspection service in the St. Louis milk area will ever be approved by the Consumers' Council or the Medical Society or the Dental Society or the Chamber of Commerce unless the contract contains a provision for periodic examination by a certified public accountant of the books of the dealers so as to reveal the places from which fluid milk comes and the amounts received. This will be necessary in order to eliminate the evil of bootleg milk and to assure the collection of all money due under the contract.

FOR A SECRET BALLOT.

In his final word to the nation on election eve, President Roosevelt said:

And when you go to the ballot box tomorrow, do not be afraid to vote as you think best, for the kind of world you want to have. There need be no strings on any of us in the polling place. A man or woman in the polling booth is his or her own boss. There once was a time when the ballot was not secret. That is not so today. How a citizen votes is the citizen's own business.

Unfortunately for the citizens of Missouri, what the President said is not true in this State. In theory, the ballot is secret in Missouri. Judges and clerks of election and other public officials are charged by law with preserving its secrecy, and even the voter himself is prohibited from permitting his ballot to be seen, with the idea of letting it be known how he voted.

Yet the ballot is not secret. No one who votes in this State can be sure that his ballot is safe from prying eyes. It is a well-known fact that many Missouri voters are intimidated when they go to the polls because they fear their ballots will be examined. It is a well-known fact that voters have had reprisals visited upon them after it became known how they voted.

Since the election, the Post-Dispatch has received many complaints from citizens about the system used in this State. When a voter enters the polling place and is identified as having registered, his name is entered in a poll book opposite a number. The same number is placed upon his ballot. It thus becomes a mere matter of comparison when the ballots are counted to find out how each person voted.

In St. Louis, a particularly vicious use has been made of the information to be gained from numbering ballots. Not only have the election officials been given access to it, but also party challengers and watchers. Each challenger is supplied with a list of voters. When the clerk calls out the number of each voter, the challenger puts it down opposite the name on his list. He may then hand the list to the watcher, who is present during the count, and the watcher thus is able to report back to party bosses who voted for whom.

So that, even assuming the integrity of all election officials, the party watchers gain knowledge which may be used to harass voters.

The practice of numbering ballots is supposedly a safeguard against dishonest election practices. In case of a recount, it makes it possible to identify the ballots and verify the vote. But the realistic result of the practice is to place a dangerous weapon in the hands of party bosses.

In discussing this condition last summer, we pointed out that the use of voting machines would preserve the ballot's secrecy, but such machines are costly and there seems to be little likelihood that we shall get them in the near future.

Another solution has been suggested by Miss Emma Bobb, former chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, whose services were drafted this fall by the new St. Louis board. Miss Bobb thinks the law might be changed so that each voter would put his ballot in a sealed envelope, the envelope numbered and no other mark of identification placed thereon. At the closing of the polls, all records pertaining to the election, such as poll books and registration books, would be removed by the officials who supervised the voting. A new set of officials would then take charge of the counting. It would be impossible for the latter to identify the ballots.

Surely, some plan should be adopted to protect the citizen in the polling booth. Surely, the secrecy of the ballot, one of the fundamental principles of democracy, should be safeguarded.

The President's assurance to citizens should be made true in Missouri.

ON THE RIGHT OF PETITION.

The Board of Education, which showed its mettle recently by severely rebuking a member for unwarranted interference in administrative affairs, made a mistake at the same meeting by refusing to permit a delegation of Negroes to address it in protest against the site selected for a new Negro school.

In extension of this refusal, officials said that one group of the protestants had been told to appear before a board committee, but failed to accept the invitation. Other groups did not even have this opportunity. Officials also insinuated that a land-owning corporation, disappointed in the failure to sell a site, might have been back of the protest. If that was so—and no proof was offered—it was the board's duty to expose such a motive. The fact that cogent reasons existed for approving the site already recommended did not excuse the board from hearing reasons for the objections. Perhaps they were equally good, but the protestants were given no chance to state them. Certainly the use of a corner of already cramped high school grounds as the site of an elementary school, as approved by the board, may be open to criticism. It may be a serious mistake.

To refuse a hearing to any group of citizens, regardless of race or financial status, is undemocratic and highly improper. A quarter of a million dollars of the taxpayers' money is involved in the proposed structure. The board should suspend action on the undertaking until both sides can be thoroughly heard.

NOT THE GOVERNMENT'S DOING.

Employees of certain companies are now receiving blanks to be filled out in purported connection with the collection of information "required" under the Social Security Act. One of these blanks, which has come to our attention, asks the employee to indicate what church he attends and whether he is a member, if he is divorced, if he owns his home and the extent of his education, that is, whether he completed elementary school, high school, evening or business school or a college course.

Now, if a company wants to ask its employees for such information and to keep such information on file in its office, that is the business of the company. The company should make it unmistakably plain, however, that the information is being sought by the company and not by the Federal Government. No company has a right to send out such a blank and to accompany it with a form letter saying that "in accordance with legislation passed by our present administration on social security, we are enclosing herewith a form which we are required to maintain for our records." Deliberately or otherwise, such a statement must confuse many employees, giving a large proportion of them the idea that the United States Government is asking what church he belongs to and other personal questions.

If workers will inspect the blanks carefully, they will find that no such impertinent questions are asked on the official form, printed by the Government Printing Office. Blanks which pry into the employee's private affairs are printed by private printing companies, bought by the employer and circulated on the employer's initiative and for his own information. This sort of misrepresentation is of a piece with that which proved such a dud in the closing days of the presidential campaign.

MINE SAFETY IN MISSOURI.

It is unfortunate that it required two mine disasters, in which six lives were lost, to bring about a rigid campaign for safety in Missouri mines. It is fortunate, however, that the campaign has been undertaken, for it will doubtless prove the means of saving many lives. The deaths at Moberly and Fulton were tragically unnecessary, but there is some consolation in knowing that they have caused an awakening to the need for safety precautions.

The State Department of Mines, inadequately manned though it is, has begun a State-wide drive, and has already closed more than 30 shafts as lacking in proper safety devices. Many of Missouri's 2000 coal, zinc, lead, clay and shale mines are operating with faulty escape shafts or none at all, says Arnold Griffiths, Chief State Mine Inspector. He adds: "We intend to close, after due notice, every mine which does not comply with the mining laws."

It is likely there will be protests from some mine operators against the steps being taken. Providing safety facilities may be costly, even burdensome in some instances. There will be general public support, however, for a policy that places the safeguarding of human lives above operators' profits. Certainly no mine, large or small, should be permitted to remain open if it is a potential death-trap for the workers.

The situation should arouse concern over the way the Department of Mines has been handicapped by mistaken economy on the part of the Legislature. It has only four inspectors for all the 2000 mines in the State, and is lacking in safety equipment and operating funds. Governor-elect Stark, it is announced, favors legislative action to remedy these defects. Without question, funds for these purposes should be voted by the next Legislature.

DR. MARRIOTT.

The passing of Dr. W. McKim Marriott, who died Wednesday in the University of California hospital, will be regretted by many in and about St. Louis and in the field of pediatrics generally. As dean of the Washington University School of Medicine and head of its department of pediatrics until last June, he associated the St. Louis institution with notable researches in this science. At the same time, he helped make the St. Louis Children's Hospital, where he was pediatrician-in-chief, widely known for enlightened practice in child training and care. His contributions to infant feeding, to blood analysis and to the investigation of hyperinsulinism, a disease which is the reverse of diabetes, are sufficient to record his name among American men of medical science.

EUGENE O'NEILL.

Awards of the Nobel Prize for letters have aroused controversy on some occasions in the past; there can be none this year. Eugene O'Neill has long been recognized as the foremost American dramatist, as shown, for one thing, by the fact that the Pulitzer Prize has thrice been conferred upon him. Now the Nobel committee at last recognizes his title to world distinction as well. The honor is the most outstanding since the committee so rarely selects Americans in this field. In its 35-year existence, it has done so only once before, in the case of Sinclair Lewis.

The award is notable, too, in coming at a time when its recipient's genius, though long recognized, is still developing and growing. O'Neill has always been preoccupied, even in his first one-act plays, with man and his place in the universe, with the nature of the human soul and its destiny. He has recorded his concepts by various means and in a multitude of forms. Because of his seeming unconcern for commercial success, he has felt no fear of experimentation, but has launched out boldly with strange stage devices which often, but not always, won audience approval. The newest O'Neill play is always an eagerly awaited adventure, for each presents another step in the evolution of an artist.

O'Neill's versatility has known no bounds, and his plays range from the humorous to the tragic, from the grimly ironic to the religious and philosophical, but always they keep firm hold on the underlying motives. His position of creative supremacy, secure in his own day and in generations to come, makes his the logical name to bear this highest honor of international letters.

TURNING UP WITH A RED FACE.

In its current issue, the Literary Digest makes a clean breast of it all. It pleads guilty to the monumental error of predicting the election of Gov. Landon and swears that it followed the same method of polling the voters that has been successful in the past. Why did its poll go wrong? Far from having an explanation to offer, the Digest craves one from its readers. "We were far from correct," it says. "Why? We ask that question in all sincerity, because we want to know." We fear the Digest will have to be left in its quandary. Meanwhile, the Digest intimates that four years hence, undiscouraged by its sad experience of 1936, it will conduct another poll. A glut for punishment.

HORSES ON THE BALLOT.

Those who lament the passing of the horse in this motorized age should take a look at Milwaukee. Far from being a back number, the horse became a live public issue there and, probably for the first time in equine annals, got a place on the ballot.

The issue was horses for police. They were an institution under the late Chief Laubenhimer, who felt that the Milwaukee mounteds contributed efficiency as well as distinction to law enforcement. Local Socialists, of whom there are many, thought otherwise; their favorite expression for the mounted police was "Cossacks." Mayor Hoan, a Socialist, frequently vetoed appropriations for upkeep of the six police stables, whereupon public subscription bought the hay and oats. When Chief Kluchesky took office last August, he removed the horses from service. That roused so furious a controversy that the Common Council had to approve a popular vote on the subject.

Now the ballots have been counted and, by the solemn referendum of an enlightened electorate, the horses win, by a vote of 120,914 to 92,147. The automobile may be having its inning, but when was it ever declared the people's choice by popular vote?

In his visit to Ireland, Mr. Farley won't have to waste any time looking for four-leaf clovers.

GETTING AROUND THE LAW.

Woodrow Wilson's Tribute to Brandeis

Writing to committee chairman after great storm roused by appointment of Louis D. Brandeis to Supreme Court, President gave his appraisal of jurist; found him "singularly qualified, by learning, by gifts and by character;" praised his "rare analytical power, his deep human sympathy" and his devotion to American ideals.

A Letter by President Wilson to Senator Culberson, May 5, 1916.

Today is the eightieth birthday of Justice Brandeis.
—Editor's note.

I AM very much obliged to you for giving me an opportunity to make clear to the Judiciary Committee my reasons for nominating Mr. Louis D. Brandeis to fill the vacancy in the Supreme Court of the United States created by the death of Mr. Justice Lamar, for I am profoundly interested in the confirmation of the appointment by the Senate.

There is probably no more important duty imposed upon the President in connection with the general administration of the Government than that of naming members of the Supreme Court; and I need hardly tell you that I named Mr. Brandeis as a member of that tribunal only because I know him to be singularly qualified by learning, by gifts and by character for the position.

Many charges have been made against Mr. Brandeis; the report of your committee has already made it plain to you and to the country at large how unfounded these charges were. They threw a great deal more light upon the character and motives of those with whom they originated than upon the qualifications of Mr. Brandeis.

I myself looked into them three years ago, when I desired to make Mr. Brandeis a member of my Cabinet, and found that they were based for the most part from those who hated Mr. Brandeis because he had refused to be servile to them in the promotion of their own selfish interests, and from those whom they had prejudiced and misled. The propaganda in this matter has been very extraordinary and very distressing to those who love fairness and value the dignity of the great professions.

I perceived from the first that the charges were intrinsically incredible by anyone who had really known Mr. Brandeis. I have known him. I have tested him by seeking his advice upon some of the most difficult and perplexing public questions about which it was necessary for me to form a judgment. I have dealt with him in matters where nice questions of honor and fair play, as well as large questions of justice and the public benefit, were involved. In every matter, I have received from him counsel singularly enlightening, clear-sighted and judicial, and, above all, full of moral stimulation.

He is a friend of all just men and a lover of right; and he knows more than how to talk about the right—he knows how to get it forward in the face of its enemies. I knew from direct personal knowledge of the man what I was doing when I named him for the highest and most responsible tribunal of the nation.

Of his extraordinary ability as a lawyer, no man who is competent to judge can speak with anything but the highest admiration. You will remember that, in the opinion of the late Chief Justice Fuller, he was the ablest man who ever appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States. "He is, also," the Chief Justice added, "absolutely fearless in the discharge of his duties."

Those who have resorted to him for assistance in settling great industrial disputes can testify to his fairness and love of justice. In the troublesome controversies between the garment workers and manufacturers of New York City, for example, he gave a truly remarkable proof of his judicial temperament and had what must have been the great satisfaction of rendering decisions which both sides were willing to accept as disinterested and even-handed.

Mr. Brandeis has rendered many notable services to the city and State with which his professional life has been identified. He successfully directed the difficult campaign which resulted in obtaining cheaper gas for the City of Boston. It was chiefly under his guidance and through his efforts that legislation was secured in Massachusetts which authorized savings banks to issue insurance policies for small sums at much reduced rates. And some gentlemen who tried very hard to obtain control by the Boston Elevated Railroad of the subway of the city for 99 years can probably testify as to his ability as the people's advocate when public interests call for an effective champion.

He rendered these services without compensation, and earned whether he got it or not, the gratitude of every citizen of the State and city he served. These are but a few of the services of this kind he has freely rendered. It will hearten friends of community and public rights throughout the country to see his quality signally recognized by his elevation to the Supreme bench; for the whole country is aware of his quality and is interested in this appointment.

I did not, in making choice of Mr. Brandeis, ask for or depend upon "endorsements." I acted upon public knowledge and personal acquaintance with the man, and preferred to name a lawyer for this great office whose abilities and character were so widely recognized that he needed no endorsement. I did, however, personally consult many men in whose judgment I had great confidence, and am happy to say was supported in my selection by the recommendation of the Attorney-General of the United States, who urged Mr. Brandeis upon my consideration independently of any suggestion from me.

Let me say by way of summing up, my dear Senator, that I nominated Mr. Brandeis for the Supreme Court because it was, and is, my deliberate judgment that, of all the men now at the bar whom it has been my privilege to observe, test and know, he is exceptionally qualified. I cannot speak too highly of his impartial, impersonal, orderly and constructive mind, his rare analytical power, his deep human sympathy, his profound acquaintance with the historical roots of our institutions and insight into their spirit, or of the many evidences he has given of being imbued to the very heart with our American ideals of justice and equality of opportunity; of his knowledge of modern economic conditions and of the way they bear upon the masses of the people, or of his genius in getting persons to unite in common and harmonious action and look with frank and kindly eyes into each other's minds, who had before been heated antagonists.

This friend of justice and of men will ornament the high court of which we are all so justly proud. I am glad to have had the opportunity to pay him this tribute of admiration and of confidence; and I beg that your committee will accept this nomination as coming from me quick with a sense of public obligation and responsibility.

After Madrid?

From the New York World-Telegram.

FOR months the world has been hoping that either the fall of Madrid or the defeat of the besieging rebels would somehow put an end to the Spanish bloodshed and the peril to the rest of Europe.

The indications are that it will do nothing. The fighting in Spain is no ordinary civil war. Probably the Russia of 1917 immediately thereafter offers the nearest approach to the Spain of the present. The Russians and Red were then cutting each other's throats wholesale to see which would take over the rule of the Czars. Similarly, for purposes of their own, Central Europe sided one side and the Allies the other. Something similar is now going on in Spain. The Fascists of Gen. Franco are gripped with the Communist-Socialist-Anarchist Syndicalists of Premier Caballero. And the fall of Madrid, with the transfer of the capital to Valencia, is not likely either to end the war or the danger of its spreading.

Valencia is on the Mediterranean. Therefore, it has access to the sea, on which there from one to three dozen Soviet submarines are reported to be conveying food and arms to the loyalists. But German and Italian warships are likewise in easy reach of those waters. So, off Valencia lurks a potential catastrophe of major importance to the world.

Both Berlin and Rome have just proclaimed a sort of holy war against Bolshevism and, picking up the gauntlet, Moscow has decreed that victory for the Spanish Leftists is vital and must be assured. Britain and France want neither Fascism nor Communism in power in Spain. They prefer a democratic regime. France is already bedeviled by countless dangers, both from within and without, and cannot afford the addition of any more. And British troops are growing for the Empire's short-cut to India and the Far East, via Suez. No more than France would she welcome Russian-sponsored Reds or Fascist-sponsored Whites in Spain.

BACK GO CHICAGO'S CLOCKS.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FOLLOWING the decision at the polls Nov. 3, Chicago's City Council passed an ordinance returning that metropolis to Central time, except during the summer. The ends an experiment in government foolishness. Powerful interests worked for establishment of Eastern time the year around. The voters said Nay when they got a chance.

So ends in failure Chicago's attempt to adjust its life to a schedule which demands that during parts of the year the face of the bed and start them to school, send workers to office, shop or factory in darkness. Reflects Judge Oscar F. Nelson:

"The tick the people gave the Eastern time ordinance proves one thing—that legislators, whether they be Aldermen, State Representatives or Congressmen, should not legislate affecting the habits of the people without ascertaining the desires of the people. The mass of people are extremely patient and endure the steam roller of political expediency in many matters. But they do become aroused when the steam roller tells them to get up two hours before sunrise in winter."

Chicago has learned anew the folly of passing sumptuary legislation designed to regulate the habits of mankind, and the futility of expecting to make mankind like it.

WHO WON THE WAR?

From the Toledo (O.) Blade.

No longer need there be any doubt who won the World War. Lloyd George did despite the bungling interference of Pershing and his American army.

TODAY

The App

It is obvious that the NRA have come quite different things persons, and much understanding can be some agreement can be to what we are all talking. For example: It is the President has order to be made on "the achieving the principal outlawed National Industrial Act." What goes to current reports, the abolition of child labor, maintenance of standards and the regulation of trade practices.

Now, these are most goals, and there are many who would like to see because they sincerely these goals. But there are equally sincere, who are posed to a revival of them, the 1-1000 NRA of these goals: they are thing entirely different friends of NRA and the are at cross-purposes. The same words, but they are ing about the same thing.

It would be useful, to see whether it is not clear away the verbal. Now, among those who followed in principle, the following table is a tabulation representing those established in some line and a trade union speak employees were authorized a "code," which, after amount of perfunctory by an appointed official, law of the land, enforce courts for all who were sense of NRA, and to deeply opposed. They profoundly objectionable first, it hands over to some the sovereign, power laws; second, because these private persons, only for the vested interest, to make their form and compulsory the "final" state.

For its critics, in NRA does not mean an excellent things that codes tried to achieve, the system of centralizing by private interests, they denounce that system what they are denouncing labor and commerce, to abolish child labor, or working conditions, or unfair trade practices, test the right of collecting. They are denouncing ular way of making laws of subjects. And when they that system of law-making have behind them the whole Supreme Court "liberal" and the "conservative" alike.

Now, consider what a understanding results persons say "NRA," inter labor and commerce, and others say "NRA" this privileged system of vested interests. The thinks the opposition of group is inspired by chafers of labor.

Surely the time has come the verbal disagreement, out what are the realistic. This will take a ysis and careful definition formed discussion.

As a starter, I should gest that there are issues of fundamental about which the American has to make up its mind is what kind of regulation requires, and the second shall do the regulating the present, let us leave first question and assume is a general agreement of imposing minimum standards for trade working conditions.

Now, when you come is to fix and enforce, minimum standards, number of big choices.

"I'm Proud of"

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Approach to Social Reform

It is obvious that the mystic letters NRA have come to mean quite different things to different persons, and much unnecessary misunderstanding can be avoided if some agreement can be reached as to what we are all talking about.

For example: It is reported that the President has ordered studies to be made on "the possibility of achieving the principal goals of the National Industrial Recovery Act." What goals? According to current reports, the goals are the abolition of child labor, the protection of collective bargaining, the maintenance of standard labor conditions and the regulation of unfair trade practices.

Now, there are many persons who would like to revive the NRA because they sincerely believe in these goals. But there are others, equally sincere, who believe in the same goals and yet are deeply opposed to a revival of the NRA. They are these: They signify something entirely different. Thus the friends of NRA and the opponents are at cross-purposes. They use the same words, but they are not thinking about the same thing.

It would be useful, therefore, to see whether it is not possible to clear away this verbal confusion. Now among those who were opposed in principle, the NRA meant the following: that a trade association representing those now established in some line of business and a trade union speaking for the employees were authorized to write a "code," which, after a certain amount of perfunctory inspection by an appointed official, became the law of the land, enforceable in the courts for all who were in that industry or might wish to enter it.

That, as many see it, is the essence of NRA, and to that they are deeply opposed. They regard it as profoundly objectionable because, first, it hands over to private persons the sovereign power to make laws; second, because it authorizes these private persons, who speak only for the vested interests in an industry, to make their laws uniform and compulsory throughout the United States.

For its critics, in other words, NRA does not mean some of the excellent things that some of the codes tried to achieve. It means the system of centralized law-making by private interests, and when they denounce that, they are denouncing what they are denouncing. They are not denouncing the purpose to abolish child labor, or to improve working conditions, or to stamp out unfair trade practices, or to protect the right of collective bargaining. They are denouncing a particular way of making laws on these subjects. And when they denounce that system of law-making, they have behind them the authority of the whole Supreme Court, of the "liberal" and the "conservative" Justices alike.

Now, consider what a useless misunderstanding results when some persons say "NRA," meaning better labor and commercial practices, and others say "NRA," meaning this privileged system of legislation by vested interests. The first group thinks the opposition of the second group is inspired by chisellers and swindlers of labor. The second group thinks the first group is prepared to subvert the whole system of responsible government.

Surely the time has come to end the verbal disagreement, and to find out what are the real issues of principle. This will take a lot of analysis and careful definition and informed discussion.

As a starter, I should like to suggest that there are two separate issues of fundamental principle about which the American public has made up its mind. The first is what kind of regulation industry requires, and the second is who shall do the regulating. But for the present, let us leave aside the first question and assume that there is a general agreement on the desirability of imposing legal minimum standards for trade practices and working conditions.

Now, when you come to ask who is to fix and enforce these legal minimum standards, there are a number of big choices. It might be done through NRA codes. It might be done by specific congressional action, as in the Guffey Act. It might be done by general congressional legislation, as in the Black 30-hour bill or the O'Mahoney licensing bill. All of these Federal methods would almost certainly require a constitutional amendment so drastic as to obliterate the dual form of the American Government. But they are theoretically possible.

The other approach is to work through the states, through compacts among the states, reinforced perhaps by Federal legislation like that authorized in section 2 of the twenty-first amendment, which forbids the importation into any state of goods made in violation of its laws. This approach may also require a constitutional amendment, but it would be one designed, not to weaken the authority of the states, but to strengthen it. It was some such amendment as this that Gov. Landon had in mind.

The approach through the states was, until fairly recent times, the one preferred by social reformers. But two experiences turned them into Federalists. One was discouragement over the experimental results in 48 state laboratories is something not to be abandoned lightly.

Now, the opportunity for an approach through the states is greater today than it has ever been before. The Democratic party is in control of 40 states. It will almost certainly obtain control shortly of California, Maryland and New Jersey as well.

Thus, all the important industrial states, and all the states which are becoming industrialized, are in the hands of men who acknowledge Mr. Roosevelt's leadership. In this time of push for social reforms by concerted action through the states, by compacts among the states, and by such Federal action on interstate commerce as may be necessary to fortify the actions of the states?

To be sure, this looks like a slower method of achieving reform. But, since the Federal Government is now without the necessary power, actually it is the quickest available method. For, supposing it were possible which I doubt, to draft a workable amendment, it would take longer to have it ratified than to begin legislating in the states. The Federal approach certainly means a protracted and bitter constitutional struggle. The approach through the states would involve many local struggles, of course, but it would provoke no nation-wide division on basic principles.

ELOPEMENT JUNE 1 DISCLOSED

William E. Sommers and Miss Violet June How, former Washington University student, eloped and were married in Waterloo, N.Y., last June 1. It was announced last night at a party given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. How, 7318 Gayola place, Maplewood.

Sommers, 21 years old, is a graduate of Maplewood High School and is employed by a lithographing firm. His wife, 19, was a sophomore at the University of Missouri last year and of the year before attended the Washington University School of Fine Arts. They are living with Sommers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Sommers of Old Florissant road, Ferguson.

LITTLE THEATER OPENS WITH PERIOD COMEDY

"The Shoemaker's Holiday," From Elizabethan Era, to Continue Through Next Week.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

THOMAS DEKKER'S comedy of manners, "The Shoemaker's Holiday," from the last year of the sixteenth century, afforded the Little Theater its season's opening last night, as well as annual picnic in doublet and fashions. The play will run through this week and next.

In most respects, "The Shoemaker's Holiday" is only one of those paper-thin works in which the audience spends the evening trying to decipher archaic expressions and judging calver and tilths of the various gentlemen of the personnel. It bows, it plumes, it preens and quite often it bores.

Yet F. Cowles Strickland, the Little Theater director, has the power to invest his selections from the dramatic library with such picturesque touches, such "production value" as the movie-makers would say, that all have a definite charm. Witness "The School for Husbands" last year and "Richard II" before that. Again he covers the ancient frame of the drama with a fine cloak; again he puts music, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Oh, No, John, No" and such into his mouth, again he works out ingenious stage devices. And for spice, he keeps and accents the Elizabethan naughtiness.

Gordon Carter's jewel-box effects on the cubby-hole stage are highly important in the synthesis of production. Carter's one set, a city dooryard, manages, by several levels, perspectives and lighting angles, to work into almost unlimited variations.

"The Shoemaker's Holiday" leaning more to Jonsonian than Shakespearian influences, tells merely of a youth separated from his true love by parents and the wars, and of his use of disguise, as a shoemaker's apprentice, in regaining his lady. He, Lacy, is not the Shoemaker referred to in the title. That worthy, Simon Eyre, is a much-married craftsman on his way to becoming Lord Mayor of London. In his good fortune, Lacy shares.

The acting version in use at the Little Theater was developed by Strickland himself, who made three acts out of five. Varying little from the essential spirit of the play, it permits the use of a single stage setting instead of several and introduction of the song numbers.

The cast is more than a match for the manuscript. James Gillis as Lacy and Rozene Johnson as his beloved are not only romantic enough but have good enough voices to be soloists with the singing.

C. G. Renier as the Shoemaker rather too strongly suggests Charles Laughton as Henry VIII, or Henry VIII as Charles Laughton, in best of mannerism. Ethel Hendy Cross, Edna Lincoln Cushing, Mabel Edsall, J. J. Eppenstein, Evelyn Fitch, Jessie M. Gleyre, Mary Hallett Gronemeyer, Philip Gronemeyer, Emille M. Gross, Florence Hazeltine, Genevieve Lawler, Dorothy Ferguson, Lawrence, Frank Nuderscher, Mercer Orwig, Jessie Beard, Rickly, Carl Vogt, Elsie Long Wells and Arthur Zeller.

The gallery will be open, during the exhibit, from 1 p. m. till 5 p. m., except on Tuesday when it will be closed, and on Sundays when it will be open from 3 p. m. till 5 p. m.

Josephine Johnson and Her Sister Show Pictures.

The first joint exhibition of water colors by Josephine Johnson, Pulitzer prize novelist and her sister, Marjorie Johnson, will last until the end of the month at the print room of W. J. Polk, Inc., 4651 Maryland avenue.

Although Josephine Johnson has had her water colors exhibited before, this is the first time her sister, a student at the School of Fine Arts of Washington University, has displayed hers.

Twenty-two of the 47 paintings are by Marjorie Johnson. Her water colors are less complex in composition than her sister's, while her subjects include the modernist's conception of warps, possums, pigs, bluebirds and grasshoppers.

ARTISTS' GUILD ANNUAL WATER COLOR EXHIBIT

74 in City and County to Display 149 Paintings Beginning Sunday.

Seventy-four artists of St. Louis and St. Louis County will exhibit their water colors at the sixth annual exhibition of water color and craftwork of the St. Louis Artists' Guild, 812 North Union boulevard, which will begin Sunday and end Dec. 4.

The exhibition, the largest of its type yet held at the Artists' Guild, includes 149 water colors, most of which have a conservative modern trend.

The artists exhibiting for the first time at the Guild gallery include: Catherine Blair, Edna M. Braun, Florence Hazeltine, Grace L. Koch and Leverett M. Willets.

Among the artists whose works have been exhibited in St. Louis before are: Mildred Bailey Carpenter, Fred E. Conway, Ethel Hendy Cross, Edna Lincoln Cushing, Mabel Edsall, J. J. Eppenstein, Evelyn Fitch, Jessie M. Gleyre, Mary Hallett Gronemeyer, Philip Gronemeyer, Emille M. Gross, Florence Hazeltine, Genevieve Lawler, Dorothy Ferguson, Lawrence, Frank Nuderscher, Mercer Orwig, Jessie Beard, Rickly, Carl Vogt, Elsie Long Wells and Arthur Zeller.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE St. Louis Country Club will provide the setting tonight for one of the most elaborate balls of the debutante season—the debut of Miss Betty Mahaffey, a special maid at the Velled Prophet's ball last month, and the third daughter of Birch Oliver Mahaffey, 9 Portland place. Two of the out-of-town guests, who have arrived for the ball, are guests at the Mahaffey home. They are Miss Mary Merrill, Hartford, Conn., a former classmate of Miss Mahaffey, and Miss Porter's School, and Miss Betty Crotty, Houston, Tex., her cousin. Miss Crotty's brothers, Frank and John Crotty, accompanied her to St. Louis and they are with Bradford Shinkle Jr. at his parents' home, 38 Portland pl. His four Stuart Crabb, New York, the debutante's uncle, and her cousin, William McBride Love, son of Mrs. I. D. Kelley Jr., a student at Princeton University, are also here for the party.

Several dinners will be given preceding the ball. Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard, Denny road, will entertain in honor of Miss Miquette Magnus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Magnus, 4 Horne place, at their home. Balacon, E. home, 38 Portland pl. will print on them, will provide the decorations. The guests are: Miss Mahaffey and her guests, Miss Gricelda Polk, Miss Claire Angert, Miss Nancy Bascom, Miss Josie Conant, Miss Frances Catlin, Miss Anne Flase, Miss Edie Virginia Zeibig, Miss Elaine Bonny Meyer, Miss Susan Elizabeth Thompson and Miss Helene Lee, a guest at the Magnus' home who arrived today from Los Angeles, Cal., to be here for two weeks. Their escorts include: Harry Langenberg Jr., Samuel Goodyear, Victor Davis, Reuben C. Taylor Jr., Ford Morrell, James H. Wear Jr., Stuart Smith, Arthur B. Shepley, Franklin Ferriss II, Henry Carpenter, Daniel L. Schaffly, William Julius Polk Jr., B. Langdon Carlton, Edgar E. B. Langdon, Jr., William Hamerstick, Clarkson Carpenter Jr., William McBride Love, John S. Leahy Jr., T. Randolph Foster, William Desloge and his guest, Newell Childs. The guests will be served buffet style.

Miss Marie Eleanor Busch and her fiancé, Herbert Condie Jr., will be honored at a dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bakewell at their home, 4907 Pershing avenue. Guests will include attendants who are to be in the Condie-Busch wedding Nov. 28. After dinner the guests will attend the Mahaffey ball.

Miss Augustus Wainmley of New Orleans, who arrived last night to be the guest of Miss Marjorie Chrysler, daughter of Perry Chrysler, 4441 Westminister place, will be the guest of honor at a dinner given tonight by Miss Roberta Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Pierce, 21 Vandewater place. Miss Wainmley is a former roommate of Miss Louise Kennard at Villa Duchesne, who is also a guest at the Chrysler home.

Miss Jane Clyde Miller, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence F. Miller, will be hosted to a few of her friends at dinner at her home, 4448 Maryland avenue. The guests will be seated at a U-shaped table decorated with a centerpiece of flowers and bowls of roses, grapes on either side. Her guests are Miss Mary Alice Collins, Miss Barbara McCourtney, Miss Sally Gruner, Miss Betty Hulburd, Miss Carol Wright Tausig, Miss Florence Fleishel, Miss Josephine Lamy, John Gillis, J. Boyd Ware, Harry Kelly, Frank Corley, Selden Spencer, Edward L. Bakewell Jr., Thomas T. Richards Jr. and Edwin Jones. Miss Hulburd will give a cocktail party for Miss Miller's guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Earl Hulburd, 78 Vandewater place, before dinner.

A small informal dinner will be given at the home of Miss Harriet Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Edwards, 5870 Clemens avenue. Her guests will be Miss Ruth Donnell, Miss Marjorie McCarthy, John Hollingsworth Sweeney, George W. Thatcher and Philip Bond Ponke Jr.

Two new parties have been planned for the debutantes. A luncheon at the St. Louis Woman's Club will be given by Mrs. J. Le Beau Christy, 7200 Greenway drive, and Mrs. Lloyd B. Wright, 6807 Waterman avenue, in honor of Miss Betty Hulburd, Dec. 8.

Miss Mary Alice Collins and Miss Susan Elizabeth Thompson, Velled Prophet queen, will share honors at a dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. J. Clark Streett at their home, 36 Kingsbury place, Tuesday night, Dec. 22. The dinner will precede the dance at which Miss Mary Louise Nolker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nolker, 4946 Pershing avenue, will make her debut at Bellerive Country Club.

Plans are virtually completed for the wedding of Miss Genevieve Lamy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy, Forest Ridge, and John Franklin Barlow Jr., which will take place at 11 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 9 at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. The Rev. Francis J. O'Connor will officiate. Following the wedding there will be a breakfast and reception at the Lamy home.

Miss Lamy has chosen her sister, Mrs. Walter Hollis Averill, as matron of honor, and Miss Josephine Lamy, a debutante of this winter, and Miss Mildred Webster as bridesmaids.

Lafayette Rollett will be best man for Mr. Barlow and his groomsmen include, Walter Averill, Matthew Edward Murray, Carlyle, Ill., a nephew of Mrs. Lamy; Edward L. Bakewell Jr. and one other to be selected.

Miss Lamy's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Gunter, who are honeymooning in Honolulu, have not been able to arrange return passage because of the maritime strike. They will possibly seek passage on the Canadian boat line this week-end.

Miss Josephine Lamy will be formally presented to society at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club, Dec. 5. Invitations were received today.

Mrs. A. J. Mummert, 6901 Kingsbury boulevard, will be hostess tomorrow at a luncheon-theater party honoring Miss Virginia Brown, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Steigers Brown, and Miss Marjorie Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Morris. Following a luncheon at the St. Louis Woman's Club the following guests have been invited to attend the matinee of "Boy Meets Girl": Miss Nancy Bascom, Miss Mary Alice Collins, Miss Josie Conant, Miss Ruth Donnell, Miss Harriet Edwards, Miss Josephine Lamy, Miss Elaine Meyer, Miss Marjorie McCarthy, Miss Emma Lucy Stuever, Miss Susan Elizabeth Thompson, Miss Edie Virginia Zeibig, Miss Alice Jane Meyer and Miss Dorothy Waitke.

Mrs. Mummert has invited Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Brown to sit at a smaller table with her at luncheon and also attend the matinee.

Miss Eleanor Van Schaak of Denver, Colo., who has been here visiting Mrs. Kent Ravenscroft, 5603 Kingsbury court, and Miss Ruth Delbe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Delbe, 7128 Washington avenue, left yesterday morning for New York. She will visit her sister there, Mrs. Harry Combs, and will again be through St. Louis on her return to Denver.

Dean Mildred C. Thompson of Vassar College arrived today to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Walter Harris, 10 Carrowood, and their daughter, Miss Virginia Harris. Dean Thompson will be in St. Louis during the semiannual meeting of the associate alumnae of the college this week-end.

MRS. H. BLAKESLEY COLLINS, 50 Portland place, will entertain a large group of friends at luncheon tomorrow at the St. Louis Country Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stoessel of New York, who are here for the week-end.

Mr. Stoessel, composer and conductor, is in St. Louis to hear the St. Louis premiere of his Concerto Grosso for string orchestra and piano, played by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. A former concert master of the St. Louis orchestra, Mr. Stoessel is director of opera and orchestra department of the Juillard Graduate School in New York, and the Worcester (Mass.) Festival, and is summer conductor of symphony concerts in Chautauqua, N. Y.

Among the guests invited to meet the visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Vladimir Golschmann, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Louis La Beaume, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jackson Lindsay, Claude S. Kennerly and Mr. and Mrs. George Lee Matham.

Mrs. Collins will leave St. Louis next week for the East. She will spend Thanksgiving with a cousin in Worcester, Mass., and will visit in New York for three weeks.

Mrs. George F. Baer Appel of Wynnewood, Pa., and her young son, William Nevin Appel, have arrived to spend two weeks with Mrs. Appel's aunt, Mrs. George S. Mephman, 4457 Westminister place. Mrs. Appel, who was the former Miss Elizabeth Thomas, is a sister of Mrs. Archie Lee of Fordyce lane. Mrs. Mephman is planning to build a house in Fordyce lane.

Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly, 28 Portland place, and her daughter, Miss Noel Kennerly, have gone to Pittsburgh for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Kennerly's daughter, Mrs. John Kennedy Beeson, and to New York to see friends.

Mrs. H. P. Giberson and her son, Sam, of Denver, Colo., arrived Friday to visit Mrs. Giberson's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Y. Gladney, 5056 Westminister place. Next week Mrs. Giberson, her son, Mrs. Gladney and Mrs. Gladney's brother, David B. Graves of Hartford, Ill., will leave for San Marcos, Tex., where they will be the guests of Mrs. Gladney's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Woodson. On their return home they will visit the Texas Centennial and will arrive back here about Nov. 24. Mrs. Giberson and her son will return to Denver after Thanksgiving.

Miss Luciana Gladney, who has been visiting in the East with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Graves Gladney of New York, and her sister, Miss Katherine Gladney at Northampton, Mass., who is a freshman at Smith College.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Thompson, 4616 Pershing avenue, left Saturday for the East. Mr. Thompson is visiting his mother, Mrs. William Thompson, in Philadelphia, and Mrs. Thompson is stopping in New York at the Gladstone Hotel.

Dean Mildred C. Thompson of Vassar College arrived today to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Walter Harris, 10 Carrowood, and their daughter, Miss Virginia Harris. Dean Thompson will be in St. Louis during the semiannual meeting of the associate alumnae of the college this week-end.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER TO SENATOR CLARK

1200 City and County Democrats Attend Celebration of Election Victory.

St. Louis and St. Louis County Democrats celebrated the landslide in the recent election at a testimonial dinner last night to United States Senator and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark at Hotel Jefferson, sponsored by the St. Louisans-for-Roosevelt organization. About 1200 persons attended, many of them city officials and successful candidates in the election.

Senator Clark, recipient of many compliments during the speaking and referred to several times as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1940, said, in response, that he believed the tribute was to President Roosevelt rather than to himself, and remarked that the Democratic victory in the election was to "serve notice on the captains of privilege that they had gone too far and had best turn back the Government to the people, where it belongs."

"I can speak for President Roosevelt and the Democratic Congress when I say that we look forward to the promotion of the welfare of all the people without regard for class, party, creed or race," said Senator Clark. "It should be the aim of all good Americans, Republicans and Democrats alike, to give the man who sits in the White House the support he deserves for the next four years.

"All of us were confident of the President's re-election in the recent campaign, but I don't think anyone had any idea that it would be such a landslide. I think even Jim Farley was mistaken when he said he did."

Tribute to Champ Clark. James L. McQuie of Kirkwood, a friend of the Clark family, who introduced the guest of honor, paid tribute to the Senator's father, the late Champ Clark, for many years Speaker of the House of Representatives, and told of campaigning with Champ Clark during several of his races for Congress.

"No man has a better background to understand and solve public questions than Bennett Clark," said McQuie. "He is perfectly fitted for a career of public service and I hope I shall live long enough to cast my vote for him for President of the United States."

Mrs. Jerome F. Duggan, speaking in behalf of various women's organizations active in the recent campaign, said that the large registration of voters in St. Louis was due, in large measure, to the interest of women in the campaign.

"In Missouri, the name of Clark is as well known as the name of our State," she said. "We knew and honored the Senator's father, Champ Clark, and we know the disappointment he suffered and his sorrow when he failed to bring the presidency home to us, but we look forward to four years from now when his son can have the honor which he was denied."

J. Lionberger Davis, treasurer of the St. Louisans-for-Roosevelt organization, who presided, declared the purpose of the dinner was not only to "pay tribute to high statesmanship, and leadership that has been above partisanship, but to the loyal band of men and women who worked day and night, earnestly and intelligently to bring about victory."

"The Liberty League, the Minute Men and the Sentinels of America have passed away," said Davis. "The American people have rendered an emphatic and almost unanimous verdict, which can be interpreted as the result of pent-up feeling, held back through 12 long years of greed."

Davis suggested perpetuation of the St. Louisans-for-Roosevelt as the Good Neighbors League and suggested, in introducing Mayor Dickmann, as lieutenant, that the city administration do its best to eliminate the smoke nuisance.

The Mayor introduced the following guests at the speakers' table: Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, vice-president of the Board of Police Commissioners, and Mrs. Lambert; Excise Commissioner Thomas L. Anderson and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Davis, Jacob M. Leahy, Richard S. Hawes, Kenneth Teasdale, William King Gardner, Russell L. Dearmont, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1936; Congressman-elect C. Arthur Anderson and Mrs. Anderson; Mrs. Lawrence McDaniel, Harry Barker, Chilton Atkinson, Mrs. Carroll G. Stripling, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Farrington, Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, Frank M. See, Thomas A. Casey, Mrs. Fred A. Reid, Miss Lydia Lee, Mrs. L. D. Freeman, Mrs. F. H. Littlefield, and Charles M. Hay, former City Counselor and Special Assistant Attorney-General of the United States.

Auto Wreck on Express Highway. A young man, who said he was Joseph Fehrmann, 18 years old, 2837 Ohio avenue, was booked on charges of careless driving and charges of property after an automobile he was operating tore do 25 feet of metal fence and overturned on the new express highway in Forest Park last night. The driver, uninjured, told police that steering gear failure caused his machine to swerve out of control.

Victim Says He Caught Assailant Cheating.

Raymond Burdick, 27 years old, 1617A North Twentieth street, was taken to City Hospital at 11 o'clock last night suffering from a stab wound of the abdomen, which he said was inflicted by a man he knew only as Charley, following a quarrel over a tavern card game. Burdick said he was playing cards in a tavern at 1950 Warren street and departed when he discovered that Charley was cheating. The man followed him outside, stabbed him with a knife and ran away, Burdick stated.

Well, I'll Tell You—By Bob Burns

IT KINDA scares me sometimes when I think how much influence I might be havin' on other people. Now, my own folks never cared very much about money until I got on the radio. Take my Aunt Diddy, for instance. She's the one that had so many children and when they were babies, she always dressed 'em up in them things that you fold into a triangle. In fact, she's had so many babies, she thinks that's what you mean by "The Eternal Triangle." Well, she's always made them triangle things her- self, but since I got on the radio, she's started buyin' them things at the store. She says she's not going to advertise flour any more until she gets a sponsor. (Copyright, 1936.)

AERIAL VIEW OF THE NEARLY COMPLETED NORTH TWELFTH BOULEVARD

Gleaming with fresh concrete, the boulevard, between O'Fallon and Palm streets, is already partly in use. In the center foreground is the older part of the improvement, with the open cut of the Illinois Terminal System on the right and Biddle Market on the left. Next is the cutoff at O'Fallon where the boulevard swerves to the former Thirteenth street. It crosses Cass avenue on the west side of a large factory group and curves by way of Mullanphy street into the former Fifteenth street, running in a northwesterly direction. The fresh concrete ends at Palm street.

Friday 13. No Bad Luck.
California's Great Day.
Justice Brandeis at 80.
Flying the Pacific.

By Arthur Brisbane.
(Copyright, 1938.)

THIS is Friday, the 13th, but do not shiver. Friday, the 13th, can do no harm except to those foolish enough to believe that there is danger in Friday, the 13th. There is no bad luck in Friday, the 13th, because there is no such thing as bad luck. There are foolishness and incompetency in abundance, too much of each.

The opening of the bay bridge, connecting San Francisco and Oakland, Cal., is important not only to California and the two united cities, but to the whole country.

This magnificent bridge, eliminating ferries on the bay that separates San Francisco and Oakland, is a magnificent accomplishment of engineering and public spirit. Eight and a quarter miles long, its towers more than 500 feet above the water, the center spans of 2310 feet, this bridge, built in four years at a cost of $77,000,000, will be used yearly by 10,000,000 automobiles and their millions of passengers, plus passengers on surplus lines, for which the bridge also provides.

This great national improvement, demonstrating the power that resides in wealth and courage combined, is remarkable, first of all for its cheapness. It cost more than $77,000,000, but it will pay for itself in useful public service with low tolls in the beginning, that will be steadily reduced, and at the end of 20 years it will be a free bridge.

Planned, not for individual profit, but for the benefit of the great State of California, the cities at either end of the bridge and the millions of automobiles and passengers visiting California from all over the United States, the bay bridge is a noble monument to modern community enterprise and engineering genius.

In the immediate neighborhood of the bridge, 400,000 families now find themselves from 20 minutes to one hour closer to San Francisco, which means increased convenience for those families, with greater prosperity, for merchants and all who deal with the public.

The new bridge means first, more rapid development of life, with greater prosperity and convenience for all the population, near and far. The American family, in its automobile, may now start from Portland, Me., roll across the continent on good roads, and reach the great bridge to reach the edge of the Pacific Ocean and the beautiful park that San Francisco has built upon that shore. The traveler from "down East" will see the magnificent "Golden Gate" that opens the Pacific, soon to be spanned by a giant bridge of its own. Near that spot, you step into a Pacific clipper ship and fly to Asia. The world does move.

The lesson in these magnificent works on the Pacific coast is this: It pays to spend money, when you spend it usefully, for great numbers of people.

It pays to have courage, wisely directed, and the State of California has been wisely courageous in its great undertakings.

The opening of this bridge emphasizes again the truth of the saying, "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be." What men can imagine, they can do.

Justice Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court celebrates his eightieth birthday today. True, Justice Brandeis is 80 years old, but as the French say, "He flies but carries them." It is true, as Secretary Ickes says, that "the fundamental rights of man" interest Justice Brandeis, primarily an interest more important than any other; but what are the rights of man? Do they come ready made, or must man create them by hard work?

Justice Brandeis has given to the University of Louisville, the city of his birth, his most important personal papers, not to be opened until his death.

If the Associate Justice tells in those papers even one-tenth of what he knows, they will reveal important information.

Joseph M. Proskauer, former Justice of the Supreme Court, says there is nothing in the anti-Semitic statement that "Jews are Communists." That hardly needs proof. There are 5,000,000 Jews in the United States, 2,000,000 in New York City. The total Communist vote in the last election was about 31,000 in the nation, 30,000 in New York. Evidently many Jews are not Communists.

As you read this, Joan Silen, 2 years old, is flying the Pacific Ocean, returning to Manila with her mother. That child can understand little about the journey, the vastness of the earth; but, young as she is, she understands more about that journey from California to Asia than the wisest human being understands about the voyage through space of the human race, glued by gravitation to this "small planet," traveling in eternity through infinite space.

"WOMEN LIVE UP TO A PART"

Author of "Wake Up and Live", in St. Louis, Gives More Formulas

By Virginia Irwin

IT'S NICE to be loved. Anybody knows that.

You're papa's pet because you are a smart girl who holds down a big job. You're mama's darling because you have a soft heart and remember all the poor relations on Christmas.

Or maybe you're the little woman idolized by the hubby because you bake a tasty layer cake and see that the buttons are on his overcoat.

Yes, it's nice to be loved. But it's also apt to be dangerous, because some day you may wake up and discover that your papa or your mama or your husband is gone and that the person they thought you were is gone, too. Too late in life, then, you suddenly realize that for years you have been doing the things you did simply because you were trying to live up to the picture that someone else held of you.

Maybe instead of a big business girl boasted about by her papa, you should have been a little mother bouncing babies on your knee.

Maybe instead of mama's darling who sent knickknacks to the relatives on Christmas, you should have been a hermit-lady, unhampered by family ties.

And maybe instead of trying to live up to hubby's picture of you as champion layer cake baker and guardian of the overcoat buttons, you should have been a lousy housekeeper and spent your time instead becoming a concert pianist or a lecturer on world peace.

"Woman is too apt to try to live up to the picture that someone who loves her unconsciously paints of her," Dorothea Brande (Wake Up and Live) Brande explains. "Woman is the victim of her sympathy. She wants to be, not the person she really is, but the person someone else loves thinks she is."

Men don't have this trouble—to such a great extent at least—Miss Brande has decided. That's why men get going in life earlier than women do.

"Take one of these women who crack up," suggests Author Brande. "As likely as not the break down can be traced to the fact that the lady in question has been doing, not what she was cut out for, but something for which she was never suited."

Dorothea Brande reached these conclusions while she was working on her best-seller, "Wake Up and Live," which has been purchased by some 87,000 people in the United States and accepted by many as a sure-fire success formula.

"No amount of work poured into a job will bring success, unless you are suited to that job," says Miss Brande, in explaining that some women who slave at home-making, or office work, or what have you, may have every outward appearance of being successful, and yet be raw failures when the reward to themselves is considered.

It all goes back, she thinks, to the fact that a great many women never take self-inventory and decide just what they really want to do. They attempt to play the part that will please someone they love or who loves them. They stifle their native characteristics and acquire a new set of qualities that will fit into the role they find themselves playing. When a crisis comes, they find their acquired characteristics unequal to the situation, and the result is a muddle that may ruin the rest of their lives.

TAKE the woman who prides herself on her housekeeping, for instance. If she's a born home-maker and knows beyond a doubt that that is what she wants to do, that is what she should do. Perhaps even if she someday loses her husband, and the youngsters all grow up and move away, she still can play the role of keeper of the house. To be absolutely safe, though, in case the house goes with the husband's death, she should have some hobby to which she can turn when all else is gone.

But take the woman who prides herself on her housekeeping only because her better-half boasts that there's none like her. She may someday wake up and find that the best years of her life have been spent seeing herself through the eyes of her husband. And in the end, she must begin anew to build the life that should have been started years ago when she had the youth, and stamina, and the opportunity to do the thing that suited her best. And had she had the foresight to take herself to task and do that thing that fitted her best, she could still have had a satisfied husband—one who boasted of her other accomplishments rather than her housekeeping—and saved herself the bitterness that comes with the realization that years have been wasted hoodwinking herself into thinking she was a success.

Dorothea Brande knows that writing is the thing she has always wanted to do and probably always will do. She has a spanking new husband but that isn't stopping her from going on with the two books she now has under way.

"It's like you used to feel when you were long hair and got it wet," Dorothea Brande laughs. "When you got your long hair wet you knew you were in for it. Nothing to do but see that you got it dry. And that's the way you feel when you've found the thing you should do. Nothing to do but work at it, until you're successful in that particular thing."

Of course author Brande admits that you've first got to take stock of your ability, but once you know that you have the ability to execute your ambition, there should be no detours until you reach the top. The formula for reaching the top which Dorothea Brande gave in her book, "Wake Up and Live," is one she has tested herself and the one she prescribes for women who know what they want to do and who are not just playing at doing something because their sympathies whisper, "He thinks I'm perfect the way I am. I won't ever let him know that I'd like to be somebody different."

Living up to an ideal set by somebody else won't ever pay dividends. You've got to live up to your own ideal. You can't build for success on characteristics acquired to fool the other fellow into thinking you're exactly the gal he thinks you are.

You've got to depend on native characteristics to see you through crises and give you a hand up to success. And the sooner you discover that it's a losing proposition to try to be the gal someone you love or who loves you, thinks you are, the sooner you will be able to start building the foundation for your success.

"That's why so many women don't get going until later in life than men do," says Miss Brande, who admits she's fat, forty and fairly successful. "Women waste too many years seeing themselves through somebody else's eyes. Some of them wake up, of course, and manage to be successful. Others never do wake up and go through life doing things for which they never were suited just because they've adopted the picture that someone else held of them."

Which is why Dorothea Brande says it's nice to be loved, but it's dangerous.

The Best Effects

In Color Harmony

By Elizabeth Boykin

"I'm the kind of a lady who's always clipping recipes out of the paper and saving directions I run across for making slip covers, draperies and this and that," said our minister's wife. "So I've gotten to be quite a handy man and can make almost any improvements around the house, technical ones, that is, and I am the best furniture wacker ever! But I am always stumped when it comes to selecting colors. Right now I'm worrying about the living room and would certainly appreciate some help."

Her furniture is walnut and mahogany, with a sofa in dull mustard gold and two upholstered chairs in dimmed greens. She'd like a broadloom carpet in eggplant color if we think that would be all right, and she is considering two new Duncan Phyfe end tables finished in bone white with dark walnut tops. Also she may get a pair of delicately painted Chinese table lamps, a new floor lamp and some crystal accessories. What would we advise for draperies and should she get Venetian blinds? The walls will need a fresh coat of paint.

Of course we're always glad to oblige with suggestions because we adore mixing colors, but we'd prefer something a little more powdery—wisteria perhaps or a grayed apricot. For the walls why not have a light gray-green, then draperies in a lovely flowered chintz in toned-down antique colorings over Venetian blinds painted the wall color. The Chinese table lamps sound beautiful to us for this room, but we'd like something in dull pastel tones for accessories instead of crystal. And for the floor lamp, we'd have one of those approved indirect type lamps that will cast a soft natural glow over the room.

When possible mix the dough the day before making cookies. It will improve them and make them much easier to handle.

Analysis of Hand Played in Hungary

Although Contract Was Set, Better Handling Would Have Avoided It.

By Ely Culbertson

THE hand analyzed today was taken from a Hungarian newspaper's account of a tournament held recently in Budapest. Unfortunately, the only comment concerning the hand was that it had been the turning point of the match between the finalists in the team-of-four contest. One of the team stopped at two no trump and made the contract, for a plus score of 170 points. The other team reached three no trump—4 and were, of course, defeated.

"The 270 point swing was more than the final net difference in scores."

A study of the hand made me intensely curious about the newspaper's use of the phrase "of course," in its reference to the defeat of three no trump. After a not too protracted analysis I felt certain that phrase had been hastily and unsoundly employed. This was the hand.

The bidding:

North East South West

1 diamond Pass 1 heart Pass

2 diamonds Pass 2 no trump Pass

3 no trump (final bid)

South's first response of one heart was the best choice at his command. It left open to his partner the opportunity to bid a possible spade suit at the one level. When North merely rebid his diamonds, South properly made another effort to "go places."

His two no trump was quite correct. It is difficult to imagine how the other North-South team could have stopped at two no trump.

PRESUMABLY West opened his fourth highest club. Declarer, of course, ducked and won the club queen. The diamond queen obviously would be the next play, and when the nine appears from West, an overtake in dummy is mandatory. A count of tricks discloses that only five of the six diamonds are necessary to the contract. The overtake of the queen insures this number against any subsequent break. Since the contract was reported defeated, the declarer must have overlooked this elementary safety play. Failure to overtake would limit the declarer to three diamond tricks and leave him with the hopeless prospect of finding four tricks in the spade and heart suits, in addition to the two club tricks already established.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Will you please give the proper bidding of the following partnership hands? Neither side was vulnerable, South was dealer, and East and West never entered the bidding.

"Self-Pity Is A Spotlight For Oneself"

A Discussion of Its Reasons and the Trouble It Can Cause.

By Elsie Robinson

THESE people who are always pitying themselves, snuffing over past bad breaks and seemingly on the prowl for fresh martyrdoms, they infuriate you, don't they? Make you wish you could "give 'em something to cry for."

But did you ever stop to wonder what made them that way? Why should any human being prefer grief to happiness, or seek humiliation? For the reason which lies at the root of practically all human activities—the good old ego.

Of all home-made rack tarts which minister to cussedness and conceit, none is more effective than self-pity. Particularly when applied within the family circle. Given a good, chronic case of self-pity—and there's practically no limit to the rumpus you can raise with a heckled husband or a weary wife.

Have you one such moping by your own fireside? Then send him or her Florence Guy Seabury's latest book—just taking care to remove yourself immediately to points unknown. "LOVE IS A CHALLENGE," she calls it—and there's precious little that doesn't tell about the diversified devils which masquerade under the name of affection.

"Sackcloth and Ashes." There's a chapter which should be included free with all wedding licenses. It exposes every phase of this weeping racket, from the wistful little widow mourning who blocks her children's marriages with her tears, to the lovelorn lads and lassies who kill themselves in a final, furious effort to "get hunk" with the unfortunate objects of their unrequited affections. Spite suicides! Doesn't sound reasonable, does it? Yet human nature goes to amazing lengths to gratify its own spite—and, nearly always, rage lies behind all manifestations of melancholia. Rage because the ego can't get its own way!

"There is always anger in self-pity," says Mrs. Seabury. "The individual expected immunity from the common lot. . . . We are misled when we regard people of this type as passive and self-abnegating. Actually they are neither sacrificial nor humble, for as long as the ego plagues itself, it is exalted, demanding adulation."

WHY are The Blues such a popular indoor exercise? You'd consider person Plain Screw who went around plugging medals on himself. Yet we accomplish the same result with self-pity. Just another way of turning the spotlight on ourselves!

If you want to be a successful writer, choose themes of sentimentality, says Irving Berlin. "Sometimes I think," he continues, "that self-pity is the strongest and most accessible human emotion. That's why so many songs expressing it are written. From the standpoint of the injured person they say in effect: 'Look what you've done to me. Gee, what a raw deal I had!'"

Raw deals—what a blessing they are to inflamed egos! It takes hard work to become a real hero, but anyone can become a victim with a few snuffles, and achieve an equal amount of attention. No wonder mankind souls hug their martyrdoms. And just try and take 'em from them!

"Did you ever try to help a lover of misfortune, or to suggest how her anguish is largely self-created?" asks Mrs. Seabury. "Anger greets your efforts; surging, brooding resentment, as if your kindly heart were insulting crime. Result: the is the watchword of those who mourn nor will be comforted. Those who wallow in misery do not wish to have even a fraction of it taken from them."

So, my advice to you is: sent yourself from the you can have with other ple, but go out with other doing, until he gives signs you are the only one whether you enjoy it or not could do some people that you do; and perhaps change your mind too someone you had not known who may be more ways you do not realize your right to find out while he is experimenting ing his chance.

I am president of a Theatrical Society in St. Louis County seeking members from all classes of persons. We are in need of seamstresses, actors and musicians.

Any one desiring information regarding this Guild, please contact me by phone or mail which I shall leave with a class of persons. We are in need of seamstresses, actors and musicians.

The Guild particularly to grade, high school students.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WONDER if you can just what is wrong. I am 21 years of age and a high school. Since I was old I have thought one of our circle of friends. He graduated two years ago and is still here in town.

Before I was 18 he asked me to date until that age, explaining this boy. Since then he has been to my house a year or more.

Lately he has been going with the boys and baggages with me to go to ball games, etc., and I to enjoy himself this way. I think he should not be with me to go.

A week ago he went to and with some other girls. He only later. Well, these girls kind that drink and smoke. The type he talked against and advised keep clear of them. He to Chicago with an older returned he has been too his work to come and see I believe his work and away from me is his child.

My heart is filled with Carr; but a doubt is creeping and I want you to prepare your advice, for the end tried not to let him know I care. I don't accuse him thing, but just worry and it if girl or did he just of me?

My parents know about want me to let him out. I would rather be alone than with another boy, so I to see your answer.

YOU are very generous hearted in your attitude your friend and I hope rewarded for your high sterling character. It is the boy is having his mind wordiness and it is well boy in that state of mind experience. No doubt he that you will be waiting chooses to return. But sure this always brings a as soon as they find the have to exert themselves in the good graces, and the love of the girl who cares Loyalty and devotion she warded with tenderness but sometimes it takes reminder that, while the cares, she will not be so sit alone to wait. That finds that others want to vides a stimulus.

So, my advice to you is: sent yourself from the you can have with other ple, but go out with other doing, until he gives signs you are the only one whether you enjoy it or not could do some people that you do; and perhaps change your mind too someone you had not known who may be more ways you do not realize your right to find out while he is experimenting ing his chance.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I HAVE been reading your column for some time and have noted the many persons who seek something to utilize their time, or an outlet for their particular talent in dramatics, singing, playing of musical instruments, sewing, painting, dress and costume designing and dancing.
I am president of a Theatre Guild located in St. Louis County which is seeking members from just such a class of persons. We are in particular need of seamstresses, carpenters and musicians.
Any one desiring information further regarding this Guild may contact me by phone or mail, both of which I shall leave with you. This is a splendid opportunity for any one who is either interested in the theater or who has a great deal of time heavy on their hands and desires some pleasant occupation.
The Guild particularly is helpful to grade, high school and college students.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
I WONDER if you can tell me just what is wrong. I am 17 years of age and a senior in high school. Since I was 14 years old I have thought one of the boys in our circle of friends wonderful. He graduated two years ago, but is still here in this town working.

Before I was 16 he asked me for dates, but my parents objected and asked me not to date until I reached that age, explaining this to the boy. Since then he has been coming to my house—a year and eight months.

Lately he has been going out a lot with the boys and breaks engagements with me to go with them to ball games, etc., and I want him to enjoy himself this way, too, but I think he should not break a date with me to go.

A week ago he went to a dance and with some other boys, took two girls home. He only told me later. Well, these girls are the kind that drink and smoke and pitch-hike. The type he has always liked. Against my advice he went to keep clear of them. He also went to Chicago with an older man, who has a very tough name. Since he returned he has been too busy with his work to come and see me. And I believe his work and pleasure away from me is his chief interest.

My heart is filled with him, Mrs. Carr; but a doubt is creeping in and I want you to prepare me, with your advice, for the end. I have tried not to let him know how much I care. I don't accuse him of anything, but just worry and wonder. Is it a girl or did he just grow tired of me?

My parents know about this and want me to let him out of my life. I would rather be alone than go with another boy so I am anxious to see your answer.

DOUBTFUL.
You are very generous and big-hearted in your attitude toward your friend and I hope you will be rewarded for your high ideals and sterling character. It may be that the boy is having his first fling at wordiness and it is well to let a boy in that state of mind have his experience. No doubt he feels sure that you will be waiting when he chooses to return. But I am not sure this always brings a boy back. Unfortunately, some men tire, just as soon as they find they do not have to exert themselves to keep in the good graces, and to keep the love of the girl who cares for them. Loyalty and devotion should be rewarded with tenderness and honor, but sometimes it takes a sudden reminder that, while the girl still cares, she will not be satisfied to sit alone and wait. Then, too, if he finds that others want her, it provides a stimulus.

So, my advice to you is not to absent yourself from the pleasures you can have with other young people, but go out with them, as he does, until he gives signs that he sees you are the only one for him. Whether you enjoy other company or not, cheerfully let it be thought that you do; and perhaps you can change your mind too and find someone you had not known before and who may be more to you in ways you do not realize now. It is your right to find out for yourself, while he is experimenting and taking his chance.

Dear Martha Carr:
THE only thing I've wanted most in life is to be a nurse, so that I could do some good in this world. I've had almost two years in high school, but all the hospitals require four. Maybe you or some of your readers know a hospital which does not require this. Please let me know if you do. ETHEL.
All St. Louis hospitals, so far as I know, require the four years of high school. Why not go ahead and get the extra two years, before you start studying nursing?

My dear Mrs. Carr:
Y little girl is cross-eyed and I would like to know if there is a clinic in St. Louis that would examine her and treat her gratis, or for very little, as we cannot afford a regular oculist. MOTHER.
The Washington University eye clinic at Euclid and Kingshighway is held every day except Saturday, Sunday and holidays at 1 o'clock p. m.

Children Are Not All Suited To "Pre-School"

Even Normal Child When Young May Be Unadapted To Others.

By Angelo Patri

WILBUR is 2, going on 3; catching up on 3 very rapidly. His mother, fearing the isolation of the only child in the house, entered him in the nursery school. The teacher was delighted to receive him. Mother was delighted at the thought that now Wilbur would have playmates. She was a bit astonished to find Wilbur hatted and gloved, waiting for her at the gates of the school. "I'm all ready," said he cheerfully. "I've been waiting for you."

Thinking that perhaps this was one of the ways the school had found good for the comfort of the new entrant mother drove him home happily enough. "Did you have a good time, Wilbur?"

"O, yes, fine. I'm going again tomorrow." He was waiting at the gate the next day, although mother had started a bit early in hope of seeing the teacher. She started earlier the third day for the same reason, and again found Wilbur ready and at the gate. Becoming suspicious she returned to school one hour after leaving him and there he was waiting.

"O, yes," said the teacher, "we thought we would allow him to stay in the groups as long as he wanted to and as soon as he seemed to tire we let him go out. The weather is so fine just now. Gradually he will become accustomed to the longer periods of play, we hope."

That evening mother talked it over with father. "Seems funny to me," said he, "but I never went to one of those schools so I can't say. What's the idea of sending a 3-year-old kid to school?"

"So he can learn to adjust himself to other children. Staying by himself he will not get the experiences that his social development demands. He has to learn to give and take, and live happily with other children; and this is the time he learns."

"Waiting at the gate, eh? Well, you know best." And that was all of that. Wilbur was not at the gate the next time, but he came promptly when the car drew up. "I was all ready," said he cheerfully.

"He is doing better, we hope," said the teacher, not too reassuring in tone or manner; and again mother wondered.

ONE morning, about three weeks ago, Wilbur had started to school, his mother heard a car pull up at the door, and looked out. Here was the teacher and Wilbur. "The Headmistress sent Wilbur home. She thinks he is not sufficiently developed to play with the others yet. She hopes that they will return him when he is more matured."

Mother's hurried visit to the school brought this news: Wilbur poked children anywhere he happened to place a finger. He pushed them about as if they were furniture. He took a passionate liking for whatever toy or tool another child was using. He slapped out right and left whenever he found his path obstructed. He felt, smelted, even tossed the children about him most unexpectedly. The children called it punching, kicking, biting and resented Wilbur's way. "So I just had to send him home."

Wilbur did all those things, but—and don't be shocked—he was being perfectly normal in his behavior. He was investigating children and their ways according to his stage of growth and understanding. His growth was right for his age, and his understanding of children, which was minus, was also right for his age. He was not bad. He was not abnormal. Nursery schools that are managed by trained, expert teachers know all this and are prepared to meet it. Mother selected the wrong school. The right one would have taken care of these infantile expressions and redirected them. Under the circumstances home was the best place for him.

LAST OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS LEADERS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.

In a time-worn flat at 29 Wendell street lives an old woman who made petticoat history. A leader and eyewitness of the struggle for women's rights, Alice Stone Blackwell—writer, poet, daughter of Lucy Stone and last of her line—will soon be 80 years old.

She is a link between two centuries of conflicting thought and custom; in the 1860s the world looked down its nose at those bold, bloomer-wearing suffragettes, and abused Lucy Stone, who dared to speak in public before a mixed audience; nowadays there is no bar to a woman's right to vote or to earn her bread and butter and, perhaps, jam.

Miss Blackwell believes that women have not taken full advantage of these rights. "In politics we are still working for men—not for ourselves," she said, shielding her tired blue eyes with glasses. "Looking back, I remember that politicians didn't want us to vote because they were scared of our 'intuition' or shrewdness. It needn't have worried them. When a few exceptional women do strike out against a political machine, they are crushed!"

Her desk is littered with a stack of mail as high as her nose; some papers are open and passages underlined, others are uncut and about to fall on the uncarpeted floor. Around the dim room are hundreds of books and newspaper scattered wildly. Miss Blackwell is trailing a reference.

"No, women do not make full use of their freedom," she repeated. "Of course, I am disappointed, but I never regret the fight for our rights." Moving her small, frail body, she peered around one side of the paper mountain. "The results of any reform never come up to the level of the ideals of the reformers, and yet each step forward has done good."

Alice Stone Blackwell knows plenty about the old ways, through her own or her mother's experiences. Ninety years ago, when Lucy Stone set out on her crusade, a woman had the legal rights, if any, of a child. At that time a husband could beat his wife "with a reasonable instrument"; he had sole control of the children and, if he died before his wife, was able to will the children to strangers. Furthermore, the only time a woman could make a valid will without consent of her husband was when she left everything to him.

Public opinion was even more stifling. All the professions were closed to women. When Lucy Stone invaded the public platform, ministers quoted the words of St. Paul: "I suffer not women to teach, nor to usurp authority over the men, but to be in silence." This started Lucy Stone on her way to being a fighting feminist. She made up her mind to go to college, study Hebrew and Greek in order to read the Bible in the original. She did—and translated it to her own satisfaction.

Miss Blackwell still makes speeches recounting the personal stories of her mother's battle for women's rights, but this winter the doctor has ordered rest and quiet and has forbidden all public speaking. In a way, this is good news for her, for she never liked to get up and speak before an audience. "It's pleasant to talk about my mother and her friends, but my memory isn't so good as it used to be," she said wistfully. "Strange, I remember what I read—not the little things that happened so long ago."

SHE paused to think back through the years, and in the hazy light of a rainy New England day, she looked like a star-at-home, shy old lady, her white hair matted and her thin hands folded quietly in her lap. She was wrapped in a faded bathrobe that had seen better days.

"It took my mother nine years to save enough money to enter college, and there was only one that admitted women. At Oberlin, in Ohio, she started the first debating society ever formed among college girls. They met first they met in secret meetings in the woods. It was also at Oberlin that she decided to keep her own name in case she ever married. She felt that women were more sunk by marriage than men—in that they lost their personal identity."

This moment she received her college degree she started on a speaking tour, and an affidavit.

Now, along comes P. Pitlaw of Lyndhurst, N. J. He writes: "Read your column daily. Are you actually traveling and at the places you write about daily? Your articles are sure a tonic for an off day."

AND now I feel naked, ashamed, "told off," as the English say, "found out," as we say. P. Pitlaw has penetrated the mystery of my life, raised the curtain on all my subterfuges and revealed me to the cruel gaze of a savage public.

Highbrow Vagabond's Letters

By BRUNO LESSING

LONDON, Nov. 12.
MRS. IDA E. WOOD, Pasadena, Cal., writes: "I understand that some 'jay' wrote you that you apparently had nothing to do but travel around and eat. Good gracious me! Anyone who can write, describe, entertain and educate the public by descriptions of said travels deserves all the leisure and ease that he can secure. Personally, I think that 'jay' must be obsessed by the Green-Eyed Monster to thus speak or write of you. I'm for you, Bruno, strong."

Now listen, Ida. I'm peeved at you. You add to my signature, "Just an old lady. You're an old dear, that's what you are. And you have a young heart. Because, no matter how sloppy my work is, you realize what I am trying to do. And my thanks to you are from the heart."

ND J. Hay of Oakland, Cal., writes: "I was in San Francisco a short time ago and was pleased to see your name among the immortals in front of the library. Glad for little Pete's sake. Are you kidding me, J. J. Of course I know I'm immortal, but I didn't know that anyone else knew it. Homer, Virgil, Dante and Shakespeare are all pals of mine, but if they knew what I thought of them they'd have a fit. Only I hadn't the faintest idea that the citizens of San Francisco had reached that intellectual height where they could appreciate me. However, I won't believe it until someone sends me a photograph."

There, I've had my fun. But both J. Hay and P. Pitlaw have set me thinking. A columnist, to be successful, must take his work seriously. If he be a humorist, some of those guys would send me a sample of the article they think I ought to write. Because, then, I could punish them by printing it.

el experiences, the task is—apparently—the simple. In the world you just travel and write about what you see. Pure child's play. The less you know and the more you rely upon guidebooks the simpler the job becomes. It is only when you take your typewriter into your hand and attempt to make vivid to others the impressions of your own mind that you begin to realize that you have undertaken real work.

THIS, dear readers, is not a personal plea. I am thinking of the many writers of columns throughout the U. S. They—we, if you like—always enjoy a pat on the back. And they—or we—appreciate and love intelligent criticism. But a carping slam, entirely devoid of intelligence and without displaying the faint realization of the columnist's efforts, is merely a sad pain in the neck.

I have one correspondent who makes it a point to call my attention to the fact that I said "north-east" when I should have said "north-west." Another who reminds me of my split infinitives. Another who keeps telling me that my historical dates are wrong.

It's all okay with me. I'm the world's champion chuckle-into-the-waste-basket of stupid letters. But I do wish, instead of bawling me out, some of those guys would send me a sample of the article they think I ought to write. Because, then, I could punish them by printing it.

Our Favorite Poems
Fit Every Mood

"SUNS and skies and clouds of June,

Ye cannot rival for one hour
October's bright blue weather."

How well this happy poem by Helen Hunt Jackson fits the lifting mood of October. We find among our favorite poems one to fit every mood. In an hour of loneliness, what could be more comforting than John Burroughs' verses: "What matter if I stand alone? I wait with joy the coming years; My heart shall reap where it has sown, And garner up its fruit of tears."

Oliver Wendell Holmes expresses our hope for the future in his lovely "Chambered Nautilus": "Build then more stately mansions, O my soul,

Problems of Social Usage And Weddings

The Type of Hat Suitable for a Late Afternoon Ceremony.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:
AT a late afternoon wedding, what type of hats would you consider best for the bridesmaids who are wearing long, light-colored satin dresses? Some one suggested a felt one, but somehow felt and this type of satin do not sound suitable.

Answer: Fine felt, especially in a light color, can, strange as it may seem, look lovely with satin and is apt to be much smarter than a velvet. Moreover, a felt hat is very useful afterwards, whereas it is usually impossible to wear even again a light-colored velvet or silk or satin.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have planned to have a fairly large wedding and reception for families and friends. My grandfather, who was very old, died last week, and we don't know whether these wedding arrangements for the Christmas holiday season will seem out of place. He did not live with us but he lived in this town and we were very fond of him.

Answer: It certainly would be thought very heartless to go on with plans for a large wedding. But you could perfectly well have a small one to which you verbally invite your families and intimate friends. This is one occasion when announcements would be the only thing you could send to all others. You can, of course, have one attendant, and your fiancé might have two ushers in addition to his best man. Those others who were to have been your or his attendants could be especially set apart by including them at the bridal table. But if you want to have a big wedding you should put it off at least three months.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am having a simple church wedding but wearing a bridal veil. The problem really concerns the men's clothes. My fiancé would like to wear dark brown instead of dark blue, which you have suggested for a simple wedding such as ours. Is blue compulsory or would you say that brown will be in equally good taste?

Answer: I have never heard of a bridegroom and his attendants wear brown. But, as I have written many times before, the one important rule is that the men's clothes shall be as nearly as possible alike. Therefore, if the bridegroom can persuade his friends to get dark brown suits (I hope they are plain as well as dark) I see no reason why they should not look as well as blue, with plain brown ties. But on this occasion they should wear black shoes instead of brown.

His faith in humanity is unshakable. "Every stupidity is bound in time to go down, so I'm never discouraged, no matter how impossible things look. In my mother's day, only a few thought women would get the vote and a chance to live their own lives. But it came about. The ills of the world can be remedied!"

She rose, feebly, and snapped on the desk light. The glare lit up the tired but indomitable face of Alice Stone Blackwell—writer, poet, daughter of Lucy Stone—who soon will be 80 years young.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

"So I am going to be shot like a dog." This was the realization of Dr. H. J. Howard of St. Louis when he fell into the hands of Chinese bandits. "My tongue began to swell and my mouth to get dry. This thirst rapidly became worse, until my tongue clung to the roof of my mouth, and I could scarcely get my breath. The thirst was choking me—I was in a terrible state of fear."

Then his courage came back. He thought: "I will die like a man," and his fear vanished. "Instantly my thirst began to disappear. In less than a minute it was entirely gone, and by the time we had reached the gate I was perfectly calm and unafraid."

This evidence, gathered by a trained observer, shows that thirst is not a disease, but a lack of water in the cells and tissues of the body, but may be caused by emotion. Certainly it was an extraordinary way to learn it. The ruling passion strong in death—the physiologist about to be shot, timing the length of his thirst period and the rapidity of its disappearance.

But we all know something of the influence of emotion in thirst—the amateur speechmaker who finds his mouth dry just as he is called upon for his remarks. Fear causes constriction of the blood vessels on the surface of the body, including the blood supply to the salivary glands. This lessens the flow of saliva, and hence the dryness of the mouth.

Water Supply Depleted.

Ordinary thirst, however, not that experienced in an emotional state, is due to depletion of the water supply to the tissues. The sensation of thirst, however, is located in the mouth, just as hunger is located in the stomach. Why should thirst—the need of the cells for water—be indicated by that feeling of dryness in the mouth? In a person who is thirsty, if water is introduced into the body elsewhere than by the mouth—under the skin, or in a face mask, or by the use of a nasal cannula—the dryness of the mouth disappears. And if the sensation of the dry, thirsty mouth is assuaged by having a person take a mouthful of water, rinse it around, and then spit it out, so that the body cells get no replenishment, the sensation of dryness of the mouth still remains.

The explanation given by Dr. Walter B. Cannon, who has worked on these subjects for many years, is that the mouth is a region which is especially likely to become desiccated when the bodily reserves of water are reduced. Across the back of the mouth air currents are constantly moving, drying it off. If the water reserve of the body is high these tissues are kept moistened from within by the blood stream. Also by the salivary glands, the secretion of which is generally from 99 to 97 per cent water. If the water supply of the tissues is lowered, the salivary glands cease to secrete, and the palate is not moistened from within, so the sensation of thirst occurs.

DAILY MAGAZINE IN LOVE WITH A T-MAN

Nick Oliver Gives Carol a New Cause for Worry—He Changes His Plans Because Of Their Meeting.

CHAPTER ELEVEN. HE WAS about to pass her, she was sure of that, when he stopped abruptly, and spoke. "Well! This is a surprise. Never thought I'd see you again after yesterday, and here I run into you today. Amazing, isn't it, the coincidences in this world of ours. Get your baggage?"

Carol nodded. The glow she had been feeling was gone as if a light had been shut off. The same sickly feeling of fear came over her that Nick's presence had brought before—the two times she had seen him, first in his bedroom, then in the car outside the Oliver library. "Yes, I got it, thank you."

Paul had seen to getting her things; she had had nothing to do with it. When she had returned home from the office her bags were with the landlady. "Everything as you wanted it?" "Everything, Mr. Oliver."

"You might tell me your name, you know. It happens I don't know it."

There couldn't be any harm in his knowing her name, could there? She had had no instructions from Paul about what to do if she ever saw Nick again. Paul probably had presumed she never would.

"My name is Carol Mayo."

"Properly introduced at last, Miss Mayo, although why you should try to get into my house under false pretenses I don't know. What I should have done was to have turned you over to the police—but you were too pretty for that."

Their eyes met, and Carol drew hers away first. If he were guilty as Paul thought he was, he must be thinking the same thing that she was—that he hadn't dared turn her over to the police. If he were innocent and never in his life had had anything to do with counterfeiting, then he was speaking the truth; and pity for her had kept him from having her arrested.

"Had lunch?" "Yes, I have."

"Sorry, I was going to ask you to join me."

Then Carol was sorry she had given him her name so promptly—any other might have done if she had considered. Mary Smith, or Jenny Brown—any name but her own. He could find her if he wanted to, her phone number and her apartment house address, because her phone was listed in her own name. All he had to do was to look up the "M's," which would be simple even for a small schoolboy. A private phone was one thing her father and mother insisted on her having, for they liked to call her at least once a week and see how she was getting on. Her father paid for the phone. He also paid $10 monthly on Carol's rent, so that she could live in a better apartment than her salary warranted.

"Coming?" Nick inquired, for the girl had been silent at his last words. "I'll walk down the street a bit with you."

There was no way of getting out of that, either—at least no way that Carol could see. They went out the store together, crossed the street together and at the entrance of the Dickson Building in the next block, she paused. "This is where I stop. It wasn't where she stopped—she still had two blocks to go to the Mortimer Building, where Devin's office was and where she was past due."

He tipped his hat courteously.

Real Purpose For Existence Of Mankind

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"SUDDENLY, the other day," an old friend writes, "there was a terrific downpour of rain, with a rattle of thunder. In front of my house a little family group were huddled under a tree. The lady of the house invited them indoors until the storm was past—a natural thing to do. They accepted the invitation, a mother and three kiddies, and they were snug and happy."

"After the rain they went away. Hours later there came a knock at the door. There stood the mother—a poorly dressed woman—she had walked a mile to bring a tiny bunch of flowers."

"Just a trivial story, but it has set me thinking. What is the real business of life, anyway? Why are we here at all? To pile up money? To win power, position, fame? Or just to be friendly?"

"Surely the business of our human life is to shelter one another from the storm and give one another flowers. It is to be friendly, neighborly; to love, and to do good deeds."

Sentimentalism? Alas! It is because we have given this spirit a bad name and scorned it, going off after other goals, that the world is the crazy place that it is today—all in a mess.

Our business is to increase the sum of happiness and to decrease the sum of trouble and misery; nothing else. By as much as we do that life has meaning; otherwise it is flat and stale.

Of course, to do good and be neighborly we have to engage in trade, the tasks of politics, and deal with the vast issues between nations. We have to make laws and negotiate treaties.

But all is meaningless—if not puerile and futile—unless the end and aim of it is to give shelter to little families, make human faces happy, and send a bunch of flowers now and then.

It is because we have forgotten this simple truth, that the world is dark with fear and feud. When will man learn why he is here—not to show off his bigness, but to share his love?

Fox Note Silver fox is found everywhere this season. Coats with outer sleeves of the precious pelt, suits with peplums of silver fox, coats, fur or cloth, with revers of the fur—these are just some of the places in which this luxury pelt lurks.

EXERCISE NO. 29 (SECOND STEP): EVERYTHING IS SWING NOW! DAYS—MUSIC, HATS, SKIRTS AND NOW—YOUR LEGS. HERE THEY ARE SWINGING FORWARD IN THE FIRST MOVEMENT IN THIS EXERCISE. REMEMBER TO KEEP THE BODY STILL AS POSSIBLE FROM THE WAIST UP AND SWING FROM THE HIPS. WATCH FOR THE BACK SWING TOMORROW.

TO GAIN you must eat and assimilate more food than you need for energy and heat so that it can be stored in the body as fat. Every day this week I am giving you menus which are high in calorie counts. If you haven't written in for your calorie chart, you can do so now. Send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. It is important that you count your calories, too, so you will know how much food you are actually consuming and therefore judge as to whether your underweight comes from undereating or poor assimilation.

Here is a menu which will help you gain weight:

BREAKFAST.
1 glass unskimmed milk	100
2 rolls	200
2 pats butter	200
DINNER.
Liver, 4 1/2 ounces	200
4 onions creamed	200
Banana and nut salad with mayonnaise	300
1 cup spinach	50
Chocolate Blanc mange, 3/4 cup	300
Before retiring drink a large glass of milk, eat six saltines	200
LUNCHEON.
Cole slaw, 1 cup	100
Steak, 2 by 3 inches	100

English Pork Pie

An old English dish that proves popular during the colder months. Boil two pounds of lean pork until tender and then cut into cubes. Line a baking dish with pastry and fill with alternate layers of pork and sliced apples. Sprinkle lightly with sugar, nutmeg and cloves, making the last layer one of pork. Thicken and season the liquor in which the pork was boiled and pour over the dish. Cover with top crust and bake in a moderate oven until the crust is nicely browned, allowing plenty of time for the apples to become tender.

Only 10 MINUTES

Quick and easy to prepare. Delightful to serve with meats, hot or cold; fine for ice box cakes, salads, tarts, puddings. Order fresh cranberries today and make fresh cranberry sauce this way—

TEN-MINUTE CRANBERRY SAUCE (Stewed Cranberries) 1 pound or quart (4 cups) cranberries 1 1/2 to 2 cups sugar Method: Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes add cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from the fire when the poppins stop, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

walking with her. Damn Carol Mayo! And Devin and the whole mess of them!

Nick controlled his facial muscles very well as he entered the store, but he was seething underneath with a furious anger that made his blood feel like fire in his veins. His face was flushed—but this was the only outward sign that anything was wrong.

The same clerk at the desk, of course. He couldn't expect anything else, and she might recognize him, even for a small schoolboy. She didn't see Nick, but by that time he had turned the corner and was going north.

His plan was to circle the block and get back to the Day Drug Store as quickly as possible, and his plan was completed in five minutes which was record time for the crowds on the sidewalks were heavy.

The Day Drug Store was where he had encountered Carol. It was dangerous, he knew, going back there, but this was no time to think of danger nor to wait and give orders to someone else to go there.

What had the girl been doing in the store anyway! She had bought something at the cigar counter, yes, but what it was he didn't know, although he had studied her small brown paper bag minutely, both in the store when he was talking to her, and on the street when he was

He went up to the candy counter which was across from the cigar counter in the center aisle of the store and pointed out to the clerk the box of candy he wanted. While he chose the candy, however, his thoughts were on the phone booth. The man was taking infernally long with his call. Nick hoped he roared in the hot booth. He almost had in the one minute and a half he had been inside.

The clerk, a pretty girl, wrapped up his candy, and took his five dollar bill. The man in the brown suit was still talking, but Nick had a smile on his face now, although it was pale. The healthy brown tan had turned to yellow. The flush had gone.

To people who knew him, his yellowish pallor was more deadly than his flush. It meant that his anger had cooled and pure hate had taken its place. Nick's hate was worse by far than his anger. His hate at that particular moment was turned both on the man in the booth and on Carol Mayo.

THE five dollar bill was changed and he was putting what was left of it in his pocket when the man came out wiping his forehead. Nick leisurely picked up his package and walked to the booth, closing the door after him. The package he placed on the shelf, and his right hand put a nickel into the slot of the phone in front of him.

His left hand was searching for something underneath the shelf, something which he had put there not long ago himself. His hand had to reach under the flange ledge of the shelf.

It was there, as he had left it—the slip of paper, he had pasted under the shelf for Rod Alden to pick up at three o'clock—stuck to the under side of the shelf with two little glued bits of paper, the patented kind which need no moisture, only the heat of a warm hand. His right hand was dialing while he left the paper away and crumpled it into a small ball. He didn't throw it on the floor, however, nor put it in his pocket. Instead with the ball of paper held in his hand, still the same hand, he felt in his coat pocket for his lighter.

Then his right hand hung up the receiver and he stooped to the floor. In a second the spark of the lighter flashed and the flame touched the thin paper and burned it rapidly. He waited until it was almost black clinders in his hands, then let it fall and stamped out the dying embers.

From his vest pocket he took a cigar, and lighted it with the lighter. This he did facing the window of the booth, and when he came out a blue trail of smoke followed him. He didn't forget his package, and he didn't linger in the store after that. He went directly down the street and around the corner to where his car was parked in a garage, his face still yellowed and his eyes glowing.

In the garage he met a broker friend, who stood discussing the stock market rise with him for ten minutes. Nick continued to smoke the cigar, although he hated cigars, hated the feel of them in his mouth. Now and then in emergencies he did smoke them, but he always regretted it because they made him slightly sick to his stomach.

He listened conscientiously and intelligently to what the broker was saying, but his thoughts were neither on the market nor his friend. They were on the message that his man Alden wouldn't get now until tomorrow, which would interfere with Nick's plans because the message was intended for today.

The message concerned the time and plan for the pickup of certain sums which were due Oliver—always a different time and a different place each week. Certain good sound treasury bills which Nick liked to count, gloating as he counted. But he wouldn't get them today at the Paramount Theater at 5 as he had thought. He would get them tomorrow at another theater.

Economize on Cakes

If you wish to economize, when making a layer cake, make the cake part less rich and put the richness into the icing or frosting. The average person who does not cook will judge a cake by its icing and will never know the difference.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: Answers are from the scientific viewpoint. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

In a grand book, "International Delusions," by George M. Stratton—a book that every statesman should read and see how he is fooling himself about international attitudes—the author says, every nation regards itself as the great lover of peace and other nations as "war-like." It will surprise many citizens to learn other nations regard the United States as a very warlike nation! France regards herself as the very "bulwark of peace in the Far East." Every nation cries, "If others were only as peaceful in their intentions as we are there would be no war!"

As I related last week, a study of this problem was made by a Ralph Sogdill, Detroit psychologist, and he found in a large group of young people that those who had been reared under very lax home discipline—even neglected in a way—tended to be more conservative in their attitudes on 70 important questions of life than those who had been severely reared. This will surely strike some parents with surprise who think by their strict discipline they will make their children conservatives.

1. DO MOST NATIONS HONESTLY BELIEVE THEY WANT PEACE MORE THAN OTHER NATIONS DO? YES OR NO —

2. DO CHILDREN WHO ARE REARED WITH GREAT FREEDOM TEND TO BECOME RADICALS OR CONSERVATIVES IN LATER LIFE? YOUR ANSWER —

3. A few days ago I related the experiments in judging character described by Dr. Catherine Cox Miles. Seventy women judges and 67 men judges had careful judgments on 77 school boys and girls, and strange to say, both the men and women judges were more accurate in judging the character traits of the girls than those of the boys, although all the judges maintained they could read the boys better than the girls! Looks from this like it is easier for both men and women to see through a woman than through a man.

Temptation

By K. RAYMOND

HATING himself and the man he followed, Ken Stewart, edged along the marble corridor wall close behind John Winters, who carried $50,000 in a small black bag. Five years' struggle against temptation lost. All because of this man—the man he intended to murder and rob.

For five years this hatchet-faced, bald man of 50, a daily customer of the Commercial Bank's safe-deposit vaults, had whipped Stewart's dislike into burning hatred.

"Hurry up, Clubfoot!" Winters snarled each afternoon upon presenting his signed card and pass key to the young, crippled guard in blue. And always, when Stewart hobbled out with the broker's deposit box, he would add: "Slower than over all? Fine public servant, I must say!"

Once, long ago, an older guard explained Winters' actions to puzzled, sensitive Stewart. "Winters is a big shot, see. Wants guys to jump when he orders. But you're kinda slow, on account a' that bum leg, an' he knows you never say nothing to him."

Stewart's pale face crimsoned as he hunched closer to the rich broker. Speak well to the man who knowingly hid deepest where it hurt—who sneered because he was born a cripple! Jump to serve this man—haired of whom had made his temptation irresistible; the temptation to do wrong!

Working daily amid riches, what courage he had needed to resist the chances to steal! How many, many times he had flushed scarlet because of the pitying stare of people—when $5000 would end his crippled days. Years ago a surgeon had told him:

"In Vienna the great Von Hoff will operate by his new method, and you will be as other men. But his fee is $5000."

Five thousand dollars! And he was working for a small salary to support his aged mother and himself.

But today he had seen the insolent Winters, who carelessly left his booth door open, stuff $50,000 in currency into that black bag. The Stewart, seeing himself and Winters, had followed the latter down a deserted corridor.

Stewart reached quivering hands out for Winters' scrawny throat, but hesitated. After he murdered and robbed, what? He paused, spell-bound by the sudden work of his vivid, tortured imagination. But he must act. Winters was abreast a dark corridor recess. Stewart sprang; his strong fingers closed in a deadly grip, throttling his victim's cry.

Five minutes' struggle and Stewart rose from his limp enemy, the black bag in hand. In panting haste he found himself emerging outside, whirling bank doors into the busy city street.

Winters was dead. He had got away with the $50,000! But sudden panic filled Stewart's brain. Deep within him rose a menacing, taunting voice; the harsh voice of his murdered victim—Winters.

"Clubfooted fool!" snarled the inner voice. "You planned nothing. Airplanes... the Canadian border? What about radio... the telegraph? You'll hang, I tell you!" Stewart quivered. Then came a second voice, eager, seeming that of satisfied Temptation. "Forget Winters—he's dead; you're rich and free. Remember, Vienna and Von Hoff—your crippled days will soon be over!"

"Not to plan, Clubfoot!" "Forget Winters," commanded Temptation. "You can get away."

"Never, Clubfoot!" snarled Winters' tones. "You killed me. Murder will out, cripple. You'll never get away with it!"

Temptation argued scornfully. "You're not to blame for killing him. He caused your blind hate and I'm glad—that helped me along!"

"You murdered and robbed," Conscience, now steady-voiced, accused. "That will torture you to your dying day."

Sudden horror and fear of the inward voice filled Stewart's soul. On the city walk he halted, trembling, found himself staring at a corner newspaper stand. On it lay the afternoon papers with their black headlines. Queerly enough, the huge type shifted into a startling message:

"BANK Vault Killer Dies at Dawn!"

Stewart shrieked then, hysterical under the full realization of his crime. He whirled, one hand flung across his eyes, toward the bank he had fled.

He shuddered as the inward voice of Temptation seemed to cry furiously.

"After years you got the chance to become as other men—and you're giving up!"

"You'd better, Clubfoot!" chanted the coarse tones of Winters. "You'll never get away with this!"

Loudly, clearly, piercing Stewart's heart with anguish, Conscience shrieked: "Once you were good, respectable. Now you're a criminal, a thief and a murderer. Over and over, until the day you die, I'll repeat; you're a murderer!"

Stewart screamed again in tortured despair, hurled the $50,000 black bag far down the walk. Arms across his face, he fled, one hand clumped out in the city way, flung himself beneath the wheels of a clanging street car. And then...

Ken Stewart's groping hands, touched Winters' blue-berged bag. The swift, vivid working of his fevered imagination suddenly stopped. As the pale light of a dawn morning flashed through his brain in seconds, so had Stewart glimpsed the future—while sinking into the black but you knows that!" he snapped, then in familiar, taunting tones continued disagreeably. "But maybe it's tempted you, eh, Clubfoot?"

Amazingly, Stewart found himself smiling. Five years' temptation had mounted to its crisis and gone. And gone, too, he realized in his overwhelming joy, was hate of his tormentor.

"Nope, not tempted, thank you!" The pulsing gladness in Stewart's voice made Winters stare. "I'm way past temptation—now!"

More peaceful in mind than ever before, humming softly beneath his breath, Stewart turned on his heel and clumped lightly back to his work.

Don't Let 'Em Scare You

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WHEN you read of the famous Wall Street panics of history you will find that they are dated as of Friday the 13th. This superstition is shared even by people without money.

We remember many financial gimmicks of past years starting with 1893 and coming right down to 1929, even though the Republicans are denying the paternity of the most recent monetary epidemic.

Great manipulating names are associated with those golden relapses. Gould, Harriman, Sage, Hettie Green, Fiske, Astor and others too influential to mention. All the boys had various methods of launching their predatory decades.

They pooled their interests and then pulled the plug. They washed their sales in a peculiar and questionable form of antiseptic brokerage. Pulling the plug means exactly what it says. It is letting water run out of the tub in time of drouth.

Wash sales mean letting your left hand know what your right hand is juggling. Blocks of stock pass from one hand to another until the actual number of shares is multiplied by the times they are sold. Thus an actual one thousand shares become a mythical hundred thousand shares in a hundred bogus transactions. They say that what

When everything is sitting pretty, and little Bo Beep has found her sheep, they yank the plug, and it's yocks and tally-ho. Then they have those little affairs known as selling short and selling long. Space is too short for us to describe these little intimate capers. You will have to send for our booklet. There is no reason why we should not start a sucker list of our own.

The broker dreads the chronological combination and complicated gyrations of Friday and the numeral 13. He will take a plea in bankruptcy on a Monday, hop out of a very altitudinous dormer window on a Tuesday, eat oysters on a hot July Wednesday and scrape his bunions with a bit of broken glass on a Thursday. All of which is jolly and happy days in Dixie, compared with the horrible things that can happen to him when Friday and the 13th dance an old-fashioned minuet.

This is a delusion and a snare, a fetish and a totem, an inhibition and a reflex. Nevertheless, we shall not trade lightly over pools, corners and marginal requisitions.

It's all very silly and we take no stock in it.
